HEAR PRESIDENT SPURNED PEACE OFFER BY JAPAN

Knox Calls Pacific War 'Inevitable.'

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24.—In an atmosphere charged with conflicting rumors and official statements the policies of the Roosevelt administration and of the new government of Japan were enveloped today in deepening mystery.

While Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox was viewing the situation with more than his usual alarm and darkly hinting at war between the United States and Japan almost any day now, the White House and the state department refused comment on a report emanating from an authoritative quarter that the President had blocked an agreement with Tokio in the recently interrupted negotiations.

Reported Terms of Agreement.

According to this report Japan agreed to withdraw from China, with the exception of two air bases to be retained on Chinese soil. Japan also agreed to withdraw from the axis and to make no further attempt to expand Japanese dominion to the southward toward British Singapore and the Dutch East Indies.

Japan further agreed to the freedom of the seas in the entire Pacific region, by virtue of which understanding American cargoes of arms for Russia would be immune from interference by the Japanese. Both the United States and Japan would rescind all orders freezing each other's credits and otherwise interfering with trade between them.

Wrecked on Air Base Refusal.

According to this version of the negotiations, Mr. Roosevelt refused to agree to the retention by Japan of two air bases in China and on this rock the Pacific peace effort was wrecked. The White House, asked about the truth of this story, referred The Tribune reporter to the state department. The state department declined to confirm or deny the report, answering the inquiry with a laconic "no comment." Nor was comment obtainable from the Japanese embassy.

The negotiations were initiated last August by Prince Konoe, premier in the Japanese ministry which fell last week. He wrote a personal letter to Mr. Roosevelt which was delivered by the Japanese ambassador, Adm. Kichisabura Nomura. The premier's purpose was to go over the head of Secretary of State Cordell Hull who had proved unyielding in negotiations with Nomura up to that time. The President, however, proved no more yielding than Hull.

Konoe Ministry Falls.

So the negotiations failed and the Konoe ministry fell partly because of failure of the Konoe policy and partly because the progress of German arms against Russia inspired the belief in Tokio that it was now safe to defy the United States.

Ambassador Nomura, it transpired, views the impasse between the United States and Japan as so serious that either he or the embassy counselor, Sadao Iguchi, will fly to Tokio to acquaint the new Tojo ministry with the situation. Shigeoshi Obata, special advisor to Nomura on American affairs, is scheduled to leave tomorrow carrying information the embassy does not care to intrust to not-always-secret code messages.

Nomura has indicated of late that he is discouraged by developments suggesting that war with Japan would be popular in the United States and that an American victory could be achieved without great effort.

Knox's Alarmist Utterances.

Secretary Knox's alarmist utterances were made to a group of 14 ordnance manufacturers who had gathered in the secretary's office to receive "E" pennants for excellent production records.

"The situation out in the far east is extremely strained," Knox said. "We are satisfied in our own minds that the Japanese have no intentions of giving up their plans for expansion. If they pursue that course a collision is inevitable. It can occur on 24 hours' notice."

BATTLE GERMANS AT 2 POINTS NEAR ROSTOV---RUSSIA

German troops striking across the Donetz basin were being met near points 40 miles west and 70 miles northwest of Rostov, gateway to the Caucasus, by stubbornly resisting Russian armies, Moscow announced early today. On the front before Moscow, fierce German attacks were reported repulsed in the west and southwest sectors, with the Nazis losing heavily in men and machines.

From Kuibyshev, where the government has been set up, it was revealed that vast new armies were being assembled to carry on the war.

Germany declared its troops were moving closer to Moscow thru a maze of snow covered land mines and village street barricades, while another drive was gaining headway in the Donetz basin. Military sources said the decisive hour for Moscow was near and placed Russian losses at "numerous millions."

CRAFT STRIKES PEAK IN A FOG IN CALIFORNIA

Weather Forces 13 of 19 Ships to Land.

Sacramento, Cal., Oct. 24 [Special].—A crew of five army aviators died today in the crash of a United States bomber on a peak in the Vaca mountains and five other army planes were missing in a heavy fog that lay over a large part of California. A sixth army plane was missing between Juneau and Cordova, Alaska.

Lieut. E. W. Sell. [AP Wirephoto.]

The fatal crash occurred on Twin Sisters peak, 40 miles northeast of San Francisco, where a Douglas B-18A bomber crashed into the fog-shrouded mountain top. Had the ship gone 100 yards to the left it would have cleared the peak.

As the plane crashed flames engulfed it and spread to timber on the hillside. Fire fighting equipment from Suisun extinguished the fire. The medium bomber was en route from Hamilton field, Cal., to Sacramento. All its occupants were attached to the 7th bombardment group stationed at Fort Douglas, Utah.

Here Is List of Dead.

The dead were Capt. Franklin S. Nelson, commander; Second Lieut. E. W. Sell, co-pilot; Technical Sergt. Andy Zeik; Technical Sergt. Robert M. Kinney; and Private [first class] John W. Phillips. All were from Salt Lake City except Lieut. Sell, whose home was in Lander, Wyo.

Three bodies were found in the burned plane. The bodies of the other two men were hurled about 40 yards from the wreckage. Pieces of the ship were scattered over a hundred yard area.

Sheriff John R. Thornton of Solano county said the weather was so foggy the pilot must have been flying blind at the time of the crash.

Part of Formation of 19.

The five missing planes were part of a formation of 19 ships en route from March Field, Cal., to McClellan field at Sacramento. They were reported missing after they became lost and scattered in the dense fog north of March field. The missing pilots are Lieuts. L. C. Lydon, J. C. West, W. L. Birrel, and another named Long.

Capt. M. P. Hart, public relations officer at McClellan field, said that seven of the 19 planes landed at Smith Valley, 60 miles southeast of Reno, Nev. Four landed at the Stockton, Cal., army air base, and two others arrived at McClellan field.

One of the pilots who landed at the field reported seeing another pilot, said to be Lieut. J. H. Pease, bail out of his plane over the Tehachapi mountains near the Nevada state line. Officers said that one of the seven ships which landed in Nevada crashed as it came down on an emergency field but the pilot escaped injury.

Only Pilots on Pursuit Ships.

The 19 planes, all P-40 pursuit ships, carried only the pilots. They were on a flight from Windsor Lock, Conn., to McChord field, Wash. They were under the command of Maj. C. E. Hughes, who was one of those reported to have made a safe landing at Smith Valley.

The army plane missing in Alaska was a bomber that has been unreported since it left Yakutat, between Juneau and Cordova, at 10:30 a. m. Tuesday for Edmonton, Alta. The coast guard, which was asked to search for the plane, said that terse messages mentioned only Col. Gill as pilot and did not indicate the number of his crew.

U. S. Officers Line Up for King's Review

A SOUTHERN AREA OF ENGLAND, Oct. 24 (AP).—For the first time in this war the king of England has reviewed United States army personnel on British soil.

Twenty-five United States army signal corps lieutenants who have come to England as military observers and 100 civilian technicians were drawn up with hundreds of RAF men at this reception center Thursday when King George and Queen Elizabeth reviewed new personnel from the dominions and colonies and the United States.

After the king had spoken to high dominion officers he walked around in front of an RAF unit at the head of the line and extended his hand to M. C. Vosburgh, a tall, smiling young man from Lapeer, Mich., member of the civilian technical corps recruited in the United States for repair and maintenance service.

Queen Exchanges Greetings.

Behind him walked the queen, exchanging greetings with the men. All the CTC's were in blue ground crew uniforms with "U. S. A." embroidered on the left shoulder.

Next the king shook hands with Lieut. Kenneth L. Blaisdell of Goffstown, N. H., leader of the signal corps officers attending a radio school, who later will be posted to stations of the RAF to observe radio operations.

Standing at attention next to the signal corps officers were 21 American pilots trained in Canada and now awaiting assignment to squadrons. Their leader, Pilot Officer Carl Boddy of Randall, Kas., assured the king that they were fully trained and ready to fight.

Come from 30 States.

Ranged around, beyond the American units, were some hundreds of Canadians, New Zealanders, Rhodesians, and some South Africans.

Donald Gill, an American who served in the navy in the last war, was present to explain the CTC, of which he is commandant, to King George.

While waiting for the royal visitors, the members of the corps—men from 30 states—chatted in the ranks about their jobs.

They wear RAF uniforms, learn the rudiments of military discipline, but receive civilian pay and are not required to do combat duty or swear allegiance to the king. They serve the RAF in maintenance establishments, industrial centers, and training schools.

HUNDREDS HUNT BABY LOST ON MOUNTAIN SIDE

Williamsport, Pa., Oct. 24 (AP).—A 19 month old boy, dressed only in a sun suit and a sweater, wandered from his home on a nearby mountain side this afternoon. Tonight, as the temperature dropped to 50 degrees, hundreds of volunteers sought him.

Cries of "Joey!" and the barking of searching dogs echoed thru the chilly woods and over the streets of South Williamsport, where the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Prato was last seen.

Hess' Luxury Life as British Prisoner Is Hit

BY GUY MURCHIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 25 [Saturday].—Rudolf Hess, Adolf Hitler's former deputy, is living in privileged luxury as a British prisoner of state, in a modern, roomy cottage "somewhere in England," according to Glasgow's fiery provost [mayor], Sir Patrick Dollan. Hess' food ration is about double what the average Englishman gets, Dollan charged, despite a recent government assertion in the house of commons that he and his guards ate the same "home service scale rations."

"Hess still is a staunch Nazi," the provost added. "Every time he hears Hitler's name he clicks his heels together and gives the Nazi salute."

Protests Pampering.

Angered by the consideration he said is accorded to Hess, Dollan, addressing a meeting in Glasgow this week, told his audience:

"It is wrong that Hess should be lounging in comfort with all sorts of privileges when there are vacant cells in Scottish and English prisons for persons of his type."

In an interview printed on the front page of this morning's Daily Sketch, Dollan says:

"I am not at liberty to say exactly where he is located, but you have my word that he is much better off than he should be."

Dollan protests that Hess should be treated as a prisoner of war instead of as a political "prisoner of state."

"For my part," he says, "I believe Hess should be treated like the criminal he is."

Lives in Cottage.

Intimate details of Hess' official hideout and how the former deputy fuehrer now lives are given by the paper's Glasgow correspondent. The cottage inhabited by Hess, he says, is situated in a remote and lovely part of the country. It is fitted with the modern conveniences and "more than a few luxury touches."

There are large gardens at the back and front where Hess exercises under the supervision of guards at least twice daily. The only serious restriction placed upon him is that, apart from the exercise periods, he is confined indoors.

Hess parachuted to earth in Scotland May 10 of this year after a mystery flight from Germany, his plane crashing nearby. No official light ever has been shed on the reason for his trip to England.

VAST GAMBLING PROFITS AND GRAFT RECORD BARED

Tribune to Publish Ledger Sheets of the Syndicate.

The Tribune has in its possession secret financial records of the Guzik-Nitti gambling syndicate.

The records are authentic and detailed balance sheets on gambling operations in Cook county outside of Chicago carried on in the month of July this year.

These records, prepared by a master bookkeeper and intended for the scrutiny only of the four overlords of the crime and vice gang which rules gambling in the county, show in startling detail:

1. That the gang commonly called "the syndicate" had gross winnings from slot machines, gambling houses, punch boards, etc., in Cook county outside of Chicago of $322,966 in one month.

2. That the gang paid out to police (outside of Chicago) and unidentified persons $26,280 in one month. This was for non-interference with gambling operations.

3. That after pay rolls had been met and graft had been paid, the syndicate bosses cut up a monthly profit of $221,674.

4. That the monthly income from slot machines and gambling in the county outside of Chicago indicates the syndicate's annual gross income would be around $3,875,592. Its protection payments would be $315,000 and its profit for the year approximately $2,660,000.

5. That the division of profit from slot machines alone after certain big deductions for unidentified persons had been taken is made on a four way basis, and that profit from gambling houses operated by the syndicate is split three ways.

Four Bosses of Gang.

These records were kept in such secrecy that it is believed that only the four bosses of the Guzik gang ever saw them. These bosses are Jack Guzik, Frank Nitti, Edward Vogel, and Murray Humphreys. Pictures of these men and their histories appear on page 3 in this issue of the Tribune. The entries on their bookkeeping sheets were made by an experienced bookkeeper, probably Fred Evans, long reputed to be the gang's chief auditor. The records consist of six sheets of a loose leaf ledger. Each sheet has the details of one special phase of the gang's gambling operations.

These records, which will be published by the Tribune, consist of the following:

SHEET NO. 1—A record of collections made by agents of the syndicate in their respective territories thruout Cook county. The collections came from taverns where slot machines were operated. This sheet is headed "July, 1941—Collectors." The 12 columns on the sheet total $99,235 collected during the month as the gang's share from slot machines only, which were operated in hundreds of taverns, golf clubs, dance halls, and other places of public entertainment. The largest sum brought in by one collector was $23,309 and the smallest was $1,030. A photostatic copy of this sheet will be found on page 2 along with a story describing the method of collection and explaining the names of the collectors carried at the head of each of the 12 columns.

Subcontractors Listed.

SHEET NO. 2—Is headed "July, 1941—Operators, etc., Ins." (The "Ins" are in contrast to the "Kick Outs," the title of another sheet of the syndicate's records. "Ins" refers to income and "Kick Outs" to outgo. A photostatic copy of sheet No. 2—the "ins" sheet—will be published in a subsequent issue of the Tribune.)

This is the record of the exact payments made to syndicate bosses in the month of July, 1941, by smaller gangs which have been given territory in which to operate slot machines thruout the county. These are in effect subcontractors of the Guzik gang. In contrast to the individual tavern owners from whom the slot machine earnings are collected by agents of the big syndicate, these subcontractors make their own collections in their own territories, buy their machines from the big syndicate and pay a proportion of their winnings to the big syndicate as license fees.

Payments for July.

The total payments made in July, 1941, to the big syndicate by the slot machine subcontractors totaled $27,010.

SHEET NO. 3—The secret monthly balance sheet of the Guzik gang. It tells the never before revealed story of the day by day profit, loss, and expenses of a chain of the syndicate gambling houses. Most of them, certainly the largest of them, were operated in Cicero, that territory

UNDERLINGS SKIP AS GANG HOISTS STORM SIGNALS

Most of the men connected with the slot machine racket in the suburban areas of Cook county were reported to be traveling last night—away from Chicago.

The employés and the agents of the Nitti-Guzik-Humphreys-Vogel syndicate were avoiding trouble. Their gangster bosses were in a huddle in a downtown hotel, according to persons who said they saw them there, and they were sending out this message to their underlings:

"Don't talk!"

Get Orders for Shutdown.

On Thursday night the gang's grapevine broadcast system carried orders to all taverns and roadhouses where slot machines were doing business.

"Get the boxes down, quick!" was the word.

Down they went. Visitors in numerous spots in the county during the late evening said the one arm bandits—which had been taking the public's money with little or no trouble for several days—had vanished.

Coin machine distributors were the next ones to get orders from the chiefs of their industry.

"Be careful," they were warned.

Go Fast and Far.

"Get out of town, quick," the collectors and operators were directed during the day. "Get away as fast as you can and go as far as you can. We'll tell you when to come back."

Thruout the county towns the racketeers' exodus was of such a nature as to leave no one behind who, upon being arrested might divulge any of the trade secrets.

Aside from the big four of the racket, the rest of the slot machine brigands did not know what had hit them. But they were told that the records of the gambling syndicates being printed by THE TRIBUNE was expected to "put the heat on slot machine gambling" for some time to come.

which in prohibition days was Al Capone's private kingdom.

SHEET NO. 4—It tells the story of the payments on account made by the syndicate for new equipment, dice, roulette tables, cards, and other gambling paraphernalia used to extract a toll from the gambling public in Cook county.

Gross Income Shown.

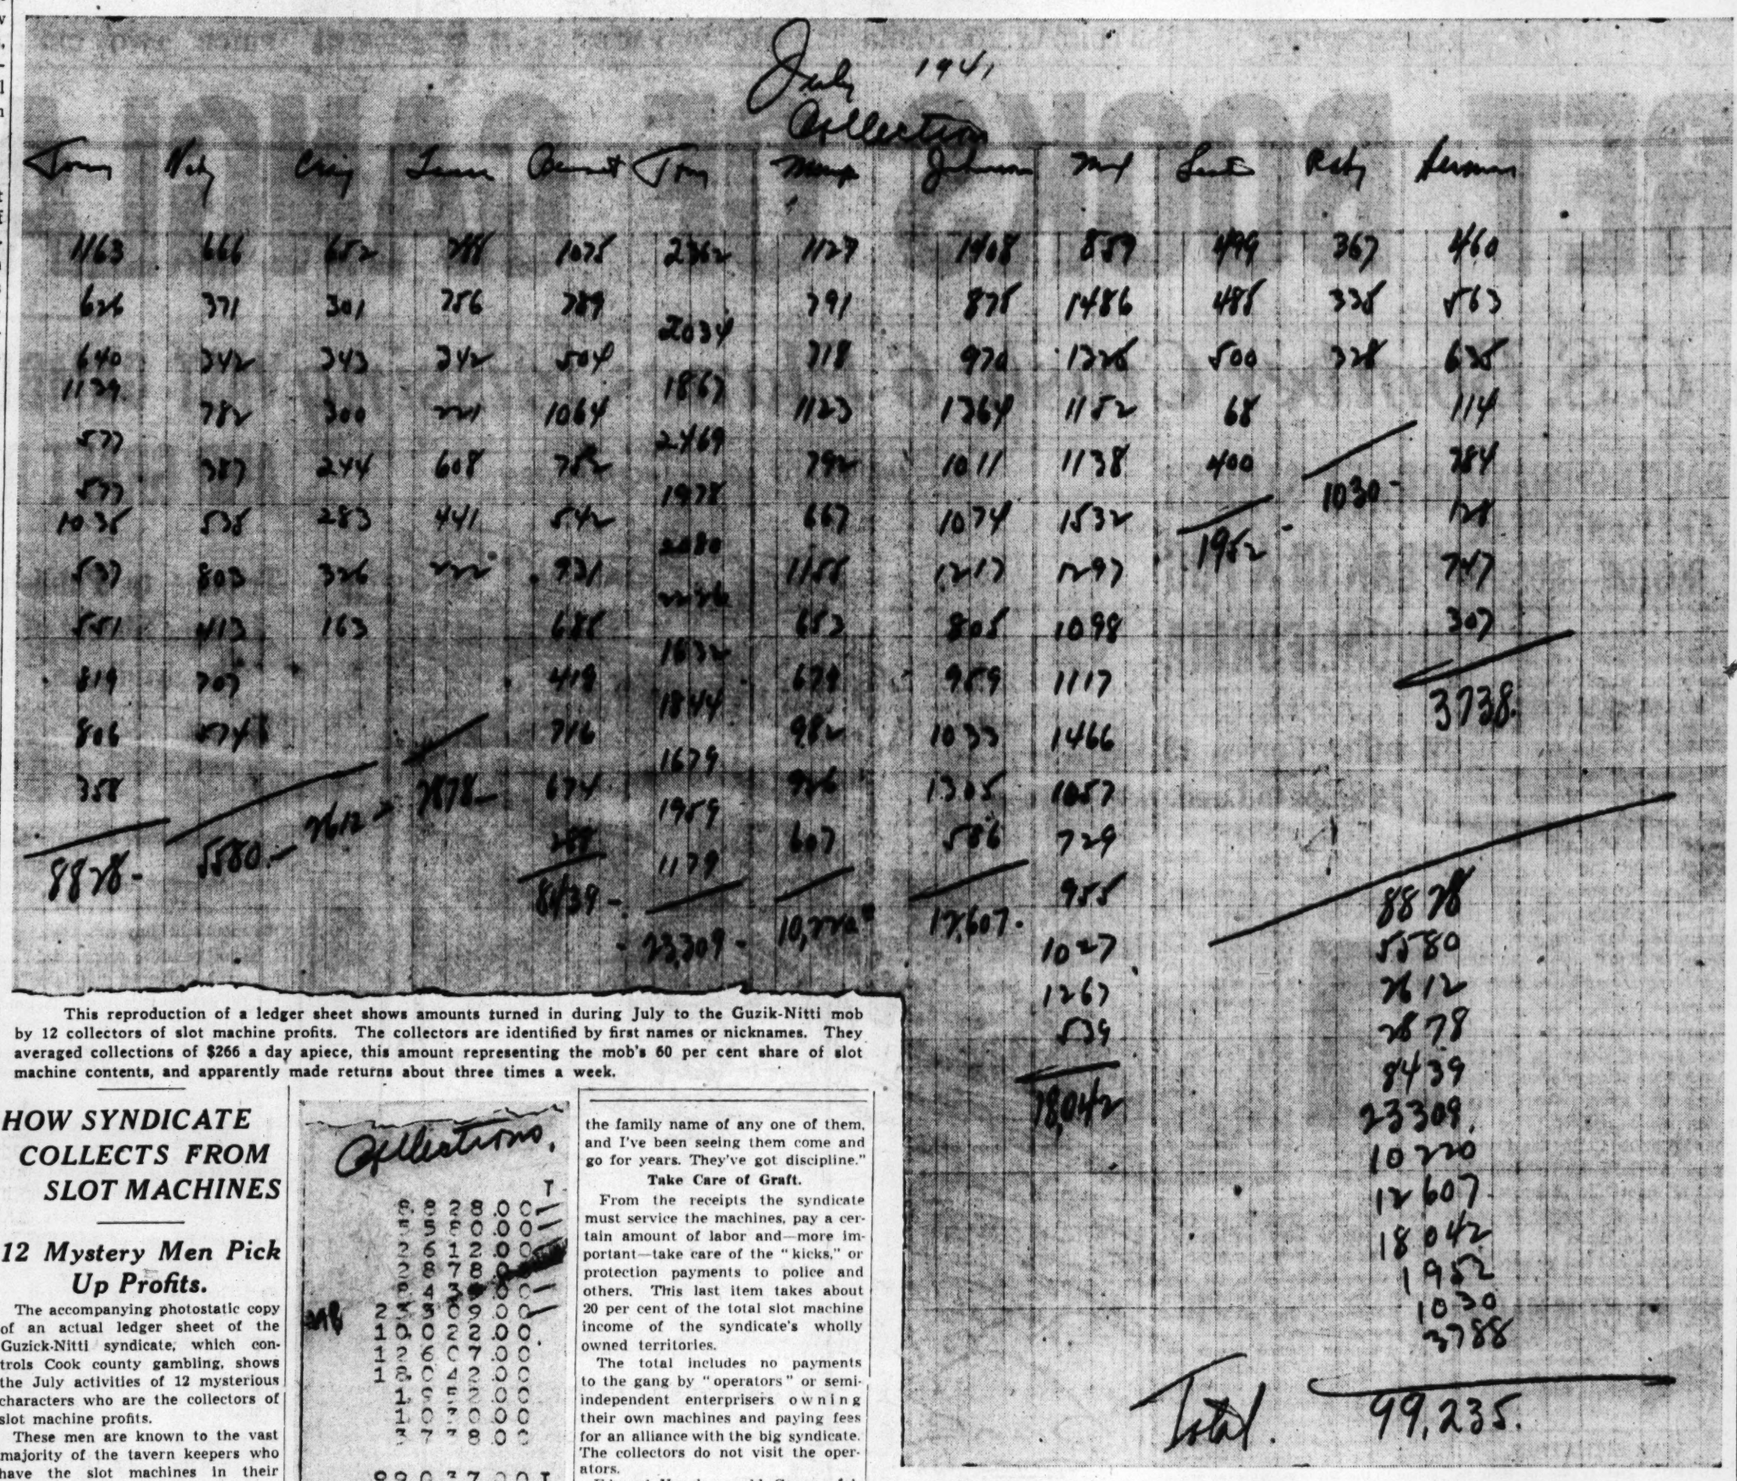

SHEET NO. 5—This sheet carries few figures but is one of the most important in the collection. It is the recapitulation sheet. On it is listed the gross income brought into the syndicate's treasury by the 12 collectors, sent in to the gang's bosses by the subcontractors; the pay roll; the miscellaneous expenses; the division of profits, and the graft paid for protection. And this brings us to:

SHEET NO. 6—The heading on this sheet is "July, 1941—Kick Outs." This is the most important record of all. Filling the length of the yellow ledger sheet is a column of names, nicknames, and names of villages and towns. Opposite these names are amounts of money ranging from $50 to $5,500.

These are the protection payments. This is the graft paid by the syndicate to keep trouble away from the syndicate slot machine operators. This list will be printed by the Tribune in a subsequent issue. Tomorrow's newspaper will tell in detail the money paid by the smaller gangs which operate thru and with the big syndicate. Another photostatic copy of the syndicate's financial reports will be printed.

Ledger Sheet of Gambling Syndicate Showing July Collections of Slot Machine Profits

This reproduction of a ledger sheet shows amounts turned in during July to the Guzik-Nitti mob by 12 collectors of slot machine profits. The collectors are identified by first names or nicknames. They averaged collections of $266 a day apiece, this amount representing the mob's 60 per cent share of slot machine contents, and apparently made returns about three times a week.

HOW SYNDICATE COLLECTS FROM SLOT MACHINES

12 Mystery Men Pick Up Profits.

The accompanying photostatic copy of an actual ledger sheet of the Guzik-Nitti syndicate, which controls Cook county gambling, shows the July activities of 12 mysterious characters who are the collectors of slot machine profits.

These men are known to the vast majority of the tavern keepers who have the slot machines in their saloons only by the first names carried on the sheet. In the saloons these collectors, a survey made by THE TRIBUNE shows, have nothing to do with patrons and keep their relations with the tavern keeper on a strictly business basis. They are neatly dressed, inconspicuous young men who have work to do and waste a minimum of time doing it.

Thousands of Machines.

They keep busy. They must open and tally thousands of machines each week, for their bosses own and operate the great proportion of the one armed bandits in the suburban and rural areas of the county. [Slot machines are not permitted in the city limits.] The $99,235 the collectors turned in during July—an average of $266 a day per collector—represents only three-fifths of the gross profit on the syndicate's wholly owned machines. Forty per cent goes to the tavern keeper, which means an added take from the slot players of $66,156. The county's slot machine suckers are giving the boys more than $5,000 a day.

The 12 collectors are named in the syndicate's ledger sheet as Tom, Nicky [Nicky?] Craig, Lem, Bennet, Tony, Murp, Johnson, Max, Lester, Ricky [Rocky?], and Herman. Tony was the prize collector of the month with $23,309, and Max was second with $18,042. Rocky collected only $1,030. Apparently most of the dozen, who are paid $60 a week, make returns to the syndicate bosses three times a week.

Part of adding machine slip which was attached to the ledger sheet, a tabulation of total collections in July.

Frequently Change Territories.

To keep them on their toes, the gang bosses frequently change their territories. The approved system of accounting makes it nearly impossible for the collectors to cheat on the sums they handle.

Their usual procedure is to go into the taverns when business is dull and they are usually seen by few customers. The collector has the key to the coin box. He unlocks it and splits the proceeds with the house—60 per cent for the syndicate, 40 for the tavern keeper. Then he makes out a memorandum in triplicate. One copy goes to the tavern owner, one to the syndicate, and one is retained by the collector.

"The collectors are unsociable guys," said one bartender. "They don't stop to talk and they don't want any questions. I never knew the family name of any one of them, and I've been seeing them come and go for years. They've got discipline."

Take Care of Graft.

From the receipts the syndicate must service the machines, pay a certain amount of labor and—more important—take care of the "kicks," or protection payments to police and others. This last item takes about 20 per cent of the total slot machine income of the syndicate's wholly owned territories.

The total includes no payments to the gang by "operators" or semi-independent enterprisers owning their own machines and paying fees for an alliance with the big syndicate. The collectors do not visit the operators.

Edward Vogel, an old Capone follower, is general manager of the syndicate's slot machine business and boss of the collectors.

ISSUES WARRANT FOR MOTHER WHO LEFT 4 CHILDREN

A warrant for the arrest of Mrs. Rose Palmer, 29 years old, of 4611 North Ashland avenue, who left her four small children in their flat Thursday because she could no longer support them, was issued yesterday by Judge Jay A. Schiller in the Court of Domestic Relations. Two of the children, Richard, 3 years old, and Dawn, 5 months, are being cared for in St. Vincent's orphanage. Robert Jr., 5, and Beverly, 4, are in St. Joseph's Home for the Friendless, 739 East 35th street. The father, Robert, 25, deserted the family a year ago, according to his mother, Mrs. Charles Pearson, 915 Belle Plaine avenue.

PEP RALLY GETS OUT OF HAND; 20 STUDENTS SEIZED

Pre-football game disturbances by Chicago high school students continued last night with the result that 20 pupils of Taft High school were locked up in the Jefferson Park police station.

Police said that nearly a thousand students gathered at the school, at Natoma and Bryn Mawr avenues, for a pep meeting before the game with Carl Schurz High today. When police, mindful of the damage done at other rallies, asked them to move on, they formed a parade down Northwest highway to Foster avenue.

On the way they gathered boxes and fences. Then at the busy Foster intersection, they built fires and tied up traffic. The arrests followed. The students were held until their parents called for them. Police said that in recent weeks extensive damage has been done to garages and homes by students of Schurz, Lake View, and Waller High schools.

$25,000 FIRE TIES UP BRIDGE.

Wilmington, Del., Oct. 24 (AP).—Fire today put the 500 foot Pennsylvania railroad bridge over Christina river out of commission and caused damage estimated at $25,000. Power cables broke and fell into the river when the supports burned.

Gunmen Rob Drug Store; Slug Owner, 2 Others

Two gunmen last night took $50 from a drug store at 2635 Peterson road, slugging three persons before they departed. The victims, none of them seriously hurt, were Frank C. Aumann, 65 years old, owner of the store; his son, Norman, 35, and Gerald Rosenfield, 14, of 6234 North Francisco avenue, a customer.

CRYSTAL LAKE CADET DIES AS PLANES COLLIDE

John Thomas von Harz, 22 years old, of Crystal Lake, a naval aviation cadet, was killed yesterday in the collision of two training planes about 10 miles south of Corpus Christi, Tex., according to word received here. Cadet Gordon J. Wagner, pilot of the second plane, was unhurt.

Von Harz lived with his mother, Mrs. Honore von Harz, and an uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Hennigan. He attended high school in Prarie du Chien, Wis., where he played football and baseball and was a captain in the ROTC. He was graduated last year from Notre Dame university and worked in Chicago for a while, living at 411 Blackhawk street.

He volunteered for the naval air corps in June or July and began training in August. Surviving besides his mother are a sister, Honore, and two brothers, James and Benjamin. Funeral services are tentatively set for Wednesday.

EX-FELON STEALS CAR; CHASED BY POLICE; WOUNDED

An ex-convict last night had a bullet wound in the thigh and a complaint signed against him charging theft of an automobile as mementos of a police chase earlier in the day. The prisoner is Richard Paryz, 24, of 733 South State street.

Chased by a police squad when he drove past a stop sign, Paryz jumped from the car when he drove into a dead end street at 18th street and Wentworth avenue. He then was shot by Policeman Thomas Rowan as he fled over a railroad embankment. James M. Costello of Milwaukee, from whom the car was stolen, signed the complaint.

Paryz's police record showed he was released last June from the county jail after serving six months on a tampering charge and that he had served two years in a Missouri penitentiary for grand larceny.

FRENCH CUT MEAT RATIONS FOURTH IN NEW SHORTAGE

VICHY, France, Oct. 24 (AP).—The government announced drastic new restrictions tonight to meet a growing food shortage, ordering meat rations reduced by one-fourth and delicatessen foods by one-third.

A decree, effective tomorrow, cuts down the number of meat dishes which may be served in a week from four to three and the number of delicatessen courses from three to two.

Unused tickets for all food henceforth may not be used for double portions later, as has been the custom.

STEAL 1,500 POUNDS OF TYPE.

The Rev. Father Patrick Donahue reported to police yesterday that burglars carried away 1,500 pounds of type valued at $200 from the print shop of the Mission of Our Lady of Mercy at 1140 West Jackson boulevard.

EARLIER DEPARTURE OF BURLINGTON TRAINS.

Effective Sunday, Oct. 26, Burlington Route Train No. 5-55, the Ak-Sar-Ben for Omaha-Lincoln and intermediate points and the American Royal for Kansas City-St. Joseph and intermediate points, will leave Chicago at 6:00 P. M. [instead of 6:30 P. M.]—Adv.

SCUFFLE FATAL TO MATE; WIDOW PRESSES CLAIM

Oral arguments in an unusual dispute involving claims for benefits under the workmen's compensation law were completed yesterday before the Illinois industrial commission. The case involved Norman Andrews, an employé of the Reif Furniture Mart, Springfield, who died last December of injuries received in a scuffle with a fellow employé during business hours.

Andrews' widow claims she should receive benefits under the workmen's compensation act. She was awarded $3,204 in July by George B. Marvel, arbitrator for the commission, but the furniture concern appealed the award to the commission, sitting as a whole, on the ground that the scuffle was not part of Andrews' employment.

Keith Dressendorfer, attorney for Mrs. Andrews, argued at yesterday's hearing that the company is liable because Andrews was killed while at work. Alfred J. Borah, chairman of the commission, said this is the first case of its kind in his memory. He said the commission would make a thoro study before ruling on it.

SHERIDAN SCHOOL GROUP WILL MEET IN OTTAWA TODAY

The first meeting of the commission which is to complete the Sheridan school for boys, a branch of the state training school near St. Charles, will be held today in Ottawa. After gathering in a hotel there, members will inspect the school, on the Fox river near Ottawa. Sen. Thomas P. Gunning [R., Princeton] headed the 15 member commission which launched the Sheridan branch as a security institution for the type of boys who continually break out of the school near St. Charles. He was placed on the new commission and may be elected chairman. Four other senators, five representatives, and five civilians named by Gov. Green complete the membership.

JACK GUZIK NOW IS NO. 1 MAN OF GANG OVERLORDS

Here Are the Records of 4 Syndicate Heads.

No. 1. JACK GUZIK.
No. 2. FRANK NITTI.
No. 3. MURRAY HUMPHREYS.
No. 4. EDWARD VOGEL.

Those are the names that head the new Who's Who of the underworld gambling syndicate that has preyed on Cook county for the last 20 years. Their empire was built on vice, graft, and gambling. Last night it was revealed for the first time that it is Guzik who wears the crown of No. 1 man.

Nitti, so it was learned yesterday when the secret financial papers of the gang came into the possession of THE TRIBUNE, had occupied Capone's throne, but ill health recently forced him to abdicate in favor of Guzik. The new monarch of infamy, once a petty figure of portly appearance, but now of reduced girth but not increased stature, like Al Capone is a graduate of the brothels.

Once a Brewery Operator.

In 1924 Jack Guzik was operating a wildcat miniature brewery at 2340 South Wabash avenue, a short distance from the vice resorts then being run by his brother Harry and by Capone. At that time John Torrio, now in prison, was the man to whom both Capone and Guzik made obeisance.

In 1930 the government accused Guzik of evading income taxes in the amount of $200,000. That represented a percentage on immense revenues traced to him as a henchman of Capone. He was rated as a millionaire. He was convicted and sentenced to 5 years imprisonment and fined $17,500. He planked down the cash for the fine and went to prison after losing an appeal.

Guzik was released from the Lewisburg, Pa., federal peninteniary on Dec. 15, 1935, after serving the full sentence. He had been denied a parole. After his release the government took steps to collect more than $600,000 from him as taxes due on income traced to him.

Indicted Last Year.

Upon Guzik's return to Chicago he took charge of loop gambling. He was indicted last year by the federal government for a violation of the government's communication act by the illegal transmission of horse race news. This charge was dropped.

Nitti, now the No. 2 man of the mob, is 56 years old. He was born in Italy. He is sometimes called Nitto and on some of his arrest slips he is listed as Nitto.

In 1930 Nitti, then the lord treasurer of Emperor Capone's realm, was indicted by the federal government as a tax cheater. The government said he owed taxes for the years 1925, 1926, and 1927 on known income totaling $742,887. The tax due was $277,000.

The government put a price on Nitti's head when it was reported he had fled to Italy on a fake passport. He returned, was trapped by federal agents, and brought here for trial. He was convicted. His sentence was 18 months in Leavenworth penitentiary.

Shot by Mayor's Guards.

Nitti came back from prison while Anton Cermak was mayor of Chicago. Two of Mayor Cermak's bodyguards were Detectives Harry Lang and Harry Miller. On the afternoon of Dec. 19, 1932, Detectives Lang and Miller shot Nitti. The detectives had gone to Nitti's headquarters in a downtown office building and their first story was that Nitti was shot while resisting arrest.

The two detectives were lauded as heroes. Then, a few months later Mayor Cermak was shot fatally while in Miami, Fla.

After Cermak's death Detectives Lang and Miller were subjected to further interrogation. It was whispered that they had been offered $15,000 to kill Nitti. Miller said he heard that such an offer had been made to Lang. The latter denied it. Lang, as the man who fired the shot at Nitti, was indicted and convicted of assault with intent to murder, but a new trial was granted him and the charge was dropped. Lang and Miller were both discharged from the police force.

Becomes the Top Man.

Nitti recovered and his place in Chicago gangland society was established. He was unquestionably the top man in the underworld. He took his place as the guiding spirit of as many illegitimate affairs.

In 1937 State's Attorney Courtney said gambling and vice in Cook county was under the control of Nitti, William R. Skidmore, Charles Fischetti, Louis [Little New York] Campagna, Lawrence [Dago] Mangano, Danny Stanton, and Edward Vogel.

In 1940 Nitti was named by George McLane, then business agent of the bartenders' union, as the chief figure in a plot by gangsters to dominate, operate, and loot dozens of labor unions. He said Nitti was the boss of the gang of which George Browne, president of the motion picture operators and stage employés' union, and Willie Bioff, were subordinates. Browne and Bioff are now on trial in New York City as million dollar extortioners.

No. 3 Man is Humphreys.

Gangster No. 3, the dapper Murray Humphreys, is sometimes called Kidnaper. His brains and boldness are said to have resulted in his rapid promotion in the gang from petty bootlegger to be boss bootlegger while Capone, Guzik, and Nitti were having income tax troubles and serving prison sentences. Later he, too, served a prison sentence for evading income taxes.

Humphrey's police record starts with a sentence of six months in the Bridewell in 1916 as a small time thief. He was 18 years old then and is now 43. He was a beer assistant to John Moore, alias Claude Maddox, in the early days of prohibition. An eye for business got him into the linen supply, laundry and cleaning and dyeing industry 10 years ago. Just a few months ago Mayor Kelly kicked him out of that line.

In 1932 Humphreys appeared as one of the Capone mob who was seeking to control the transportation of the city. The plan was to seize every union of teamsters and chauffeurs in Chicago and to force every truck owner to belong to the Trucking and Transportation Exchange which became known as TNT. The plan had almost matured when State's Attorney Coutney and Mayor Kelly interfered. Reluctantly the mob, under Humphreys, shed their transportation ambitions.

In the gang's internecine wars the name of Humphreys has appeared often and his, and his gangs' foes were found dead beside country roads.

Jailed As Gun Toter.

On Feb. 11, 1933, Humphreys, then the kingfish of all the crime territories and rackets he surveyed, was sentenced to jail for one year for carrying a concealed weapon.

For a few years the exploits of Humphreys would have served as material for hundreds of detective story plots or movie scenarios along the racket line in which tradesmen were whipped into joining associations.

Humphreys' income tax affairs, however, interfered. He was indicted as a tax dodger on June 27, 1933, while he was serving his jail sentence. On Oct. 31, 1934, he entered Leavenworth prison to start serving a sentence of 18 months.

The indictment against him put his known income for 1931 at $88,000 and for 1932 at $60,000. He pleaded guilty and the court asked:

"What about the $50,000 ransom reported to have been paid him as the kidnaper of Robert Fitchie, president of the milk wagon drivers' union."

His attorney, who pictured him to the court as a boy who deserved some consideration for having surrendered, said the government had only the word of Steve Sumner for that $50,000 payment.

Tells of $50,000 Package.

Sumner was secretary-treasurer of the union and later he testified to seeing Humphreys pick up the package of $50,000 which brought about the safe return of the kidnaped union president. The government is still trying to collect its share of that $50,000.

Humphreys never appeared to take much of an interest in the gambling operations of the so-called syndicate in which he was one of a triumvirate. That was a job for the Guziks and their associate, Hymie [Loud Mouth] Levin, he had stated openly.

Vogel, the No. 4 man of the syndicate, at least insofar as its gambling operations outside the city of Chicago were concerned, likes to be seen on the bridle paths, dressed as a gentleman rider. He is 46 years old. When arrested in 1926 he gave his name as George Walters. Another arrest was chalked up against him in New York City in 1930 when he was just a suspect.

Ed Vogel is sometimes confused with George Vogel, who is known to police as Dutch Vogel. The slot machine boss, however, objects to being called Dutch. He is called something less polite by persons with whom he has transacted business.

Boss of Slot Machines.

Vogel's only known affiliation with the organization formed by Capone is in its slot machine department. He is not believed to have any financial interest in its city gambling, its labor union revenues or its commercial piracies. His interests are said to be confined entirely to the slot machine business in Cook county. He is known to be the boss of the collectors and the so-called operators.

Of late Vogel has come to be regarded also as the boss of the juke box racket insofar as the syndicate has invested in music vending machines. Several sluggings brought police and prosecutors into an investigation of this field and they reported that Vogel was gaining ground in the juke box business.

Personalities of the Syndicate

ENGINEER ACQUITTED OF MURDERING HIS WIFE IN PUERTO RICO

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Oct. 24.—Ralph Gedney, a Washington, D. C., engineer engaged on navy defense work here, tonight was acquitted on a first degree murder charge in the killing of his wife, Virginia, last May 2. The acquittal came at the conclusion of the 10th day of the trial and on San Rafael's day, that of Gedney's patron saint.

Gedney, a government engineer for 32 years, was arrested three weeks after his wife's death from an abdominal hemorrhage which the prosecutor alleged resulted from a blow by him. The testimony developed that Mrs. Gedney was a chronic alcoholic, suffering frequent falls which resulted in injuries.

Gedney is the first native American to be tried for murder in Puerto Rico.

STOLEN CAR GETS STUCK IN MUD; SHERIFF SEIZES 2

Because their stolen automobile stuck in the mud of Magnolia road, just east of Gurnee, in Lake county, early Thursday, two young men were seized by Sheriff Thomas E. Kennedy of Lake county yesterday and held on charges of petty larceny. The men identified themselves as John Edward Malone, 20 years old, 747 West 54th place, and Thomas Joseph O'Brien, 26, of 64 West Ontario street.

The automobile was stolen Wednesday night from a parking lot at 205 West Lake street. Later that night the two occupants ordered 17 gallons of gasoline at a filling station on Illinois highway 21, north of Grayslake, Lake county, and drove away without paying, thus providing the basis of the petty larceny charge. Early Thursday the car stuck in the mud and William Depke, owner of a garage in Gurnee, was hired to pull it out. Suspicious, Depke notified the sheriff's office and learned the car was stolen.

When Malone and O'Brien came to claim the car at the garage early yesterday, Depke called Sheriff Kennedy, who rushed to the garage and made the arrests. O'Brien attempted to throw away a .32 caliber revolver.

GROCERY STORE ROBBED.

Two bandits, one with red hair, early yesterday compelled employés and customers of Morris Greenspan's grocery at 3048 Fullerton avenue to lie on the floor while they stole $50.

WINDSORS' HATLESS HABIT IS WORRYING HAT MAKERS IN U. S.

New York, Oct. 24 (AP).—The hatless habits of the duke and duchess of Windsor are troubling the nation's hatters. The duke is more incorrigible than the duchess. Only once since he came to New York has he been seen with a hat, and then he carried it.

A hat maker finally broached the matter to the duke. He pointed out that, by setting a style precedent, the duke might injure the business of a million persons who depend on hat sales for a living.

While the duchess remained at her hotel today, the duke flew to Hartford, Conn, where he toured the United Aircraft corporation's Pratt and Whitney and Hamilton Standard Propeller divisions. The evening schedule included attendance at the diamond ball at the Waldorf-Astoria.

TESTS ORDERED IN INQUEST INTO BROKER'S DEATH

An inquest into the death Thursday night of Leo J. Troy, 58 years old, a retired investment broker, was continued yesterday until Nov. 21 to permit a chemical examination. Troy was found unconscious in his apartment at 1500 Lake Shore drive, and was taken to St. Joseph's hospital, where he died. The widow, Beatrice, and a son, Richard, 16, a high school student, testified that Troy had never threatened to end his life and had no known reason for doing so. Mrs. Troy said her husband had been using sleeping powders recently. She said Troy retired in 1922 after suffering business reverses.

MAKES 5½ MILE PLUNGE BEFORE OPENING CHUTE

Leaves Plane at 30,800 Feet for Free Fall.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

In the brief space of 116 seconds Arthur H. Starnes, 43 years old, veteran Calumet City parachutist, yesterday made the longest free fall ever survived by man. He stepped from an airliner at a height of 30,800 feet above the ground and plummeted for 29,300 feet, or 5½ miles, before ripping open two parachutes and floating safely to earth.

1. Rubinkam Airport.
2. Point of landing.

During that brief interval Starnes took only 14 breaths, eight shallow and six deep. His body swept from a temperature of 46 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit, at his peak altitude, to the 60 degrees above zero at ground level. And at the same time he fell from air so thin that its density was only four pounds a square inch to the approximate 14.7 pounds on the ground.

Landing Is Routine.

When he landed, save for a bruised lip bitten when the shock of the opening parachutes checked his downward plunge, he was unmarked. He was bowled over by wind after he alighted in a pasture at 178th street and Kedzie avenue, but was unharmed. And the numerous delicate instruments hung to his 190 pound frame were intact.

"Everything, it seems, went well," Starnes grinned last night as he went over his experiences with Dr. Andrew C. Ivy, professor of physiology and pharmacology at Northwestern university, who collaborated in the preparations for the feat.

"We've proved that man can make long sustained drops without losing consciousness. We've proved he can fall for long intervals at high speeds—for I was falling at times as fast as 190 miles an hour. And the average speed for my fall was 170 miles an hour, or 258 feet a second during the free drop."

May Benefit Army Flyers.

Starnes said he hopes the information gained from the pneumograph, barometer, stop watch, motion picture camera, and the heart count taken during his fall will be valuable to the military air services. Fighting pilots who may be forced to bail out of their planes in high altitude combat may be properly equipped for the experience as a result of this data, he said.

There is no recognized record for a free fall. The National Aeronautical association's files show the longest previously recorded fall was 25,925 feet by N. Evdokimoff, a Russian, who jumped from a height of 26,575 feet.

The greatest known height from which any parachute jump has been made was 38,713 feet. This also was made by a Russian.

"It's possible that others have fallen from greater heights than I did, and even made free falls," Starnes said. "The Germans and British have been fighting at 35,000 feet for nearly a year."

Keep Contact by Radio.

The flight yesterday was made in the Phillips Petroleum company's Lockheed Lodestar airliner. The flight crew included Clarence Clark, pilot; Will D. Parker and Ira Simmons, co-pilots, and Starnes. They took off from Rubinkam airport at 167th street and Kedzie avenue at 12:10 p. m. and climbed until Starnes jumped, about 2:06 p. m.

Communication between the ground and the plane was kept open over a radio circuit established with a portable ground unit. Starnes talked several times, reporting the height as the plane climbed. Then at 1:59 p. m. Simmons said: "Starnes is standing in the doorway, ready to go."

"All clear now," was the next signal to indicate he had cleared the airplane successfully.

During the fall his goggles frosted over when he flashed thru a cloud. He checked his progress by referring to a sensitive altimeter strapped to his right forearm, raising his goggles for occasional peaks until at the 5,000 foot level the frost evaporated. He pulled his rip cords opening the chutes at 1,500 feet above the ground.

Mathematicians last evening calculated that if he had been falling in a vacuum the entire drop would have been completed in 42 seconds.

Where Bomber Crashed

1. An army bomber hit a peak (cross) yesterday near San Francisco, Cal. 2. Five others were reported missing in fog on their way from March field to Sacramento (heavy line).

DECLARES FIGHT ON NEUTRALITY IS MOVE FOR WAR

The drive to repeal the neutrality act is an effort to circumvent the demands of 80 per cent of the American people to stay out of the war, Rep. Karl Mundt [R., S. D.] declared last night at the first meeting of the newly organized North Side chapter of the America First committee in Belmont hall, 3205 North Clark street.

"Those who propose to project this republic in the war," he said, "expect to parcel out the American soldiers to fight with the Chinese in Asia, the Russians in Europe, the colonials in Africa. If it is war that is wanted, let the President ask for it by a declaration of war. If it is aid short of war let the President keep his election promises and transfer American ships to the British registry so the goods can be delivered at once."

Rep. Mundt will speak again tonight in Shotwell hall, 1442 East 55th street, before the combined south side America First chapters.

650 GRADUATE IN GREAT LAKES NAVY DAY RITE

Graduating exercises for 650 men will open a three day celebration of Navy day at the Great Lakes Naval Training station this morning. Rear Adm. John Downes, commandant of the 9th naval district, announced yesterday. Navy day will be observed officially Monday.

Open house will be held at the training station from 9 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. today, tomorrow, and Monday with exhibits, reviews, sham battles, and training demonstrations as features. The public will be taken on inspection tours by trained escorts, Adm. Downes said.

Navy day in the Chicago area will have as its climax the Navy League's annual dinner Monday night in the Palmer House.

HAPPY ALUMNAE PROVE VALUE OF THE MARY CLUBS

This Fund-Aided Detention Home Needs No Bars.

BY MARCIA WINN.

Two young matrons paid a social call at a gray frame house in Austin the other night. Each carried a baby which she patted and preened. The call was informal, the atmosphere one of delight. Two alumnae of the Mary clubs were returning to show off.

Once, when adolescent wards of the Juvenile court, the two young matrons had been given a home in the old house. Here, victims of broken families, neglect and life in the Chicago slums, they had lived until they were 18. Then, trained to a new, constructive life, they had gone out to work and marriage.

These are two of 1,500 who have been given similar family life and happy homes in the last 27 years thru the Mary Bartelme clubs, founded by Judge Mary Bartelme, first woman judge of the Juvenile court. So anguished was she over the institutional, locked-door, barred-window care given to adolescent girls that she even donated her three story home for the initial Mary club. It is her home at which the two alumnae called.

Aided by Fund.

Little public attention ever has been given to the Mary clubs, which will participate in the proceeds of the current Community Fund drive. It was a quiet undertaking, originally financed by Judge Bartelme's friends, and public attention might have been harmful.

Here were 22 girls at a time, 13 at the Austin home, nine at the Mary club's Evanston club. Some would stay a year, some six months, some four years.

They went to public schools. They went to parties given by their schoolmates. They were given clothes in which they could take pride, necessary spending money. The difference in their home and other institutions for adolescent wards is that it is Cook county's only detention institution without bars.

Hope for Third Home.

The clubs have no endowment, exist only thru contributions and a small annual allotment from the county. Their only assets are the two homes, which are debt free, and their history. They now hope for donations, large or small, which will enable them to establish a third home, one in Chicago near a vocational high school for girls.

This was the problem yesterday when the clubs' board met at the Austin home. "Once the board was made up of wealthy women, who could underwrite anything," Mrs. Roy L. Davis, president, said. "Now we're all just women."

As the meeting adjourned, some of the 13 girls now at the home began to return from school. They were healthy, bright-eyed, gay. One lingered at the walk with a boy in long, wistful banter. Another hurried in with the remark to a board member, "O, do come see my new room."

Her room, shared with two girls, is an upstairs back porch, enclosed and decorated. Candlewick bedspreads were on the beds, ruffled organdy curtains at the windows, a flounced dressing table in one corner, a comfortable desk in another. Plaques and pictures were on the walls, books on the tables.

Atmosphere of Beauty.

The atmosphere was one of quiet, restful beauty. A silver service was on the dining room table, bittersweet in a silver bowl on the sideboard. There was an open piano, a trumpet, a mandolin. Over all presided a kindly matron whom the Austin girls address fondly as "Aunt Anne."

Two small facts bear witness to the Mary clubs' fulfillment of their objectives. One is a sampler made by one of the girls. Stitched roughly on it are the words:

"Home is the place where we grumble the most and are treated the best."

The other is the fact that the alumnae return.

FILLING STATION UNIONS CALLS ON ICKES TO RESIGN

New York, Oct. 24 (AP).—Declaring that Petroleum Coördinator Ickes' gasoline curfew had brought unnecessary hardship to gasoline station attendants and had hindered the defense program, Walter F. Burke, president of local 917, Gasoline Station and Parking Attendants union [AFL], today asked Ickes to resign.

"I believe I echo the sentiments of the American driving public, as well as labor, victimized by the gasoline shortage that never existed and apparently was a figment of your imagination," Burke said in a wire to Ickes. "Your edict has irreparably disturbed the confidence of the American people in their elected and appointive officials and has done more to hinder than advance the national defense program."

[The gasoline situation in the east was still muddled yesterday. Station operators moved to retain the 7 p. m. to 7 a. m. curfew despite the lifting of restrictions, and employes threatened to strike if they did. Details on page 23.]

HUNDREDS HUNT BABY KIDNAPED FROM CARRIAGE

Woman Steals Infant on City's Main Street.

Fitchburg, Mass., Oct. 24 (AP).—A woman kidnaper, believed by police to be deranged, stole 2 months old Kenneth A. McLean Jr. from his carriage today while his mother left him alone for a few minutes to visit a Main street department store.

Police were confronted with two versions of the kidnaping—one that a woman pedestrian had picked the child from his carriage and hurried away; the other that a woman in an automobile drove up, took the baby, and sped from the scene just before the mother emerged from the store.

Police Chief Thomas J. Godley, altho inclined to the former theory, broadcast a 10 state alarm in the event the second version was correct.

Ranks of Searchers Grow.

Meanwhile, after a conference with Mayor Alfred Woolacott, he organized a searching party, and its ranks swelled to 400 as volunteers including American Legionnaires, Boy Scouts, and high school students offered their services. The search covered all sections of the city and nearby communities, but failed to yield any clews.

Godley explained that the kidnaper apparently was deranged and obsessed by a mother fixation. Such a person, he said, might suddenly realize what she had done and abandon the baby immediately.

The parents of the child, married a year and a half, are in modest circumstances. The father is employed as a machinist's helper. The boy was their only child.

He was dressed in a white sweater and bonnet and covered with a blue blanket, which also was taken.

Broadcasts Feeding Formula.

Weighing nine and one-half pounds, the boy has brownish red hair, brown eyes, and medium complexion. He has a birthmark, similar to a bruise, on the small of his back.

Dr. Herbert Tuck, who had been treating the child, said he was fed every three hours with a formula of six ounces of milk and corn syrup.

Police have two descriptions of the kidnaper, which tally in every detail except weight.

A waitress in a nearby restaurant described her as about five feet, five inches tall, weighing about 140 pounds, and wearing a black hat. A clothing store clerk across the street gave the same description but estimated her weight at 190.

SAYS 15,000 NAZI WOUNDED ARRIVE IN WARSAW DAILY

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Oct. 24 (AP).—A visitor from Warsaw said today that more than 15,000 German wounded a day have been arriving in Warsaw from the central and northern Russian fronts.

Independent reports from a Czecho-Slovak source said civilians had been evacuated from every hospital in three Slovakian towns—Ruzomberok, Zilina, and Persoff—to make way for German wounded from Russia.

The same source said clashes occurred recently in the Vah valley in Slovakia between German troops and Slovakian forces who retired from the Russian war.

Emergency measures in Bombay included the banning of the assembly of more than five persons and the carrying of lethal weapons in certain areas.

WIDOW AND TWO NEGROES INHERIT 7 MILLION CASH

Illiterate Indian's Estate Settled by Court.

Sapulpa, Okla., Oct. 24 (AP).—The vast oil fortune that flowed from the rocky, 160 acre land allotment of an illiterate Creek Indian woman was awarded today to a Claremore, Okla., widow and two Negro packing plant workers of Kansas City, Mo.

Cash amounting to $7,413,286 together with valuable oil-producing properties make up the estate which District Judge C. O. Beavers held should go to Ozora Alexander Lee, 65 years old, Willie Mayweather, 33, and Floyd Mayweather, 37, brothers. The ruling climaxed a 10 year lawsuit.

Mrs. Lee, who gets half the estate, was a half sister of Lete Kolvin, the Indian woman to whom the land originally was allotted. The Mayweathers, who will share the other half, are nephews of Joe Stevens, Lete's Negro husband.

Oil Companies Must Pay.

The Sinclair and Minnehoma oil companies, defendants in the lawsuit, were instructed to pay the heirs the $7,413,286 cash, which represents royalties on oil and gas produced from the land since 1915. Judge Beavers also ordered the companies to immediately surrender control of the land, located between Drumright and Oilton, a gasoline plant, and 15 producing wells.

Testimony brought out this story:

Lete Kolvin and Joe Stevens were married one year before she received her land allotment. They lived on the land until 1906 when it was leased out for farming purposes. The lease was renewed in 1911 for five more years.

Lease Sold; Oil Found.

In 1915 the lessee sold his lease to two oil drilling companies for $600 and oil was discovered. The drilling companies assigned the lease to the Sinclair and Minnehoma companies and in 1916, when the lease expired, Lete Kolvin began efforts to regain possession of the land.

Lete died in 1930 and her husband died in 1931. The Mayweathers and Anderson Stevens, a brother of Joe Stevens, then filed suit against the oil companies, charging them with taking oil from the property without authority. While the suit was pending, Anderson Stevens died.

Judge Beavers held the estate should be divided equally between the heirs of Lete Kolvin and Joe Stevens. Mrs. Lee was named the leading heir of Lete and the Mayweathers the nearest relatives of Stevens.

3 RED MARSHALS IMPRISONED IN MOSCOW: NAZIS

[Copyright: 1941: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Oct. 24.—DNB, official German news agency, reported today that three soviet marshals—Klementi Voroshilov, Semeon Budenny, and Semeon Timoshenko—had been confined to Lubljanka prison in Moscow after having been relieved of their commands. Marshal Voroshilov was said to have been "done away with."

Commenting on a British radio report that Marshal Timoshenko had been given a new command on the southern front, an official spokesman said that "our information does not confirm this."

The Berlin press printed the reports unquestioningly under headlines such as that of the official Voelkischer Beobachter: "Heads Are Rolling at Stalin's Command." Some newspapers said the marshals had "been handed over to the hangman." The Lokal-Anzeiger asserted that "a new wave of blood and terror is intended to resurrect the soviets from their defeat."

GERMANY BARS EXTRA WAGES TO POLISH LABORERS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 24.—Polish laborers employed in Germany are to be barred from any bonuses or extra compensation usually granted to other workers. Reichsminister of Labor Franz Seldte has decreed they will be paid only for work actually performed at the lowest rates legally permissible.

No extra pay will be granted to a Polish worker to assist his family in case of childbirth, death, or marriage, nor will he receive presents from his employers at jubilees and anniversaries.

In spite of advancing age or long and faithful services, a Polish employé will not be allowed an extra day of vacation. If employed out of town he may receive not more than one mark [about 40 cents] a day for expenses. The only chance a Pole has to earn an extra penny is thru exceptional output.

NAZIS HAMMER AT MOSCOW IN MAZE OF MINES

Battle Thru Barricades in Village Streets.

BERLIN, Oct. 24 (AP).—German troops hammered closer to Moscow tonight across a maze of snow covered land mines and village street barricades, and drove into the rich industrial Donetz basin in the south as Russian losses spiralled into "numerous millions," German war dispatches said.

Military sources who yesterday said their troops were within 35 miles of Moscow on the south and southwest assumed that a decisive hour for the soviet capital was near, and said the shakeup in the Red command was "a declaration of military bankruptcy."

German reporters, however, told how the Russians were "throwing constantly fresh troops" into the battle for Moscow, and the high command had little to say about the entire front.

Reds Blast Buildings.

The Russians were reported blasting buildings to open firing fields and to destroy cover which might serve the advancing Germans, DNB, official news agency, said.

A spokesman was unable to confirm one report in Berlin that some German tank spearheads were at the outer edge of Moscow. "The situation on the whole front is ripening," he said.

"Along an active 1,200 kilometer front, from Lake Ilmen in the north to the Sea of Azov, German forces are in motion, either attacking or pursuing. The front is fluid except at Leningrad, which is in a state of complete siege."

Unfavorable weather hindered but did not check the German drives, he said.

Spaniards Repel Reds.

The Spanish "blue division" fighting with the axis' armies, the high command said, repelled a soviet counterattack "in the north," inflicting heavy casualties and taking several hundred prisoners.

Regarding the Donetz basin drive [which the Russians admit is alarming in all sectors] the Germans had little to say. The authorized commentary, Dienst aus Deutschland, merely said "the liberation of the Donetz basin is imminent."

Asked about statements that soviet industries were being moved to Siberia to continue a long war, the German spokesman said "that's too far away and help expectable from that quarter is too little."

Russian losses up to Oct. 1 were set by DNB at 260 divisions [from 3,900,000 to 4,680,000 men].

[German losses were not mentioned by DNB, but a Russian spokesman declared the Germans had lost more men than they lost in the entire World war. That total was 5,989,758 men. Hence the claimed casualties on both sides totalled 10 million men.]

REDS BATTLE FOE ON 2 APPROACHES TO VITAL ROSTOV

Claim Nazis Are Repulsed Near Moscow.

MOSCOW, Oct. 25 [Saturday]—(AP).—German forces stabbing across the Donetz basin encountered stubbornly resisting Red army defenders yesterday in the vicinity of Makeevka, 10 miles east of the iron producing center of Stalino and about 70 miles northwest of Rostov, gateway to the Caucasus, the soviet information bureau announced today.

The communique, broadcast by Tass, official news agency, over the Moscow radio, said another German force farther south was heavily engaged in the direction of Taganrog, port of the Sea of Azov, some 40 miles west of Rostov.

[The official announcement indicated that the fighting had progressed beyond Stalino, the capture of which the Russians have not admitted, altho it has been claimed by the Germans.]

On the Moscow front, the Russians said fierce German attacks had been repulsed in the Mozhaisk and Maloyaoslavets sectors, 57 miles and 65 miles west and southwest of the capital. Here the Nazis were declared to have lost heavily in men and machines.

In German air attacks yesterday on Moscow itself 17 of the raiders were declared downed near the city.

Assemble New Armies.

KUIBYSHEV, Russia, Oct. 24 (AP).—Russian leadership, acknowledging hard going near Moscow and a crisis on the southern flank, began assembling vast new armies today among the silent soviet millions who have yet to fire a shot in this war, and challenged the invaders to a total struggle of annihilation in these words:

"We shall see how long they can last. We can last for years!"

This was the grand tactic prepared here in Kuibyshev, where many government departments have been set up, and in Moscow, where Josef Stalin directs the war effort.

Marshals Form New Forces.

Somewhere back of the swaying lines before Moscow and before Rostov in the far southern Ukraine, the red marshals, Semeon Budenny and Klementi Voroshilov, set out to form great, fresh fighting forces.

On the fronts before Moscow, Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's successor, Gen. Gregory K. Zhukov, was struggling with bloody counterattacks to hold the Nazis. While an initial breakthru was acknowledged in one sector, official press dispatches declared that the Nazi salient was subsequently smashed by Russian tanks.

For the first time, Russian accounts spoke of Finnish and Rumanian troops as fighting alongside the Germans in this theater.

Continued heavy fighting about 100 miles below Leningrad, where the Russians were holding a line east of the Volkhov river, also was reported. The newspaper Pravda asserted that new German thrusts had been smashed with at least 2,500 Nazi casualties and that two villages had been regained in Russian counterattacks.

SEARCH FOR PEACE

In a fireside chat on Oct. 12, 1937, President Roosevelt said:

"Meanwhile, remember that from 1913 to 1921 I was fairly close to world events, and in that period, while I learned much of what to do, I also learned much of what not to do.

"The common sense, the intelligence of America agree with my statement that 'America hates war. America hopes for peace. Therefore, America actively engages in the search for peace.'"

U. S. TO DOUBLE TANK OUTPUT, SAYS ROOSEVELT

Totals and Destinations Kept Secret.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24.—President Roosevelt today announced he expects to give congress a detailed report on the number of machines and the amount of material which will be needed for American preparedness and the lend-lease program.

He revealed that studies have been going on for two or three months to estimate as accurately as possible the armament needs. The estimates will be given to congress late this fall or at least in his annual message on the state of the Union, which will be delivered soon after Jan. 1.

Goal Kept Secret.

Mr. Roosevelt disclosed he is preparing to submit a definite arms and aid program to the nation in announcing tank production is to be doubled soon and in instructing the Office of Production Management to cease publication of airplane production figures because such information is of value to axis powers.

From the launching of the rearmament program the administration has refused to reveal its goal, if any, by various categories of arms. Altho the arms commitment is near 65 billion dollars, the administration never has announced the size of the army it ultimately hopes to arm.

The present pace of spending and allocations is large enough to create the most formidable army the world ever has seen—an army of 10 million men with an air force of 2 million men and 80,000 planes, an armored force of 100 divisions with 45,000 tanks and 400 infantry divisions—and have billions left over.

Most Urgent Item.

In connection with his order to double tank production the President refused to give any figures other than to say his step-up contemplates going beyond the increase from 1,000 to 2,000 tanks a month recently envisioned by William S. Knudsen, OPM co-director.

Tanks are the most urgent item on the program of extending lend-lease operations on the basis of the 5 billion 895 million dollar appropriation soon to be signed by the President.

The President would not say whether the increase in tank production is to be devoted to the American army or is to go to Britain.

The present war has taught that tanks are more important in general strategy than had been believed at the outbreak of the conflict. This information forced revision of the tank program laid out by the army last spring and is again effecting upward revision of production.

During questioning on the proposed OPM ban on airplane production figures, Mr. Roosevelt said announcement probably will be made that output is steadily increasing and that it will be told whether delivery is up to or ahead of schedule.

The latest announced figure of airplane production was 1,914 planes for September.

BOY ARSONIST TO BE EXAMINED.

Chester Woz, 18 years old, of 1618 Augusta boulevard, who confessed setting four fires in Wells High school, where he was a night student, yesterday was ordered by Municipal Judge George L. Quilici to be examined by court psychiatrist.

WARSHIP TRADED TO BRITISH SUNK BY NAZI TORPEDO

American in the Royal Navy Killed.

LONDON, Oct. 24 (AP).—The 1,190 ton British destroyer Broadwater, formerly the U. S. S. Mason, has been torpedoed and sunk while on escort duty in the north Atlantic, and an American volunteer aboard, Lieut. John S. Parker of Boston, has been killed, the British admiralty announced tonight.

The admiralty also announced that a British submarine in the central Mediterranean had torpedoed and probably sunk an Italian armed merchant cruiser of the 5,413 ton Citta di Genova class.

A brief communique did not mention any survivors from the Broadwater, normal complement of which was about 140 men.

Had Sunk a Submarine.

"The next of kin of casualties have been informed," the communique said.

On the day before she herself was struck the Broadwater had attacked and probably destroyed a U-boat, the admiralty said.

Lieut. Parker, 52, was the first American serving as a British naval officer to lose his life by enemy action. He was a member of the volunteer reserve.

Second Traded Warship Sunk.

The Broadwater was the second of the 50 American destroyers traded to Britain for naval bases to be sunk. The first was the Hopewell, renamed the Bath by the British.

Last Saturday the German high command said 10 merchantmen and two British destroyers had been sunk out of a strongly protected convoy from North America. The same day the Netherlands admiralty announced the loss of an unidentified escort boat. Subsequently the German agency DNB said it was believed that one of the two destroyers sunk was a former American ship.

RAF Downs 7 Nazi Planes

The RAF set huge fires which sent flames 100 feet into the air on the French shore tonight at Cap Griz Nez, where German long range guns are located, shore watchers said.

The attack upon the cross channel gun positions came after earlier British raiders drew one of the heaviest Nazi anti-aircraft barrages seen from the Folkstone area in weeks.

The RAF shot down seven German pursuit planes without a British loss, the air ministry said. One British craft on patrol was downed later.

British raiders last night attacked the ports of Brest, Cherbourg, and le Havre and targets in northwest Germany.

[The Germans mentioned Hamburg and Kiel among the German cities attacked but said damage was slight.]

Another raid on Naples, Italy, was carried out by heavy bombers Wednesday night and Thursday morning, with new fires set in the railway station area.

German raiders bombed areas in southwest England tonight, trapping some persons in the wreckage of their homes. Other raiders were over East Anglia, South Wales and Liverpool.

German Civilians Killed.

80 SAFE AFTER NIGHT ON CRUMBLING ISLE IN RIO GRANDE FLOOD

RIO RICO, Mexico, Oct. 24 (AP).—Eighty persons marooned overnight on a crumbling island in the middle of the rain-swollen Rio Grande reached safety today. Rescue boats removed some of the endangered persons, while others waded to shore.

The still-rising river threatened the Mexican approach to the $66,000 International bridge linking Rio Rico with Mercedes, Tex.

4 YOUNG WOMEN AMONG CREW OF RUSS FREIGHTER

New York, Oct. 24 (AP).—Among 41 members of the crew of the 3,771 ton Odessa freighter Petrovski now at a Brooklyn pier loading American supplies for Russia, are four young women, including a dark, pretty 20 year old Siberian-born doctor—Maria Vinogradova.

Married to a first class seaman aboard the ship, she has a serious job in the event the guns begin to play. Her assignment is to take a position with the gun crew to render first aid in case of injury.

Capt. Fedot Vlasov, 52, who brought his loaded ship here from Vladivostok after a three month voyage, will have the bridge armored with steel and concrete for protection against machine gun bullets.

The girls, all in their middle 20's serve as stewardesses at meal time, lend a hand on deck at chipping and painting and do the odd jobs necessary to keep a vessel shipshape.

Jury Recommends Death for Capital Rape-Killer

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24 (AP).—Jarvis Roosevelt Catoe, 36 year old Negro who police said confessed raping and killing seven women, was convicted today of the rape and murder of Mrs. Rose Abramowitz. The jury recommended the death penalty. Mrs. Abramowitz, formerly of Kansas City, Mo., was a bride of only a month. Catoe confessed he raped and killed her after she had called him into her apartment to wax the floors.

EXPLODING TIME BOMB KILLS 50 IN ODESSA

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Oct. 24 (AP).—A time bomb left behind by the Russian forces which abandoned Odessa last week has killed 50 axis army and navy officers, including a Rumanian general, official military dispatches said tonight.

The Rumanian general officer killed was named Glogojeanu. [Some dispatches identified him as the Rumanian commandant in Odessa.]

Two German naval officers also were among the victims; most of the others were believed to have been Rumanians.

The dispatches described the scene of the explosion as near a former GPU [secret police] headquarters in Odessa, but did not precisely identify the establishment which was blown up.

Rumanian troops strengthened by German detachments took Odessa, some of the Russian defenders escaping by sea after a two months' siege.

PETAIN REPORTED OFFERING SELF AS NAZI HOSTAGE

100 Doomed Frenchmen Get Hitler Reprieve.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VICHY, France, Oct. 24.—Reports circulated in Vichy today that Marshal Petain desired to surrender himself to the Germans as a hostage to avoid further mass shootings of Frenchmen in retaliation for the slaying of two German officers. Subordinates of the 85 year old chief of state refused to comment on these reports.

Marshal Petain.

Tonight, on the first anniversary of the meeting between Petain and Adolf Hitler at Montoire, France, when the collaboration policy was started, this odd announcement was issued:

"It is rumored in Vichy that Marshal Petain wished to give himself up as a hostage in the occupied zone to prevent additional executions planned as a result of attacks at Nantes and Bordeaux. The marshal's cabinet has no declaration to make on the subject."

Marshal Petain, hero of Verdun, has made repeated but futile appeals to the people to halt attacks on German soldiers and to denounce and surrender the attackers.

Fifty More Hostages Shot.

Fifty more French hostages were shot in Bordeaux this morning in the tragic balancing of books between the French and the Germans over the slaying of Lieut. Col. Paul Ffiedrich Hotz in Nantes Monday and of a German military lawyer named Reimers in Bordeaux the next day. Fifty hostages already had been shot at Nantes and 100 more face death—50 in each city—in the 100 to 1 reprisals ordered by the Nazis if the real killers of these officers are not found.

Hitler himself gave these 100 hostages a few more days of life today as a result of an appeal from French authorities. Originally it had been planned to kill 50 more Nantes hostages unless the real assassins had been apprehended by midnight last night, but the deadline has been extended until midnight Monday. The Bordeaux hostages, who were doomed to die if the real killers have not been captured by Sunday midnight, now have until next Wednesday at midnight.

Demand $200,000 Forfeit.

Bordeaux authorities today were ordered to post 10 million francs [nominally $200,000] in public funds as a forfeit to the Germans, depending on whether the Bordeaux slayers are found and whether other Germans are molested.

Another Frenchman was shot near Bordeaux yesterday and the Germans confirmed the execution of three others in Paris, all on charges of illegally possessing arms. This brought to 188 the total number of Frenchmen known to have been executed by the German army of occupation.

In Paris the Germans arrested 10 persons—two of them women—and charged them with being communist "brain trusters."

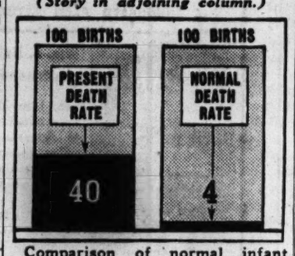

[Brussels newspapers received in Berlin announced the execution of three Belgians for alleged espionage. It was not known when these occurred. German firing squads in occupied Norway shot two Norwegians as spies.]

200 Serbs Reported Executed.

ANKARA, Turkey, Oct. 24.—German authorities in Serbia have executed 200 hostages in reprisal for continued resistance by the Serbian Chetnik [guerrilla] armies, it was reported here today.

JAILED BEAUTY TAKES STAND AT SPY CASE TRIAL

Nods, Then Whispers, and Is Excused.

New York, Oct. 24 (AP).—A pretty brunette, wearing a jaunty flower-be-decked shovel hat, took the stand today in Brooklyn federal court where 15 men are on trial charged with espionage conspiracy.

Without looking at the packed benches she strode across the floor. Then, when the attendant administered the oath, she glanced toward the defendants. Her shoulders suddenly slumped and she stumbled uncertainly toward the witness stand.

She was Evelyn Clayton Lewis, 38, Fayetteville, Ark., artist and sculptress, whom Frederick J. Duquesne had summoned from her cell in the women's house of detention to testify in his behalf. She had pleaded guilty to the first count of the indictment which charged failure to register as a German agent. Disposition of the second count, alleging the giving of vital defense secrets to Germany, is still pending.

Whispers to Trial Judge.

"Miss Lewis, do you know Frederick Duquesne?" asked Defense Counsel Frank J. Walsh.

She nodded, but her oral answer was inaudible even to the nearby court stenographer. Then she leaned across the bench and whispered hoarsely to Judge Mortimer W. Byers something about "nature of the case . . . feel my emotions are so deeply concerned."

Court, counsel, government attorneys, and Duquesne agreed that she be withdrawn.

The defendant Duquesne had identified her as the woman with whom he had lived for eight months prior to his arrest last June. He said she was compelled to disrobe and change to street clothes in their one room apartment, shielded from G-men's gaze only by a door, which once was flung back to reveal her nude.

Called Duquesne't Cat'spaw.

The government contends Duquesne used her as a cat'spaw — to write things that he himself dared not write, to conduct correspondence that might be used against him.

"I feel sorry for her," said a government attorney after she had left. "She was a swell girl and a lot of help to the government. Funny what love does to some people."

She was another page in the life of Duquesne, whom the government called "a spy for the last 40 years" and who had shouted frequently from the stand during his four day examination that he was an "anti-British revolutionary."

Kearny Seriously Damaged in Torpedoing, Says F.D.R.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24 (AP).—The destroyer Kearny, which was torpedoed off Iceland a week ago, was described by President Roosevelt today as being seriously damaged. While details of the attack are coming in, mostly of a technical nature, Mr. Roosevelt said there was nothing about them which he could discuss at this time.

FRANCE'S INFANT DEATH RATE NOW 10 TIMES NORMAL

Medical Reports Tell of Dire Food Shortage.

The rate of infant mortality in France since the Nazi occupation has increased to 10 times the normal amount. This information and other data detailing the dire food shortage and virtual starvation in France and Belgium were described in medical and scientific journals received here yesterday by leading physicians.

Some of the facts were printed in the publications themselves and others in single mimeographed sheets slipped in between the pages. The physicians said they had no reason to doubt the authenticity of the reports. "We're certain," said one, "that our French colleagues are trying to let us know how really terrible the conditions are."

Infant Mortality Soars.

Information regarding infant mortality was on one of the mimeographed sheets, marked "Confidential." It stated that 40 out of every 100 babies born in France either die at birth or within the first year. The normal rate is 4 in every 100 births. The increased mortality rate is the same in both the occupied and unoccupied sectors, and, according to the information, prevails in many sections of Belgium also.

An average deficiency of 800 calories, about one-third of the normal amount, exists in the nutrition of pregnant women in France, according to one publication. Meat and fat rations are below the amount required for average sustenance, and since September, 1940, pregnant women have received each day a small portion of powdered milk and bread which only partly meets the requirements set up by the commission of the college of physicians.

Prospective Mothers Face Peril.

In the June issue of La Presse Medicale, one of the nation's leading scientific magazines, the peril facing prospective mothers is noted. Important diet deficiencies prevail, including not only total quantity but foods lacking in phosphorous, calcium, and Vitamin D.

The general food situation, according to The Journal, "may soon become tragic." The Nazis are reported to have seized 60 per cent of the crops in both occupied and unoccupied France and to have taken pigs and other supplies of animal fat. In most cities there is no butter or suet. Stocks of fruit are diminishing rapidly—as much as 25 cents is paid for an apple. German officers eating in restaurants are given ration cards for three persons.

Germans Take Food Reserves.

In an earlier issue the same magazine states that there is a widespread disparity between the German rations and those of the French. The weekly meat ration in France is 12½ ounces; the cheese ration is 1½ ounces. The Germans, according to the publication, have commandeered nearly all food reserves.

Another report of starvation in France was made Thursday by Dr. John B. Youmans of the Vanderbilt university medical school, speaking in St. Louis, Mo., before members of the American Dietetic association. The young physician recently returned from France, where he conduced a survey of the food situation and its effects on health among the people of southern France in the first six months of 1941.

A state of slow starvation is imminent, he said, with disease and death certain to follow. "Anemia is quite prevalent," Dr. Youmans reported, "and great deficiencies of vitamins A, C, and G were noted, part of which is due to lack of these food essentials before the war but now made acute."

CUDAHY CHEERED AND BOOED AFTER ANTI-WAR PLEAS

Let's End Subterfuge, He Tells Council.

John Cudahy, former ambassador to Belgium, told a turbulent meeting of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations yesterday that the time has come to scrap subterfuge and have a showdown by submitting the question of war or peace to vote of congress.

Amid mingled cheers and boos from the audience in the Palmer House Cudahy paid tribute to the group of senators who are leading the fight to keep out of war. The speaker directed attention to the fact that only congress has the power to declare war, then, calmly and dispassionately, outlined the steps by which the United States has been led to its present position.

Cudahy asserted that if the war issue were once settled by congress that there would be no further question from patriotic Americans.

Talks as to a Jury.

"Does the speaker mean to insinuate that the President has violated his constitutional oath by taking these measures?" a listener demanded when the meeting was thrown open for questions.

"I make no insinuations," Cudahy answered. "I give you the record. I talk to you as a jury—draw your own conclusions."

"How do you reconcile Hitler's plan for world conquest with what he told you?" another questioner wanted to know. [The reference was to a publicized interview the former ambassador had with Hitler.]

"I know of no plan for world conquest," said Cudahy, "but I suppose even Hitler can be guilty of a bit of campaign oratory. We both want peace. You want peace by war. I don't want war."

Fort Sumter and Iceland.

"What is the difference between sending troops to Iceland and sending troops to Fort Sumter during the Civil war?" another listener shouted.

"It's news to me that Iceland has become a part of the United States," Cudahy replied. "South Carolina is part of the United States. Iceland happens to be 500 miles from the British Isles and 3,000 miles from the United States."

"If the British navy fell into German hands, do you think there would be any assurance of safety to the United States?" the speaker was asked.

"I have been told that our chief of staff regards invasion of the United States as fantastic as invasion of the moon," Cudahy replied. "A great friend of mine back home in Milwaukee—Billy Mitchell—tried to demonstrate that. Poor Billy—he's dead now—but he's been vindicated. If the British navy is such a powerful arm, why doesn't it demonstrate the fact? Take the Skagerrak campaign. Along came the Stukas and smashed troop ships and put the navy out of action."

TIME STILL REMAINS TO STAY OUT OF WAR, MILWAUKEE IS TOLD

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 24 [Special].—An audience of 4,000 at Milwaukee auditorium tonight heard the Rev. John A. O'Brien, Notre Dame professor, and former Sen. Rush Holt of West Virginia declare that the time had not yet passed for America to be diverted from intervention in the European war. The meeting was under the auspices of the America First committee.

"A loaded gun is pointed at the heart of the American people with its hair trigger held by unsteady fingers," Father O'Brien said. "The lives of millions of young men are at stake. American fathers and mothers must struggle desperately to make clear to the administration and congress that they are opposed to all the actions which, in the name of peace, have been edging us closer to the hell of war."

"The United States is not at war even if President Roosevelt is," Holt said. "If we are taken into war, as some falsely say we have been, it is in violation of the constitution and by officials who have violated their oath of office."

HEAR PRESIDENT SPURNED PEACE OFFER BY JAPAN

Knox Calls War in Far East 'Inevitable.'

in the afternoon papers, the secretary's office issued a correction deleting the last sentence.

The secretary said that the Japanese menace has a bearing on shipment of American supplies to the soviet armies. He noted that there are three routes over which these supplies can flow to Russia.

One is via the Pacific to the Siberian port of Vladivostok. The Japanese situation makes shipping by that route extremely difficult, Knox explained.

Turning to the routing of supplies from Boston to Archangel, Knox said that this apparently offers the best hope, altho channel ice must be kept out, which means that shipping lanes are narrow and "extremely vulnerable" to German bombers.

He said shipping supplies via Iran means a 12,000 mile sea voyage.

Tells of Russian Demands.

"I wish I could describe the conference I have just returned from," Knox said. "There are tremendous demands from the British and Russians for additional supplies. Keeping the Russian army fighting is one of our most vital elements in winning this war."

Whether arms cargoes for Russia are still being dispatched across the Pacific to Vladivostok remains uncertain. When the Konoe ministry was replaced by the Tojo militarist government Mr. Roosevelt called off a cabinet meeting and convened a war council instead.

The next day the navy ordered American merchantmen in the Pacific to put into "friendly" ports for further orders. There were then 14 American ships bound for Vladivostok with arms for the soviets. It was evident Mr. Roosevelt feared the Japanese were going to seize or otherwise interfere with those ships.

Maritime Board Divulges Plans.

Wednesday the Maritime commission announced that henceforth all aid to Russia cargoes would go from Boston via the Atlantic to Archangel. This confirmed the administration fears of the safety of the Pacific route.

For thus acquainting Hitler with our routing of aid to Russia the White House yesterday rebuked the Maritime commission but did not say the Pacific routing would be continued. Today the commission took its medicine, issuing a statement saying its announcement had been inaccurate. It was merely arranging to give Boston some of the aid to Russia shipping enjoyed exclusively in the east by New York.

What the commission did not confess to was that it had yielded to the demands of Rep. John W. McCormack [D., Mass.], majority leader of the house, to loosen up with some business for Boston.

FALLS TO DEATH AS TRUCK SNAGS SCAFFOLD ROPE

Two painters, Albert Mazloom, 45 years old, 1527 West 18th street, and Harold Johnson, 40, 7615 South Peoria street, were working on a scaffold at the fifth floor of a building at 600 West Erie street yesterday.

Albert Mazloom.

A truck came out of the building's driveway. It caught one end of their life line which hung between the scaffold and the building. As the scaffold was pulled out from the building Mazloom grabbed the life line. Johnson clung to the scaffold.

The life line parted and Mazloom fell five floors to a concrete loading platform. He died several hours later in St. Luke's hospital. The scaffold, with Johnson on it, held firmly to its supports. He was unhurt.

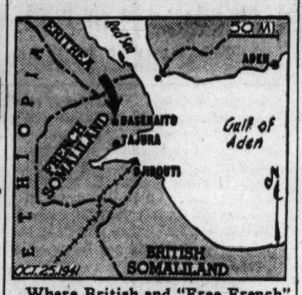

How To Relieve Bronchitis

Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. Invasion Reported

Where British and "Free French" are reported to have attacked French Somaliland and captured city (arrow).

VICHY, France, Oct. 24 (AP).—The Vichy régime's governor-general in French Somaliland reported in a dispatch from Djibouti today that British and "Free French" troops had started an attack on the colony. The announcement said the attack had been pushed 30 miles into French territory. The Allies occupied Dasenaito, only 18 miles north of Tajura, an important port just across the gulf of the same name from Djibouti, the governor said.

London Lacks Confirmation.

LONDON, Oct. 24 (AP).—Authoritative sources said today there was no confirmation of a Vichy report that British and De Gaullist troops had attacked French Somaliland. They expressed the opinion that the report was put out "in an effort to distract attention from reprisal shootings in France."

PACIFIC ACCORD DEPENDS ON U. S., JAPANESE CLAIM

Tokio Observers See Need for 'Sincerity.'

TOKIO, Oct. 24 (AP).—Domei, Japanese news agency with high connections, quoted "observers" tonight as saying that the success of Japanese-American relations depends on the sincerity of the United States but that Japan doubts "very much" whether the United States sincerely wants a settlement.

Domei's observers, quoted in a broadcast commentary, said that the situation had become worse as a result of United States economic pressure on Japan and that the United States must realize the limit to which Japan can make concessions.

Urge "Acceptance" of Jap Aims.

Acceptance of Japan's policy of trying to end the war in China and establish an East Asia co-prosperity sphere would be "the most important factor in sweeping away the dark clouds that now hover over Japanese-American relations," the Domei commentary said.

"The Japanese government and people doubt very much whether the United States has a sincere intention to negotiate the subject of Pacific problems in view of the ABCD line [alleged encirclement by the United States, Britain, China, and the Netherlands East Indies] against Japan."

Cite "Protect Honor" Policy.

"Now is the time for the United States to appreciate Foreign Minister Shigenori Togo's statement in a recent speech that 'Japan rises to her feet to protect herself whenever circumstances arise that menace her existence and sully the honor of the Japanese empire.'"

The Domei comment came after a government spokesman had said that easing of Japanese-American relations was indicated by the United States decision to send Russia war aid via the northwestern port of Archangel rather than the Pacific port of Vladivostok.

A five day special parliamentary session called to meet Nov. 15 will study supplementary budget estimates and taxation urgently needed in Japan and also will give the new government of Premier Tojo a chance to show its strength in carrying out national policies, Domei said.

Jail Speculators in Egypt as Coin Scarcity Hits Trade

CAIRO, Egypt, Oct. 24 (AP).—The government arrested several speculators, chiefly small-time money changers, today as a shortage of change continued to impede business. A new decree provided a jail term as the penalty for buying or selling coins at other than their face value, but merchants still found it necessary to pay premiums of up to 10 per cent to get change.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES—CARRY YOUR MISTER, BAGGAGE?

SENATORS SPLIT ON OPENING WAR ZONES TO SHIPS

Hearings End; Committee Debates Recommendation

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24.—The senate foreign relations committee wound up hearings tonight on the proposed repeal of neutrality act restrictions and prepared to vote tomorrow on what form of legislation to submit to the senate.

The committee is reported to be almost evenly divided on the question of advocating elimination of the ban on sending American ships thru combat zones to war ports. The bill approved by the house recently repeals only that section of the act which forbids arming of merchant ships.

Whatever the committee's decision, a vote on the floor of the senate on the combat zone provision is assured and administration leaders claim they have at least 55 votes, including those of seven Republicans, to give them a majority of more than 10 votes.

Serve Notice of Battle.

Approval of the arming of merchant ships would command a larger majority and it could be accomplished in a week, leaders on both side agree. Noninterventionist senators, led by Sen. Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.], have served notice, however, that "prolonged discussion" will result if repeal of the war zone section is sought. There will be no filibuster, they assert, but it is considered probable that the debate would run for at least two weeks and perhaps longer.

With this delay in mind and also the possibility that the house might balk at acceptance of the war zone repealer, senate leaders were still uncertain what course of action to pursue.

President Roosevelt has made his position clear. His message to congress advised not only the arming of merchant ships, but the repeal of the combat zone provision. Two days ago he instructed his secretary, Stephen T. Early, to reëmphasize his attitude by reading the message to the press.

Wary of Close Vote.

But the President's congressional leaders are wary of the possibility of a close vote on the issue in either house.

"We don't want any more 203-202 votes," said one, referring to the margin of one vote by which the administration was able to get thru the house the provision extending the period of draft service by 18 months.

The move by three interventionist Republicans for repeal of the entire act undoubtedly will be smothered, both sides agree. Initiated at the suggestion of Wendell L. Willkie, it has been frowned upon by both Republicans and Democrats.

Nor is outright repeal desired by the administration. There is a psychological advantage in keeping the framework of the neutrality act on the statute books, it is argued, even tho the heart of the act would be removed with the repeal of the war zone provision.

Krueger Raps Ship Arming.

The last opposition witness before the committee today was Maynard C. Krueger, professor of economics at the University of Chicago and running mate of Norman Thomas in the Presidential campaign last year. Speaking on behalf of the Socialist party, he condemned the ship arming proposals as "the method of the Roosevelt administration to provide shrouds for American seamen."

"The arming of merchant ships," he told the committee, "will not sink submarines, but it will provide an increased number of the sort of accidents which the neutrality act was designed to prevent but which are apparently necessary if whole hog shooting war is to be put across on the American people."

LOW BID AWARD WAY TO STRIFE, AFL AID ARGUES

Hillman Under Fire in Housing Case.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24.—Charges that Sidney Hillman, associate director general of the Office of Production Management, is seeking to purchase labor peace in Detroit, Mich., at a cost of $200,000 to American taxpayers continued to have repercussions today before the senate committee investigating the administration's rearmament program.

Hillman has been charged with favoring the American Federation of Labor in awarding government contracts and with using the OPM labor division as an AFL "recruiting agency." He admitted earlier in the week that he prevented the awarding of a contract for construction of 300 housing units in Michigan to the Currier Lumber Company of Detroit, to avert threatened "civil war" between the AFL and the Congress of Industrial Organizations. The Currier company employs CIO labor.

Attacks Company's Policies.

Richard J. Gray, acting head of the AFL building trades council, told the committee that if the Currier company obtained the contract there would be an industrial strife in the Detroit area "far beyond the power of AFL leaders to control."

"Currier has always operated an open shop company," he said, "and has been in the forefront of employer attempts to smash Detroit unions. He pays wages below the Detroit standards despite the fact that he now has a contract with the United Construction Workers of the CIO."

Ed Thal, secretary-treasurer of the Detroit district construction and building trades council, said that his organization would not do anything "illegal."

"But take it from me, the Detroit building trades council is not going to take it laying down when Mr. 'Denny' Lewis [A. D. Lewis, head of the CIO construction workers] and his cohorts try to disrupt our unions," he said. Asked whether the truck drivers would strike, Thal replied:

"I am going to leave that to the truck drivers."

Bid $200,000 to $400,000 Lower.

The bid of the Currier company has been variously estimated at between $200,000 and $400,000 lower than the next lowest bid. Its failure to get the award, according to witnesses, will mean that the government will have to pay the difference to get the housing units constructed.

Hillman, in his testimony, had denied that the withholding of the contract from the Currier company had anything to do with the OPM's "stabilizing" agreement with the AFL, thru which the government has attempted to avert armament strikes in the building trades.

Several senators expressed dissatisfaction with Hillman's testimony on the Currier contract. Sen. Ralph O. Brewster [R., Me.] charged in an interview today that the OPM director "dealt only in generalities" while failing to explain conclusively to the committee the reason for his belief that the award of the contract to Currier would cause the AFL-CIO warfare.

BOOST RED CROSS BUDGET FROM 4 TO 11½ MILLIONS!

The national budget of the American Red Cross has been increased from 4 million dollars last year to 11½ million dollars so far this year because of the added responsibility of the rearmament program and aid to warring nations, Norman H. Davis, national chairman, said yesterday. Davis spoke at the Illinois State Conference Roll Call of the American Red Cross in the Stevens hotel. He told how Red Cross workers were attempting to aid the war stricken nations of the world. He asked that Roll Call workers endeavor to enroll everybody in the Red Cross.

33D DIV. TROOPS EQUIPPED WITH GARAND RIFLES

Camp Forrest, Tenn., Oct. 24 (AP).—Troops of the 33d division at Camp Forrest have been fully equipped with Garand semi-automatic rifles replacing the 1907 Springfield rifle used by the infantryman of 1917-'18, Maj. Gen. Samuel T. Lawton declared today. The table of allowances gives 2,099 rifles to each of the four infantry regiments, the major user of the weapon. There are approximately 10,000 Garands here now.

Arrival of the full quota of semi-automatics for foot troops eliminated one of the major shortages of armaments in the camp. Trucks arriving during maneuvers reduced another shortage but most units still lack their full allotment.

The major weapons still missing are .50 caliber machine guns, 37 mm. anti-tank guns, 81 mm. mortars, and 105 mm. howitzers—the newer weapons of the army.

The troops here also are expected to get more target work, based on the army's announcement that a large amount of ammunition would immediately be available for training. Most of this will be .30 caliber ammunition fired in the Garand.

DIES ON HIS JOB AT 67.

Harry Burton, 67 years old, 3333 North Marshfield avenue, died yesterday while at work at the Richardson Ball Bearing Skate company, 3312 Ravenswood avenue.

MARRIAGE MAY NO LONGER BAR DRAFT SERVICE

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 24 (AP).—A pointed warning that a marriage certificate is doubtful insurance against army service came today from Paul G. Armstrong, state draft director. Explaining that some Illinois draft boards are running short of 1-A registrants, Armstrong said in a statement that the boards may find it necessary soon to reclassify some registrants previously deferred.

"Local boards are required to make diligent investigations in cases where there is suspicion that a marriage was contracted for the purpose of evading service," he said. "A registrant claiming deferment on the ground of marriage must file written statements of fact showing that his status was acquired in the ordinary course of human affairs and not for the purpose of avoiding service."

Armstrong conceded that there had been wide variation in the rulings of local boards on marriage deferments, and said it continued to be "one of the most vexing problems confronting the selective service system." He urged the local boards to decide each case carefully on its merits.

FISH SECRETARY INDICTED ON TWO PERJURY COUNTS

Congressman Is the Real Target, Lawyer Claims.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24.—George Hill, second secretary to Rep. Hamilton Fish [R., N.Y.] was indicted on two charges of perjury today by a federal grand jury investigating Nazi activities in the United States.

George Hill. [Acme telephoto.]

The first count of indictment charges that Hill gave perjured testimony by denying acquaintance with George Sylvester Viereck, who was indicted Oct. 8 on charges of failure to give essential information in registering as a German propaganda agent.

The second count charges that Hill perjured himself in disclaiming knowledge of the movement of several sacks of mail containing franked congressional anti-war speeches from the residence of Prescott Dennett, head of the Keep Out of War and Islands for War Debts committees, to storage space in the house office building.

Fish Backs Him Up.

From New York, Rep. Fish declared that he is behind his secretary.

"I have known him to be an honest and very reliable person," Fish said. "I have the utmost confidence in his honesty, integrity, and patriotism. I am 100 per cent behind George Hill."

Hill was released in the custody of his counsel, former Representative John J. O'Connor of New York, until tomorrow after a stormy arraignment before Judge T. Alan Goldsborough. Bail was set at $5,000.

At the arraignment, William Power Maloney, special assistant to the attorney general, charged that Hill had admitted receiving $12,000 in the last five months from sources he would not disclose and that Hill was key man in a plot to spread propaganda under congressional frank privileges.

O'Connor vigorously insisted that Hill had given the grand jury the source of the money; that it certainly was not from German sources as Maloney implied.

"Hill is not the important person in this case," O'Connor said. "The prosecution is aiming at a lion and shooting the rabbit. I am here to plead Congressman Fish not guilty."

Five Years Maximum Term.

At the arraignment Hill pleaded "not guilty." A maximum penalty of five years in prison and $2,000 fine or both is possible on each count.

The mail bags about which Hill was questioned disappeared from the committee office on Sept. 19, a few hours after Dennett was subpenaed to appear before the grand jury.

According to Fish, Hill ordered a truck to go to Dennett's office and pick up 500 Fish speeches which Dennett said were in his possession but unwanted.

The grand jury then issued a subpena for Hill to produce these bags. Fish said he advised him not to do so, on the ground they were not in his possession. After Judge Goldsborough set a deadline of noon, Oct. 10, for the bags to be produced, they were sent to the grand jury by Finis Scott, house postmaster, who said he acted on written instructions from Hill.

HOOSIERS FIGHT USO PLANS FOR WOMEN'S CLUB

Decry Fund Diversions for New Program.

New Albany, Ind., Oct. 24 [Special].—The protests of indignant Floyd county residents today brought Frank D. Finlay, representative of the United Service organization, here from Washington, D. C., to hear their objections to the diversion of USO funds to establish recreation centers for women working in rearmament plants.

Finlay will seek to justify the controversial projects, one of which has been started here, at a meeting tomorrow with leaders of the local USO committee, the American Legion, and various civic bodies.

Local contributors, who oversubscribed their county's $4,000 quota by 100 per cent and thereby led Indiana's successful drive for USO donations, were aroused when they learned that not all of the funds collected are being used for men in the armed services, the purpose advanced by national sponsors of the campaign.

Legion Joins in Protest.

Protests were made by the local USO committee, by Glenn Hillis of Kokomo, state chairman of the USO drive; by H. Scott Pickens, civilian defense director of Floyd county and former state representative, and by Bonnie Sloan American Legion post.

Opponents of the new project said they learned that the USO had leased a two story building in New Albany for an indefinite time beginning Oct. 15 at a monthly rental of $150, considered excessive for this city. The building formerly was used as a restaurant which catered to dinner and bridge parties. It contains a lounge, game rooms, and rest rooms.

The women's club has been approved by the Federal Security agency, according to Miss Mildred Hagen, club director of the National Catholic Community service, one of the six organizations composing USO and designated to operate the project.

Hold Club Unnecessary.

Critics assert that in addition to the questionable policy of entertaining civilian rearmament workers with funds solicited for soldiers, such a club is entirely unnecessary here. They point out that rearmament workers earn sufficient income to pay for their recreation and that they have not taken advantage of the recreational and social activities offered them by local churches.

Inquiries into the matter at USO national headquarters in New York brought from Jesse Butcher, a representative, confirmation of the organization's establishment of a recreation center here. He said the project was undertaken at the request of the FSA which also had asked the USO to open similar centers in the nearby towns of Jefferson and Charleston.

J. D. McGuffey, administrative assistant of USO field operations, said in New York that the plan is a limited proposition which will take probably "2 or 3 per cent at most" of USO funds.

Local objectors contend that regardless of the amount of USO funds thus diverted a breach of faith is involved inasmuch as all of the funds were raised for the primary purpose of providing recreational facilities solely for the armed forces.

Send Wire to Dewey.

The local USO committee telegraphed to Thomas E. Dewey, national USO chairman, a request that plans for the women's club be postponed until further information concerning the project has been given the committee and this community. The committee is comprised of Dr. A. P. Hauss, president of the board of trustees of the Silver Crest state hospital for the tubercular; former State Senator William Janes, and Chester V. Lorch, New Albany city attorney.

Hillis told the local committee he had not been notified of the project and said he had sent a similar protest to Dewey.

Pickens termed the project "unnecessary" and asserted that the "money should be used for men in the actual service of their country and not for defense workers."

The local Legion post sent to National Legion headquarters in Indianapolis a copy of a resolution which vigorously condemned such use of USO funds.

The firemen dug up the ground around the pipe, broke the pipe, removed Alphonso's shoe, and freed him. Alphonso was unhurt.

CITY WON'T TRY TO ENFORCE CURB ON LIQUOR SALES

Mayor Kelly yesterday said that Chicago will not attempt to enforce its new ordinance banning the sale of liquor in drug and grocery stores, in view of the opinion issued 10 days ago by Attorney General George F. Barrett.

The attorney general held that the ordinance, passed last spring and scheduled to take effect Oct. 31, was invalidated by a "joker" in an amendment to an act passed by the last legislature. The amendment restricts the power of cities to limit the issuance of liquor licenses. Passed in the confusion of the closing days of the session, the amendment was inserted by Rep. Ernest A. Green [R., Chicago] specifically to void the city ordinance.

Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes said the city will follow the attorney general's opinion, altho Barrett has not sent the city a copy of the opinion.

F. D. R. INDORSES LA GUARDIA OVER PARTY'S NOMINEE

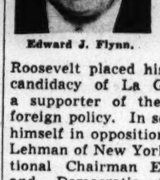

Spurns Democratic Chiefs in Mayoral Race.

Democrats Incensed

New York, Oct. 24 [Special].—Democrats generally were reported incensed tonight over President Roosevelt's indorsement of Mayor Fiorello La Guardia for reëlection. Edward J. Flynn, Democratic national chairman, expressed regret over the action and pointed out that the President neither resides nor votes in New York City. He declared that Mr. Roosevelt, with thousands of others, should deprecate "the mayor's cheap effort to ride into city hall on the coattails of the President's national policies." Flynn said he would not resign over the President's party bolt and added that "nothing any one can say or do" can prevent the election of La Guardia's opponent, William F. O'Dwyer. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, close friend and supporter of the President, was reported redoubling his efforts in behalf of O'Dwyer.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24.—President Roosevelt today bolted the Democratic party to indorse the campaign of Fiorello La Guardia, who is seeking reelection as mayor of New York City as a fusion candidate against William O'Dwyer, the Democratic nominee.

Edward J. Flynn.

Without using the word "indorse," Mr. Roosevelt placed his blessing on the candidacy of La Guardia, who is a supporter of the administration's foreign policy. In so doing he placed himself in opposition to Gov. Herbert Lehman of New York, Democratic National Chairman Edward J. Flynn, and Democratic State Chairman James A. Farley, all of whom support O'Dwyer.

It's No Surprise.

The President's support of La Guardia was announced at the White House press conference with the issuance of a statement. The announcement occasioned no surprise, as La Guardia has been an ardent supporter of the New Deal as well as the administration's foreign policy and is head of the Civilian Defense administration.

The President's statement left party chairman Flynn the choice of swallowing the stand of the party standard bearer in silence or submitting his resignation as head of the national committee.

"Altho my voting residence has always been up-state, I have lived and worked in the city of New York off and on since 1904," the statement indorsing La Guardia said. "I have known and observed New York's mayors since that time.

"I am not taking part in the New York City election but, because the city of New York contains about half the population of my state, I do not hesitate to express the opinion that Mayor La Guardia and his administration have given to the city the most honest and, I believe the most efficient municipal government of any within my recollection.

"The fact that the city's election has no relationship to national policies, but is confined to civic policies, is attested by the fact that the constitution of the state provides for the municipal election in off years when neither a governor nor a President nor members of the house of representatives or senate of the United States are to be chosen."

FILM SHAKEDOWN EVIDENCE DRAWS DEFENSE ATTACK

Attorney Seeks to Upset Schenck's Testimony.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 24.—The defense of union leaders George E. Browne and Willie Bioff in the alleged movie shakedown case got under way today with an attack on the foggy memory of the government's star witness, Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's, Inc.

Browne, president of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employés, and Bioff, his Hollywood representative and a former pander, are on trial before Federal Judge John C. Knox and a jury on charges of extorting $726,000 from four film companies. Loew's paid $426,000, according to the testimony.

A dramatic part of Schenck's story dealing with the beginning of the alleged extortion conspiracy in the spring of 1936 was singled out as the main target by Attorney Michael Luddy, one of Bioff's west coast lawyers, at today's session.

Parleys Told by Schenck.

As Schenck recalled it on the witness stand during his two days of examination, he and Sidney R. Kent, president of Twentieth Century-Fox, had bargained with Bioff and Browne in New York City on April 16 and April 18, 1936. On the first date Bioff, with Browne at his elbow, reputedly demanded tribute of a million dollars a year from the movie industry and on the second occasion came down to $50,000 from each of the large film companies and $25,000 from the small ones. At this time the movie executives were meeting with labor leaders trying to settle union demands for a 10 per cent wage increase.

Patrick J. Casey, chairman of the Film Producers' committee in its negotiations under the basic agreement governing union employer relations in the industry, was summoned to the stand as the first major witness for the defense.

Under Luddy's questioning, Casey said Schenck had not been present at the session April 18. Stenographers' minutes of the meeting bore this out, and Mathias F. Correa, United States attorney, then conceded Schenck had been "mistaken" on the date.

Luddy also attacked Schenck's testimony that on the April 16 meeting he and Kent felt so "terrible" about the Bioff-Browne demands that they had gone out to lunch to talk over the best course to pursue.

The minutes of the session for that afternoon quoted Kent as saying the producers had been so busy finding out how much the wage increases would cost them that they had not even adjourned for lunch.

Before Casey took the stand the defense called Miss Emily Cote, a Postal Telegraph stenographer, to identify a telegram from Harry M. Warner, president of Warner Brothers Pictures and alleged victim to the extent of $100,000. The telegram, addressed to Mr. and Mrs. William Bioff, was dated Feb. 4, 1938, and sent to the Bioffs aboard the Normandie on a South American cruise. The message read:

"Sorry we not on boat to enjoy trip with you. We could certainly use it. Take it easy and have a good time. Kindest regards. [Signed] Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Warner."

SURFACE LINES' MONEY ON HAND TOPS 38 MILLION

The Chicago Surface lines has more than 38 million dollars in cash on hand, of which more than half is specifically earmarked for new equipment, Edward C. Burke, assistant auditor for the company, testified yesterday.

Burke submitted an exhibit of the company's cash resources at a hearing on the lines' application for an increase in street car fares from 7 to 8 cents.

The exhibit showed cash on hand on Jan. 31 of $38,042,000. Of this sum, $19,744,000 was in special reserves for new equipment, $2,889,000 reserved for taxes, $1,743,000 in a damage reserve fund, $3,420,000 in a special fund for "city compensation," $1,818,000 reserved for bond interest, and the remaining $8,428,000 was in the general cash account. The hearing was continued to Tuesday.

During a family quarrel last night an 18 year old girl threw a bread knife that critically wounded her 12 year old brother. The youth, Baigio Cascio, 2342 Wentworth avenue, was taken to the People's hospital, where physicians said the blade had pierced his lung.

The sister, Catherine, and another sister, Florence, 16, who witnessed the affair in the kitchen of the home, were taken to the Pekin Inn police station for questioning.

At first Catherine said her brother had fallen on the knife accidentally, but she later admitted she had thrown it. She said that Biagio threw a dish cloth at her and ran.

CORONER'S JURY CLEARS STUDENT IN 2 AUTO DEATHS

A coroner's jury exonerated Clarence McDonald, 20 year old student at the Illinois Institute of Technology, yesterday in the deaths of two men struck by his car Oct. 5. McDonald is to appear Oct. 29 in Boys' court on two charges of manslaughter.

The victims, whose deaths were held accidental by the jury, were John P. Grady, 64, of 1508 Rosemont avenue, and John Doles, 59, of 2746 North Artesian avenue. The accident occurred at Western and Devon avenues.

McDonald, the son of an electrical goods manufacturer, and four companions testified that they had had several beers in three taverns but that McDonald was not intoxicated. Other witnesses said the victims had walked against the traffic lights. Lieut. Michael Ahern said he would sign a complaint charging the youth with leaving the scene of an accident when he appears in Boys' court.

JOLIET BOY DIES OF RABIES; BLAME NEIGHBOR'S DOG

Charles Leo Morgan, 6 years old, 511 North Briggs street, Joliet, died there yesterday in the Silver Cross hospital of rabies, believed to have been contracted from a neighbor's mongrel dog. The dog was found to have the disease.

Twenty-four days ago the boy came home from playing in the woods with a scratch on his face which he said was the result of a fall. The wound healed, but last Monday the boy became ill.

COURT UPHOLDS LIBEL SENTENCE IN LIGGETT CASE

Former Communist Editor Must Go to Jail.

New York, Oct. 24 [Special].—The criminal libel conviction of Clarence Hathaway, former managing editor of the Daily Worker, and of the Comprodaily Publishing company, publisher of the communist newspaper until its sale last July, were unanimously confirmed today by the appellate division of the Manhattan Supreme court.

Each defendant was fined $500 by General Sessions Judge John J. Freschi, trial judge, and Hathaway was given an additional sentence of 30 days in the workhouse.

Mrs. Liggett Charges Libel.

Their conviction was based on the complaint of Mrs. Edith F. Liggett, widow of Walter W. Liggett, editor of the Midwest American, a Minneapolis weekly. Liggett was mowed down by machine gun bullets on Dec. 9, 1935, in the midst of a crusade he was conducting against alleged politico-criminal alliances in Minnesota.

Mrs. Liggett charged that she and the memory of her husband were libeled in an article published in the Daily Worker in February, 1936, two months after Liggett's murder, which, never was solved. The article was headed, "Liggett murdered by the underworld for his scavenging."

It asserted that Liggett was seeking loans from the underworld while attacking corruption and added: "It is disgusting to see the widow selling the corpse limb by limb to the highest bidder of the Republican party."

Slain Before Legislative Quiz.

Liggett was slain on the eve of his scheduled appearance before the Minnesota legislature to amplify his previously published charges that ranking politicians of the reigning Farmer-Labor party in the state had joined in criminal alliances with the underworld. He had named specifically the late Floyd Olson, then governor, and had demanded that Olson be impeached.

During the trial, Edward Kuntz, counsel for Hathaway, charged that the case against his client was politically inspired. He said that the conviction of Earl Browder, secretary of the communist party in America, on passport charges was the signal for bringing the case against Hathaway to trial.

REPORTS HOME LOOTED.

Harry Alter, 5117 Ellis avenue, reported to police yesterday that jewelry valued at $820 and a $175 fur coat had been stolen from his apartment.

TOO NOISY! YULE CAROLS DOOMED BY STATE STREET

The Christmas carols to which Chicagoans have done their loop shopping during recent Christmas seasons probably will not resound down State street this year, Elmer T. Stevens, president of the State Street council, said yesterday.

The idea of a quiet Christmas came from the merchants themselves, Stevens said. In the past they have found that the amplification system, a mile and a quarter long, made the carols too loud for the comfort of their ears.

"The people opposed to the carols are those with offices beside the loud speakers," Stevens explained. "It sometimes is difficult to do business over the noise.

"We probably will not have them, simply because some people think them too noisy. Then, too, they are more expensive this year."

Despite their loudness, the carols have been considered a stimulant to the Christmas spirit.

Historic Declarations of American Foreign Policy

No. 9—William H. Seward:

"In the opinion of the President, the most beneficent policy which this government can practice with reference to foreign states is to abstain from all authoritative or dictatorial proceedings in regard to their own peculiar affairs, while it employs at all times whatever just influence it enjoys to promote peace, and to recommend to them, by its own fidelity to justice and freedom, the institutions of free popular government."—Secretary of State, May 5, 1866.

WPA FOR EXPORT.

The 6 billion dollar appropriation bill which the senate passed Thursday was called the second lend-lease bill, an obvious misnomer. It could have been more accurately characterized as a bill to put the British empire on the WPA.

The bill passed by a vote of 59 to 13. That it should have been even seriously considered for passage after the frank admissions of Sen. Alva B. Adams, who was the administration's floor manager for the measure, is a symptom of the complete demoralization of congress in the present emergency. If any one in this country still regarded this as a lend-lease bill he should be disabused by Sen. Adams' statements.

Included in the bill is approximately one billion dollars for supplying food to Great Britain. Sen. Charles L. McNary, a leader of the farm bloc who might be expected to favor a measure the obvious effect of which would be to raise farm prices [and with them, of course, the cost of living in America], charged that the billion dollars was far beyond the needs of the British. He bases his statement on the admissions of British officials.

Sen. Vandenberg wanted to know what the British government is going to do with the money which it is getting from the sale of these American gifts to its own people. He asked if there was any chance of the money being turned back to this nation, and at that point Sen. Adams let the cat out of the bag. The original lend-lease bill provided that material sent abroad should be sent in return for a consideration, Sen. Adams said. It was left to the President to fix the consideration and it is still "a matter of negotiation." This is a euphemism covering the fact that the British have made no offer to pay and Mr. Roosevelt has made no effort to collect.

"The British get the cash and the food both, while we get the IOU's," Sen. Vandenburg observed.

"I'm not sure we'll even get the IOU's," Sen. Adams corrected him.

Altho he was the administration's leader it is possible to see in another statement Sen. Adams' resentment at the deception which has been practiced on him and other congressional leaders in connection with the lend-lease farce.

"I sat in a conference at which a discussion was held as to whether the 7 billion [first lend-lease appropriation] should be divided up into two or three instalments, or whether the entire 'jolt' should be taken at one time. I thought that was the conclusion; now I think, beyond that, you may anticipate in view of what was said to us that there will be further lease and lend bills."

No one can doubt that what Sen. Adams predicts will come to pass. A new measure for aid to Russia is expected shortly despite the fact that enough money has already been appropriated to keep American industry fully engaged until early in 1944, even if it meets the optimistic estimates of production made by the OPM.

Mr. Roosevelt and his advisers are in the position of the infatuated mistress. No demand from her lover across the water is too fantastic. We are not only making arms for the British—we have undertaken the task of supporting in large measure their ordinary peacetime economy. We are building naval bases for them on their home islands. We have "responded generously," in the words of Foreign Minister Eden, to the suggestion that we build them a few railroads and highways. We are helping feed their people in a manner which permits the British government to fill its treasury out of the sale of American gifts. We are spending more on the war than the British themselves, altho they are at war and we are not. We are the prize suckers of all time and we are going to commit national suicide if we do not get our senses back soon.

POWER TO DESTROY.

The so-called arms production clinic which has attracted some thousands of small business men to Chicago these last few days was a commendable enterprise. It indicated a desire on the part of the officials concerned with arms production to enlist as much machine capacity as possible and it indicated, also, a desire to prevent so far as possible the destruction of many thousands of small businesses.

In this connection the figures recited by Mr. Floyd Odlum, who is serving as director of the contract distribution division of the Office of Production Management, were as striking as they were disturbing. He said that in England 20,000 enterprises, most of them small ones, have disappeared since the war began. He estimated that the number of business casualties in this country will go much higher. In consequence men and women by tens of thousands will be thrown out of employment and much time must elapse before they can find other jobs, if they can find them at all, in armament plants.

Businesses will be starved to death, as some have been already, by lack of raw materials to process or by lack of goods to sell resulting from lack of raw materials. The firms which can obtain the necessary priority ratings will prosper and some of them will prosper exceedingly. The granting of a priority rating means life; the withholding of it means decline and death.

The power to say who shall have raw materials and who shall not is one which can readily be abused. The priority system offers an opportunity to unprincipled men to drive firms to the wall and force their owners to sell them for a song.

If there ever was reason in this country to become alarmed at the concentration of the nation's business in a few large units, it is now. The management of priorities must be subjected to the utmost vigilance in and out of congress to prevent the abuse of the system for selfish ends.

THE GREAT OIL SCARE.

Mr. Ickes in his capacity as oil administrator has at length removed all restrictions upon the consumption of gasoline in the eastern states. He had insisted for many weeks, in the face of clear evidence to the contrary, that a grave shortage was impending. His latest action amounts to an admission that he was wrong all the time. As he had access to all the facts he must have known from the start that there was never any great danger of a shortage.

The fraud on the public to which Mr. Ickes lent his name and his office was committed for a purpose. Mr. Ickes has not revealed it, but the obvious explanation is to be found in the desire of the administration to whip up the war psychosis. The effort to scare the people out of their wits by telling them that the Germans were about to invade the United States had fallen flat. The Germans hadn't dared to risk the channel crossing; and if they couldn't manage that they surely couldn't manage the Atlantic ocean. New and more plausible dodges had to be employed. Mr. Ickes' oil scare was one of them. It was expected to alarm the people, fill them with a sense of crisis and danger, and thus bring them to the point where they would follow their leaders into war as blindly as ever the German people followed their Fuehrer.

The oil scare was only one of a number of such tricks, all of them sprung about the same time. Another was the declaration that this country was short of steel. The facts regarding steel, as we now know, are much as they were with relation to oil. There is no shortage to get excited about. Present production of steel in this country is at such a high rate—and it is growing almost from month to month—that we can easily provide all the steel needed for our own arms and for lend-lease and other military exports without depriving any civilian industry of adequate supplies. The figures have been published often and there is no need to repeat them. In sum, they indicate that we are producing enough steel to maintain civilian industry at least at the 1937 level.

The efforts to scare the American people into war have failed thus far, but it is not to be doubted that the war mongers will invent new terrors to replace those which have failed to work. This is the Halloween season. It is a season in which the American people may profitably reflect that persons who are frightened by sheeted figures and false faces aren't very bright.

ALL AN ALDERMAN WANTS IS PEACE.

Getting back to first principles there are two things to be remembered whenever the regulation of automobile parking comes up. The first is that parking on a busy street is an unmitigated nuisance to every one—except the parkers and a certain number of merchants who believe, on no very clear evidence, that parking brings them business.

And the second thing to remember is that because the Chicago city council regards parking regulation largely as a ward matter—the 49 aldermen deferring to the wishes of the one in whose ward the particular regulation is proposed—this minority who want unregulated parking are the only group whose wishes have much force. The motorists and local transportation passengers who are discommoded live in the other 49 wards. The parkers and the merchants who want parking are right on hand to gripe to their alderman, whose principal end in life is to avoid a griping constituent.

Against this background the plea of the Chicago Motor club, civic organizations, and local transportation companies to restrict parking on main traffic arteries as an aid to snow removal seems to have about the same chance as the snowball in the usual place. Of course the proposal is a sound one. Impede removal of heavy snow with a double line of parked cars and nobody can use the street conveniently, not even the parkers.

It might occur to an alderman that his constituents would be grateful for open traffic lanes in 98 per cent of the city—grateful enough to forego some of their parking privileges in the other 2 per cent of the city in which they and their alderman live. It might, but it probably won't. An alderman—except perhaps a very new and innocent alderman—doesn't expect praise. All he expects is gripes, and the more of them he dodges, the longer he remains an alderman.

COMMUNISM BEFORE THE HIGH COURT.

[Philadelphia Inquirer.]

The communist party's legal status is surrounded by so much confusion that the prospect of a definitive ruling by the United States Supreme court will be widely welcomed. The way was opened yesterday when the tribunal agreed to review a decision canceling the American citizenship of William Schneiderman, secretary of the communist party in California.

The case was based on the defendant's concealment of his party affiliation when he applied for citizenship, but the chief issue was whether communist membership prevented allegiance to our government. It will be recalled that in the Strecker decision, in which the Supreme court found that the law was applicable only to present and not past members of subversive organizations—a deficiency since corrected—the court declined to pass upon the question whether the communist party "advises, advocates, or teaches overthrow by force and violence of the United States government."

In recently recommending deportation of Harry Bridges, former Judge Sears, acting as an immigration service official, asserted that the communist party did engage in these illegal activities. While this dictum does not have the force of a court opinion, the department of justice has general authority to deport Bridges. It is to be hoped this will be done.

A Supreme court ruling specifically branding the communist party as a breaker of our laws would clear the atmosphere. Naturalized citizens belonging to the outfit could then be deprived of their American citizenship, and alien members could be deported without long drawn out proceedings and the raising of innumerable technicalities. The test question would be simple. And a nation engaged in a great defense effort would be supplied with a needed weapon against the foes within its household.

Something queer about that sample family budget of the home economics bureau. It only adds up to 100 per cent of expenses.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

"I had a dream to make New York heaven," says Mayor La Guardia. The WPA duplicating the golden stairs would be a sight.—Omaha World Herald.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U. S. Pat. Office

MR. PEPYS WARMS A HOUSE.

25th Oct.—Went to my club last evening to housewarm the new dining rooms, which are the old ones with a change of complexion, and listened to people exchanging views on interior decoration, which is what every woman knows but can't describe until she sees it. The complexion of one of the rooms is sea-green, and of the other, oyster-white, so I am thinking of calling them the Mermaid Rooms.

It is elegant and rich, yet simple and chaste withal, and it cost a pretty penny, for everything was made to order. One day last summer I came upon a lonely painter working in the empty rooms and he had a brush no bigger than my finger and was touching up some small pieces of woodwork. He would put on a dab, and then stand back to survey the effect as if enraptured. I said to him, "When will this job be finished, Mr. Painter?" and he answered in scorn, "I am not a painter, but an artist."

I trust many people will come to view the Mermaid Rooms or, as I also call them, the Priorities Rooms, because they are quite original and imitations of them will rapidly spread over the land from Dan to Beersheba. Moreover, they have been a mortal time in getting finished. Work began when the spring rains came, and when the autumn rains came it was not completed. The German armies overran the vast land of Russia while this gem was being polished. I went off on a journey of 6,500 miles, and when I returned could see no signs of progress. The earth has rolled from one equinox almost to another; the Big Dipper has swung thru nearly its complete track in the sky, and members of the club have become fathers and grandfathers.

Even now I doubt if all the work is done, for the designer does not know whether to have the Venetian blinds green on one side and white on the other, or vice versa; and as for the sculptor who was to make some plaster cactus plants for decorations, I hear he has gone to Australia to study a rare species.

AUTUMN REQUIEM.

The earth grows quiet, for the birds have fled,
And long ago the locust ceased his song.
The trees refuse to yield; of gold and red
They weave brave banners, but cannot prolong
The glory; winter's will, alas, is strong.
In vain the cricket lends his note of cheer.
What blessings can atone for this great wrong—
That summer's beauty fair must disappear,
That flowers must fade and fields lie chill and sere?

But poets' songs are powerless to stay
The autumn waste, the winter's threatening blast.
Our soothing pipings of the gentle May
Are vain imaginings of good things past. . . .
Yet hopes die not, tho skies are overcast;
For time shall grow new gardens for our eyes,
The spring to be will far exceed the last.
Await with patience April's glad surprise.
Trust Nature! She is old and very wise.

Why Chicago Has a Midway.

In 1871 Olmsted, Vaux & Co., landscape architects of New York, submitted a plan for laying out the South park, Chicago. According to the accompanying 56 page report, the park area contained more than 1,000 acres and was to consist of three divisions, the upper, lower, and middle, corresponding to what is now Washington park, Jackson park, and the Midway. The term, Midway Plaisance, appearing in the report and plan, combined in one expression the boulevard, the landscape, and the division features associated with the strip which connected the two major areas.

Two similar terms, the Upper Plaisance and the Lagoon Plaisance, also appeared in the 1871 report and plan. The south central part of the upper division of the South park, between 56th and 60th streets, was called the Upper Plaisance; the south central part of the lower division, between 58th and 67th streets, was called the Lagoon Plaisance. Quite naturally the 80 acre boulevard area, connecting the upper and lower divisions, was called the middle or midway division, or more formally the Midway Plaisance. Of these three terms, the Midway Plaisance was the only one that survived.

In the 1871 report the old word, "plaisance," applied to gardenlike sections of the park adapted to quiet and moderate exercises, was defined as "pleasure ground"; the broad turf sections, suitable for review and athletic exercises, were called "open ground."

The senior member of the firm, Frederick Law Olmsted, was for nearly 40 years an outstanding designer of parks and grounds. Commentator.

After the trainman on the C. M. & St. P. has called out in quick succession the stations Milwaukee, Wauwatosa, Pewaukee, Nashotah, Okauchee, Oconomowoc, one is prepared to see braves, squaws, teepees, or most anything red. E. Z.

CHICKENPOX IS HIGHLY CONTAGIOUS.

CHICKENPOX—a virus disease—is highly communicable, that is, it may be spread easily from the sick to the well. Because the outbreak imitates smallpox in some respects, much confusion has arisen.

"Pox" means an eruption and, when used alone, points to syphilis. But smallpox is the well known condition which we protect against with vaccination. The word "chicken" is probably derived from the resemblance of the lesions to chick peas. Now, these two maladies ["chicken" and "small"] offer substantial differences. The former is mild, the latter may be not only severe but dangerous.

Furthermore, there is evidence that the virus which is responsible for herpes [shingles] is similar if not identical to that which causes the less serious variety. For example, a child may present the typical blemishes of chickenpox, while an older member of the family will exhibit the curious outbreak along the course of a skin nerve.

In all probability any youngster who is reasonably susceptible will contract the disease on exposure. While the scabs apparently are not able to transmit the infection, the causative virus may be disseminated thruout the sickroom by currents of air. In other words, a victim may not be obliged to actually touch one who is ill in order to acquire the ailment.

How does the disorder behave? Between two and three weeks after exposure the silverlike blisters may be seen on the epidermis. There is usually headache, pains thruout the body, and a temperature which is moderate—rarely higher than 101 degrees F. The trunk and, later, the face, neck, and the extremities are attacked. Early manifestations will be reddish-pink in shade and pinhead in size. They change rather quickly to clear looking vesicles mounted on a red base. They have been described as resembling drops of water sprinkled on the cuticle.

Gradually the lesions will become pustular. Still later the drying [healing] process leads to the formation of scabs. At one and the same time the little patient may exhibit all three stages—bright red dots, blisters, and crusts.

The nursing program consists in keeping the child warm, away from others, and providing a light diet. The affected areas may well be left alone. In certain cases, however, a mild antiseptic ointment may be helpful in retarding the growth of bacteria likely to produce inflammation. If there is much itching a dilute solution of carbolic acid may be employed as the physician directs.

Complications, however, must be guarded against. If sponge baths are given the water must be changed frequently as streptococci from the skin may contaminate the blemishes. Occasionally the middle ear may be involved. But this is rare.

It is not safe to let the patient out of quarantine until all the pustules have healed completely. Suspects can go about their duties but should be watched for symptoms. They cannot convey it to others until they themselves break out. It is somewhat wiser, however, to keep them out of school until 10 days have elapsed following contact.

Of course there are exceptions and, in some instances, a more virulent type of virus may be at large in a community. In other words, an exposed youngster may act as a source of infection for several days before the rash appears.

Numerous incidents have been reported in children's hospitals where a victim had been admitted with no signs of chickenpox. Within a few days thereafter he came down with the trouble and was promptly isolated. In the meantime he had mingled with other tots, each of whom had contracted the disease altho none had the slightest association with him after the eruption became visible.

WANTS TO LOSE TAN.

O. L. writes: I have fair skin but this summer it became quite browned. Is there any quick way of bleaching it back to normal?

REPLY.

Some tan removers contain mercury and cannot be recommended. A solution of three parts hydrogen peroxide and two parts rosewater will do no harm, and may be applied to the skin with a wisp of cotton. Keep out of the sun and bright daylight. A lighter face powder and foundation may be useful.

A QUESTION OF CALORIES.

L. K. writes: Is one more likely to put on weight by eating fast or slowly?

REPLY.

If we wish to get the most out of our meals we eat slowly and masticate thoroly. Such a habit will enhance nutrition, altho it may not put on weight. Additional pounds depend upon the quantity and the character of our edibles. Those who grab, gulp, and run are thin because they obtain too little food. Furthermore, their menus lack balance.

A CROOKED WALL.

B. H. writes: I have been told that I am suffering from a deviated septum. Is this a serious condition?

REPLY.

Not as bad as it sounds. The septum is the partition wall which divides the nasal cavities into two parts—the left and the right. In very few of us is this structure perfect architecturally. The cartilage portion is likely to bend slightly one way or the other. Surgery is advised only when the distortion interferes with breathing.

MASTOID DISEASE.

N. D. writes: What is the treatment for a chronic mastoid infection—when operation is not recommended?

REPLY.

The use of one of the sulfanilamide drugs. Your physician will know.

VIEWS OF AN AMERICAN.

Chicago, Oct. 23.—The American citizens who study conditions in this country are justly disturbed at the attempt to change our form of government to suit the ideas of the present administration in Washington.

We are confronted with a constantly rising public debt and are warned constantly of increased open and hidden taxes which no one can prove are necessary for the defense of our own country. We have restrictions and shortages put into effect by the horde of unnecessary bureaus but generally without any proof for the reason. We find that countries in Europe, notably Great Britain, really have lighter burdens, considering they are at war, than we have.

There is a growing suspicion that is being gradually coming home to our citizens for several years that this is a planned campaign to change our form of government to a burocratic dictatorship with a royal family in the White House. What else can we think?

I find many people who cannot understand the friendship of high officials for the Russian form of government. It has not helped the Russian people much; it should have no appeal to the people of our country; we certainly would not be benefited by adopting any communistic ideas.

Every American citizen who is earning his living in this country will agree with a strong and efficient defense for the United States, and will contribute accordingly, provided that money is not wasted on political objectives and non-defense work.

The women of America will probably sacrifice comfort and money, but only to defend this country and not to send their sons to the battlefields of Europe, especially where sons and relatives of government officials sit at home in soft jobs at the expense of the taxpayers. We have many European aristocrats living here in security and comfort who should be at home defending their own countries.

The writer of this letter is of British ancestry and some of his family may now be fighting in the present war. I am opposed to dictators like Hitler and I have no knowledge of the sentiment of the German people, but I am an American citizen earning my living here, paying taxes here, and I am for America first, last, and always.

What we need in the United States is an American party, working for security on a sound and nonpolitical basis. We are not called upon to defend any European country but only our own country.

JUDGE HEBEL'S HEALTH.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—The Chicago Bar association in commenting on the qualifications of the candidates for election to the Superior court said that Judge Oscar Hebel should not be reelected because of "physical infirmities."

This statement was made without consulting Judge Hebel's family, his colleagues, his physician, or any one in a position to give the facts.

Members of the bar association committee on candidates who were questioned as to the basis of their statement gave evasive replies. If they had investigated Judge Hebel's record, covering 24 years on the Superior court bench, they would have learned that his attendance to the duties of his office has been almost 100 per cent. They also would have learned that for the last 11 years, in the appellate division, he has been one of the leaders in the numbers of opinions written and also has one of the lowest percentages of reversals by the Supreme court. Surely this record does not indicate "physical infirmities."

Furthermore, if the committee had taken the trouble to consult members of his family or his personal physician they would have learned that he is in excellent physical condition as evidenced by recent medical examinations.

The Chicago Bar association should confine their remarks to matters which directly concern the legal profession and should not attempt to set themselves up as a medical authority. FRED HEBEL.

WHAT DID ROOSEVELT EXPECT?

Streator, Ill., Oct. 23.—When the President and his aids announced to the world that we were out to get Hitler and all he stands for, and that we were going to carry the conflict across the Atlantic to him, we declared total war upon him; left no door open for a negotiated peace—only war to the death.

I have no comment to make on this declaration by the administration.

But after such a declaration is it not silly for those same officials to cry out to our people whenever a ship is torpedoed by Germany: "See what the so and so is doing to us! And we a neutral country minding our own business."

Having assured the world we were giving no quarter, let us be men and ask none. We asked for it. Let's show the world we can take it as well as give it.

AMERICAN.

ORDERS FROM BRITAIN.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—So Britain tells us we must fight the Japs. Lord Beaverbrook tells us he and Harriman have pledged our help to Stalin. Have the British accomplished their aim of adding our United States to their empire?

We pro-Americans are still 80 per cent strong and will insist on keeping our boys on American soil. We have intelligent men here who could give our government better advice than the lords of England.

The British are solely for the good of their empire; let us be the same toward our country. A LOYAL AMERICAN.

CLAMORS FOR HASTE.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—Today there is plenty of pathos in our world without adding to it all by getting a false slant on things. It is in line with our American policy of free speech for THE TRIBUNE to enlighten its readers concerning the mistakes—intentional and unintentional—of our politicians. Governmental errors should be exposed, for after all, it still is going to be a government of the people providing we are watchful.

But your efforts to prevent our entry into an overseas war are so all-consuming that you almost forget to encourage a speedy strengthening among us for our own good. Your failure to call more frequently for quick defensive strength is causing people to infer that there is no haste needed. It's better to be an invalid with free speech than a healthy Hitler slave with no speech. Let's enlarge the old biceps, quick! O. P.

FOR A GOOD EVENING PAPER.

River Forest, Ill., Oct. 23.—How about giving the people of Chicago a break and starting an honest to goodness evening paper?

We are so sick of the other evening papers that we don't know what to do. If we break down and get the "war sheet" we go to bed with indigestion, and have nightmares all night. If we get the others we find ourselves in almost as bad a state, not from war so much, but from beauty contests and movie gossip.

A good women's page, uncolored news, a home paper such as we used to have before the one we now have went "haywire," would go over big. I know for every one is kicking at what is being dished out to the people of Chicago as an evening paper.

Please, TRIBUNE, do something about it. A WOMAN.

MEDICAL MEETING [WHITE].

Chicago, Oct. 22.—In the October issue of the Illinois Medical Journal is an advertisment signed by the Southern Medical association, which has headquarters in Birmingham, headed "In Step with Progress for 35 Years." It announces: "All white members of the Illinois Medical society are cordially invited to be guests of the Southern Medical association at the meeting in St. Louis."

In an accompanying letter Secretary C. P. Loranz says: "We can assure you at St. Louis of everything desirable in a medical meeting where you will be just one of the boys in the midst of genuine southern hospitality."

How about the four freedoms? Not for the colored doctors?

MORE CARS IN RUSH HOURS.

Chicago, Oct. 23.—At certain hours of the day when school students, workmen, office employés, and shoppers are going home, there is a tendency to fill the cars of the Chicago Surface lines to such a capacity that one is unable to get off the car at his street. During the rush hours more street cars should be put on to carry the overflow. H. A. LURIE.

ESTATE ASSETS.

Waukegan, Ill., Oct. 15.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My father died recently and named me executor in his will. He left personal property and one-third real estate to his wife and residue to four children.

1. Will this will have to be probated before property can be sold and proceeds divided? I have been told to see a certain lawyer who could "tip" me off as to how this estate could be settled without costs which eat up estates so quickly.
2. Is this possible?
3. Is my first duty to consult a lawyer? My sister was buying a piece of land from my father on contract—a deed to be given when $1,000 had been paid.
4. Is the contract considered personal property of the wife now?
5. Can she give the daughter a deed as there is only $40 left to pay on the first thousand? Approximately how much would it cost to probate an estate of $5,000? T. W.

1. Ordinarily probate is advisable where real estate is involved. At least we would advise you to have a personal interview with an attorney.
2. We are not in a position to say that it is impossible.
3. See 1 and 2.
4. Under the contract what your father was to receive was money and hence the contract interest is regarded as personal property. If, in the probate, this asset is turned over to the wife then it will be "personal property of the wife."
5. Depends on whether an attorney is employed and on other facts that are not before us. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

INSTALMENT XLII.

THREE PASSENGERS.

From an inside pocket the inspector produced a similar passport—Cousin Lou's.

"But Madame did visit London!" he accused. "Here is the record—Feb. 10 to 15 of this year. You knew this, Monsieur?"

"But I told you I knew it! She flew over — and now I know why. It was to buy that Marie Antoinette necklace, but see here, where's the connection between—"

"Only this, monsieur: Madame herself may have purchased these tablets—or more probably she had some English friend obtain them for her, since I understand English chemists sell this preparation only to persons known to them and willing to sign their names in a book. Altho a commercial product, Benz-Vite is listed as a dangerous drug."

Two things hit me: Horace had never set eyes on this bottle, and till now he'd not even known that such tablets existed. He was asking weakly how the inspector knew they had belonged to madame.

"I will show you." The inspector conducted us thru my bedroom into the dressing room beyond. "Look! This afternoon, during another scrupulous search of the apartment, I discovered the empty bottle here.

Like a conjurer doing his stuff he yanked out the ornamental top of a mahogany tallboy and exhibited a shallow drawer. Horace blinked. So did I.

"I see. Never knew it was a drawer. Wh-what did she want these tablets for?"

The inspector shrugged. "To provide youthful energy, monsieur. Benz-Vite has a strong tonic effect. Too strong, that is why it is dangerous." He made a grim pause.

"How do you mean dangerous?" Horace quavered.

"Thru overstimulation. Students undergoing examinations have derived spectacular benefits from it for a time, and the same would apply to persons eager for rejuvenation, but there are cases on record where the after results have been disastrous. Picture the heart, the arteries, the entire human machinery being speeded up to high tension. Have you ever watched a rat enclosed in a sealed cylinder of oxygen?"

"Good lord! And—and you say any one can buy these damned tablets without a doctor's prescription?"

"Under the conditions I have named. Now then, monsieur, mademoiselle. You can positively assure me you were both ignorant of the fact that madame was having recourse to this Benz-Vite?"

"Of course we didn't know it! I'll sign a statement, I'll—"

"Your word will suffice. One now asks, have there been other bottles? I have telephoned this London chemist. He declares he has never sold more than a single bottle at a time, but it is possible madame obtained a supply from other shops. I have here the names of persons to whom Featherstone sold Benz-Vite during certain days in February. Will you tell me if any of them is known to you?"

Horace studied the list and pointed to the third name.

"That one, yes—Mrs. Hartley Worthington, Grosvenor House, Park Lane. I don't know her, but my sister-in-law did." He swallowed and demanded what all this amounted to. "Are you trying to suggest madame took enough of these fool tablets to—to kill herself?"

The inspector gave a contemptuous snort. "Not knowingly, monsieur. That is not my idea. Still, a long pursued course of this medicine may have paved the way, shall we say, for what did occur. What if a visitor that last afternoon, some one aware of these habitual doses, crushed a number of tablets and let them dissolve in the soup the victim was to consume for her evening meal?"

Horace straightened to his full six feet, and his hair seemed to rise with him.

"Gosh almighty, so that's what you're aiming at! Why the heck didn't you say so before?"

He had spoken in English, but the inspector caught the drift. "Bien!" The brown eyes snapped. "And who among her visitors can have possessed this particular and private knowledge? A secret jealously guarded from her relatives, her domestics? That, monsieur, is the question I put to you."

Little bubbles appeared on Horace's lips. "I—I don't know."

"Will this assist you, monsieur?" The inspector had another typed list ready and flourished it before Horace's eyes. "I have obtained it from the air field at Le Bourget, where madame changed planes on her flight from Cannes to London. The names represent her fellow travelers."

I looked over their shoulders. Mrs. Marie Louise Rentrew, I read, and immediately beneath it M. Raoul Goncourt de Chabenil.

I felt for Horace, big baby that he was. He hadn't known what now struck him full between the eyes; his wince was too real. But the next second I wasn't bothering about his reactions, for right at the bottom of the list I'd seen this name:

Mr. Miles Abercorn Dorsey, British subject.

The room went black.

Dimly I rubbed a hurt elbow and warded off strong ammonia the inspector had pushed under my nose.

"It's nothing," I muttered. "Maybe I'd better lie down."

Horace said absently that he didn't think I'd ever quite got over the ether attack.

"No?" The inspector breathed skeptically. "So it appears . . ."

They helped me on to my bed and left me there with a cup of camomile tea. What they said to one another after that remained a sealed book. I heard the inspector go away. Horace's own door closed and that was all, except for my seething fancies.

Miles had never let on about making a trip to London in the same aeroplane with Cousin Lou and her lover. Now Miles was off again. . . . But was he? I couldn't even be sure of that.

I wondered if the police in their respective minds were as troubled as I was about the nursing home fire escape—yes, and the fire alarm that had fizzled out. Had any one told them how the young English solicitor had shut himself in a telephone box and then deftly vanished? Or that the victim had accused him of matrimonial advances?

De Chabenil had helped buy the necklace at the Christie sale, maybe put Cousin Lou up to buying it, but Miles must have known about the purchase. It was mentioned in The Times, a paper Miles Dorsey would certainly read. I still swore to myself that De Chabenil had stolen the necklace. Suppose, tho, Miles himself had intended to do the stealing? He had had Alixe's latch key. . . .

Morning took me by surprise, so I must have slept, in broken snatches. I sat up, brusquely aware of a conclusion I'd missed.

"Ben-Vite tablets! Does this let Borosh clean out?"

It seemed so. They were certainly making next to nothing of his death. It would sweep away all my carefully dovetailed theories. Hortense, Manx, to some extent even Alixe Jourdain would be completely washed out. I wondered if Horace and I both had misunderstood Dr. Legrand's remarks. French in the vernacular isn't always simple to grasp.

On the other hand, there was nothing equivocal about the tablets Cousin Lou had been taking. I could believe Raoul De Chabenil had advised them, and it was easy to see why an aging woman, eager just then to be young and vital, would have seized on them with avidity. What I couldn't see was the man who derived benefit from feeding that woman sufficient tablets to cause her death.

That act could be performed only by a person cheated of future hopes where profits were concerned—a person determined to grab something negotiable, polishing the owner off before she could raise a hue and cry. Such a person, seated in the same plane, might have caught a reference to Benz-Vite tablets. Later he might chance what a heavy dose would do soon after a mild paralytic stroke.

I'd told Miles the jewels were in the apartment and where. The same night some one tried to get at them. Next day Miles heard from Horace that an inquest would be held. On that night, Wednesday, the necklace was returned to the safe.

My known facts, then pointed to two people, the balance tipped by what? An elusive odor. Only that. Too insubstantial to mention to any one—any one. I'd stronger reason than ever now for not uttering a peep.

"And again, if Louis Borosh doesn't figure, has it been worth any person's while to kill him?"

At this point I downed tools.

Round 11 o'clock I was in the Rue du Berri, turning into the building next the little restaurant where I'd given Nurse Martin lunch.

GREEN INSPECTS MEDICAL CENTER; HE'S IMPRESSED

Walks Miles Thru Halls of U. of I. Buildings.

BY PERCY WOOD.

Gov. Dwight Green yesterday walked miles thru state units of the vast medical center on Chicago's southwest side, inspecting the University of Illinois medical, dental, and pharmacy schools and hospitals.

It was an impressive day for him, the governor said, as he paced the last of the block long corridors which had confronted him for almost six hours. He was pleased by what he saw and heard and singled out for an especial word of praise the shining new $1,500,000 neuro-psychiatric institute, which will be opened soon.

During the last few weeks the governor has been depressed by the condition of patients he has seen during inspections of state hospitals for the insane and feeble minded, but he brightened yesterday when he was shown thru the splendidly equipped institute which is dedicated to research in mental diseases.

A "Great Contribution."

"They say it is the finest in the world, and after seeing it I don't believe that that is an overstatement," Green said. "If their researches bring some help to those terribly unfortunate persons, it will be a great contribution."

The governor's principal guides for the day were Dean D. J. Davis of the medical school, Dr. Paul L. Schroeder, state criminologist; Dr. Harry Hoffman, state allenist and executive officer of the new institute, and Dr. Eric Oldberg, professor of neuro-surgery. He also enjoyed a visit with Dr. Francis Lederer, who removed the tonsils of one of the governor's daughters a few years ago.

The brightest spot of the tour occurred when the governor visited the hospital for crippled children. He stayed so long talking to the alert, if bedridden, youngsters that he was thrown off his schedule. David Marshall of Centralia, who is 12 years old and came to the hospital with bad burns, was wide eyed but still completely self-possessed after the governor chatted with him for 10 minutes, and one carrot top, whom the governor addressed naturally with "Hi Red," grinned steadily and delightedly for 10 minutes after his visitor had signed an autograph book and moved on to another bed.

Referees Checker Game.

While his guides stood around on one foot Green also refereed a checker game between two lads with casts on their legs, and made sure that he stopped at each bedside for a cheerful word, a handshade, or a pat on the shoulder.

At noon the governor joined students and carried a tray in the cafeteria of the newly opened Illini Union building at 715 South Wood street, where the first meal was being served. Then he went to the quadrangle of the schools to speak to the student body. He reminded them that in most of Europe medical research is at a standstill because of the war, while Illinois is proud to be able to provide its scientists and students with tools and places in which to work.

TODAY THE LAST TO ENJOY EXTRA DAYLIGHT HOUR

Daylight saving time for Chicagoland residents for 1941 will end tomorrow when clocks will be turned back one hour to central standard time for the winter. Altho 2 a. m. tomorrow is the official time for the clock changing, most persons will make the change before they go to bed tonight.

For the first time since summer daylight saving was started in 1918, Chicagoans and most of the nearby communities enjoyed an extra month of daylight saving time. In the past daylight saving time, which begins the last Sunday in April, has been ended the last Sunday in September.

Setting the clock back an hour will not interrupt railroad service. Commuters will find their trains running at the usual hours. Suburban service which operated on the daylight saving time will be placed on central standard time. Thru trains and most other transportation services in and out of the city operated on central time during the daylight saving period.

Judicial Candidates

(This is another of a series of sketches of the nominees for the Cook county judicial election of Nov. 4. They are being published in the order in which the candidates' names appear on the ballot.)

BY PERCY WOOD.

REPUBLICAN.

Attorney Eugene P. Kealy, an Evanstonian, born in Bloomington 53 years ago, will have 18th place on the Republican Superior court ballot. In the legal profession he is best known as a trial lawyer and former counsel for the United States Fidelity and Guaranty company.

Eugene P. Kealy.

Kealy attended John Marshall High school on the west side, then went to the University of Illinois. He was graduated from the Chicago Kent College of Law and was admitted to the bar in 1912. When the World war came, Kealy enlisted and rose to the rank of captain in the construction division of the Quartermaster corps.

This war service interrupted Kealy's connection with the Fidelity and Guaranty company, but he returned there after the war, became counsel in 1924, and continued with the concern until 1934. He has been in general practice since then. Kealy has practiced in the Circuit and Superior courts for 20 years.

DEMOCRAT.

Judge Rudolph F. Desort, youngest man ever elected to the Superior court in Cook county, was 33 years old when he mounted the bench 11 years ago. He has been reslated by the Democrats for a third term and will have 18th place on their ballot.

Judge Desort.

The judge was born in Prague, in Bohemia, in 1897, while his parents were on a visit there, but he has passed almost all his life in Chicago. He attended Jirka grammar and Harrison High schools, and earned a law degree at De Paul university in 1920. The late Gov. Henry Horner, as Probate judge, appointed Judge Desort one of his assistants in 1923, and he remained in that court until his election to the Superior bench in 1930. He was re-elected in 1935.

Out of his considerable experience in hearing divorce cases, Judge Desort sponsored several reform measures which the legislature passed. They included the bill to end "gin marriages" by requiring the filing of a notice of intention to wed.

NEVER GIVE RAT A CHANCE, THIS PRIEST'S CREED

Stalks Them at Night with Gun and Light.

After midnight, when all is quiet in the neighborhood of St. David's church, 3210 South Union avenue, the Rev. Joseph McNamee and some of his boys set out after man's greatest pest, the rat. Armed with a light and a small bore shotgun, the white haired, little priest roams the alleys, waiting for the rodent to step out for his evening meal.

Father McNamee made a trip to the loop yesterday to explain his rat extermination methods at a mass-meeting opening rat control week in the Woman's City club.

"The rats sleep all day, then come out in the alleys about midnight for food," he said. "I put some meat out for bait, shine a flashlight, or the car lights down the alley, kneel over at one side and wait for them. I get eight or 10 rats every time. We've probably killed 100 since June.

Boy Kills 12 in Night.

"At first all the women stuck their heads out the windows," he continued, "but not any more. One of the boys got 12 one night. 'Course you have to stay up late. Last year I paid an exterminator $50 to get rid of the rats, but that's too expensive. Of course," he interposed, "it might be dangerous, but nobody's in the alley at 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning."

The rats aren't as bad as they used to be, he assured the civic leaders, but the pests come in from other neighborhoods.

"It's a job for the police or health department to put a man in each ward to shoot the rats," Father McNamee insisted. "It would be a fine job for the precinct captain. He gets paid and doesn't do a whole lot."

But G. C. Oderkirk of the department of the interior, division of predatory animal and rodent control, one of the four experts who discussed the problem, objected on one point.

"The government has done a big job in this work," he said. "We feel that the householders should do their part by eliminating the harborings and food supplies of the rat."

Asks Home Coöperation.

Charles S. Eaton of the public works department urged that a million housewives coöperate with the department in exterminating Chicago's rat population of 798,813. He said that an estimated 1,397,850 rats in open holes had been destroyed since September, 1940, but many more are in the interiors.

"And our pests will be yours when they move to their winter homes in warm basements," he warned. "They come in thru the water drains, climb vines, and dig thru stone foundations."

Householders were urged to keep their premises free of rubbish, protect basement doors and windows with screens, fill rat holes with chloride of lime and seal them with cement mixed with glass.

Edmund Iwanski, who was sentenced on Nov. 19, 1940, to 1 to 20 years for bombing two milk stations at 2821 Milwaukee avenue and 5716 Elston avenue, also is seeking his freedom. Others include:

James Callahan, now 17, who in June, 1939, was sentenced to a year to life. He, at 15, was a gun toter, purse snatcher, and had confessed 25 burglaries.

FUNERAL TODAY FOR DR. NOYES, U. OF I. SCIENTIST

Chemist Dies at 83 After Heart Attack.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 24 [Special]. —Funeral services for Dr. William Albert Noyes, internationally known chemist, will be held tomorrow morning. Dr. Noyes died early today at the age of 83 after a heart attack suffered last Sunday.

Dr. W. A. Noyes.

He was professor emeritus of chemistry at the University of Illinois and was credited with guiding the institution's chemistry department to its position of prominence. Illinium, the first chemical element discovered in America, was isolated in university laboratories in 1926, the last year Dr. Noyes headed the department.

Monument to His Career.

The Noyes chemical laboratory on the campus, which was named for him two years ago, is a monument to his distinguished career.

The university tradition against naming buildings for living men was broken for him and for Dr. A. N. Talbot, engineering professor emeritus, for whom the materials testing laboratory was named.

Dr. Noyes was the author of numerous textbooks and scientific papers and was the recipient of international honors in the field of chemistry. He was editor of the Journal of The American Chemistry association from 1902 to 1917.

Born Near Independence, Ia.

Dr. Noyes was born near Independence, Ia. He attended Grinnell college and later received degrees from Johns Hopkins, Clark university, and the University of Pittsburgh.

Before coming to the University of Illinois in 1907 he was professor of chemistry at the University of Tennessee from 1883 to 1886, at Rose Polytechnic institute from 1886 to 1903, and chemist for the National Bureau of Standards from 1903 to 1907.

Surving are four sons, W. Albert Noyes Jr., head of the chemistry department at the University of Rochester; Charles E. of Washington, D. C.; Richard M., graduate student at California Institute of Technology, and H. Pierre Noyes, a sophomore at Harvard.

Clifford Gehrke, 11 years old, of Round Lake, Lake county, was in serious condition last night in St. Therese hospital, Waukegan, as the result of a hunting accident.

BARBARA KLETT IS DEAD AT 88; FUNERAL TODAY

Funeral services for Mrs. Barbara Klett, member of an early Chicago family, will be conducted today at 2 p. m. in the chapel at 4230 West 26th street, with burial in Bohemian National cemetery. Mrs. Klett died Wednesday in her home at 3146 South Kedvale avenue. She was 88 years old.

Mrs. Klett was brought to Chicago as an infant in 1854, and often recalled stirring days of the city's early history. She accompanied her father in the family carriage to the lake shore to look for survivors of the Lady Elgin disaster in 1861. In 1865 she saw the body of President Lincoln lying in state. And in 1871 the family escaped the great fire, which started half a block south in the barn of their friend, Mrs. O'Leary, with only the loss of a barn.

Mrs. Klett is survived by two sons, George and John.

Ravaging of Cornfields Begins for Halloween Party Decoration

BY JUDITH CASS.

THERE won't be a cornstalk left in farmers' fields by Wednesday morning for boys and girls and grownups, too, are commandeering them for use as Halloween party decorations. First of the black cats and witches on broomsticks parties will be the barn dance which students of the Francis Parker school will give for their parents in the school's old gymnasium Monday evening.

Each grade at Parker is meeting at a classmate's home for cider and doughnuts before going on to the party. Subdeb Joan Mitchell, a senior at Parker, will entertain her class at the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. James Herbert Mitchell of Lake Shore drive.

The grownups will have another fling at ducking for apples and telling ghost stories at a party which the William E. Vogelbacks are planning for Friday evening in their home in Delaware place.

Saddle and Cycle Club to Have Halloween Touch.

Tho it's not primarily a Halloween party, there probably will be a touch of Halloween spirit at the formal dance at the Saddle and Cycle club Saturday evening. During the evening trophies will be presented to the club's new tennis champions, Miss Sarah Hinde, women's singles; Robert K. Smith, men's singles, and Henry R. Gross and Wells Farnham, men's doubles. Mrs. Robert T. Wheeler, Mrs. Maurice Geraghty, Mrs. Louis C. Sudler, Herbert Stratford, John Root, and Thomas I. Underwood, president of the club, form the committee in charge of arrangements for the party.

John Bayler's Halloween party will be a treasure hunt for the recently married John A. Chichesters [Jane Weary]. Altho the party isn't until next Friday, guests already have received the first clew thru rhymed invitations which were delivered by telegram.

Plenty of shudders will creep up the spines of the youthful audience this morning in the Chicago Historical society, where the Chicago Junior league Children's theater is presenting "Little Red Riding Hood" at 10:45 o'clock. Miss Barbara Burnham is the "Little Red Riding Hood" whom two wolves will pursue. Others in the cast are Miss Mary Walsh, Miss Anne Strong, Mrs. Richard Spencer, Mrs. Charles A. Chapin, Mrs. Otto Schilling, and Miss Kathleen Kelly.

Wayne-Du Page Having Hunt Trials Tomorrow.

With all thanks to the weather man, the Wayne-Du Page hunt will hold its hunter trials in the pastures adjoining the mare barn in Wayne tomorrow. Both the Longmeadow and the Mill Creek trials had to be postponed because of wet grounds. The Mill Creek hunt will hold its trials next Sunday and the Longmeadow the following Sunday.

Tomorrow's trials start at 10 o'clock with an open class. The hunt class and hunter team trials will be held after luncheon. The judges will be Mrs. Orton Prime of Oconomowoc and Clark J. Lawrence, former master of the Longmeadow. Charles R. Lindsay III. is master of the Wayne-Du Page hunt.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy J. Barnett of Sheridan road announce the engagement of their daughter, Frances, to Herbert John Naper Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Naper of Wilmette. The wedding is planned for Dec. 27.

Two of Chicago's grandes dames will be receiving birthday felicitations within the next few days, but neither is having a party. Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman will be receiving the good wishes of her friends tomorrow in her apartment at the Ambassador East, and Mrs. Hugh J. McBirney will be accepting congratulations on Tuesday at the Homestead at the Virginia Hot Springs. Her daughter, Mrs. Henry B. Stimson of New York, is there with Mr. Stimson, who will return to Chicago Nov. 1.

Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Kohler Are Parents of Daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert V. Kohler are the parents of a daughter born yesterday morning in the Presbyterian hospital. The baby has been named for her mother, the former Ruth De Young of Chicago. When Mrs. Kohler and little Ruth go home to Kohler, Wis., the baby will share the nursery of Herbert Jr., who was 2 years old last February.

An old fashioned outing and autumn picnic are on the calendars of Wells college alumnae and their families for tomorrow. The party will be given at the country estate of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Reed of Prairie View.

The Tavern club yesterday afternoon "filled the flowing bowl," a generous silver one, and drank to the success of its newly decorated dining rooms in champagne punch. While members exchanged greetings around the punch bowl in the lounge, a tour of inspection went on thru the new green, gray, and white rooms at the opposite end of the hall.

Among those who made reservations for the first dinner to be served in the new rooms were John R. Winterbotham, president of the club, Jason Whitney, Franklyn B. Snyder, Gabriel F. Slaughter, Noel Flint, who "did" the room, Herbert Libberton, Fred A. Poor, G. R. Schaeffer, Charles A. Donnell, Marshall Seeburg, Arthur Farwell, and Charles D. Frey.

THRU THE LOOKING GLASS

To our mind, there are few "little touches" as beguiling with evening dress as a distinctive and pretty hair ornament. Sometimes an ornament alone can make all the difference between just an average appearance and a striking one—and that goes for subdebs as well as mature, chic women.

We've just seen some little beauties—amazingly inexpensive—that pack a terrific style and glamor wallop. There are, for example, for the golden girls, large and small black velvet bows dotted with rhinestones, that look marvelous when nestled in smooth, fair hair.

There are also feather flowers, attached to good, snug combs. These are in beautiful colors and we'd suggest that you use two, for striking color combinations, such as pink and wine, or dead black and pink, or pink and fuchsia.

One of the most dazzling of all the ornaments is a huge pouf of maline in gold, black, or red, with spangles. This too is fastened to a comb and can be arranged to make a striking little evening hat or just a fluttery, flattering ornament.

Then, for the youngsters there are little tiaras or orchid tips in lovely colors, some plain and some in combination. One of the prettiest is green, white, pink, and wine. And one of the nicest plain colored ones is in a soft green.

Also in this collection there are a raft of real shell combs—which are getting scarcer by the minute—and some elegant black sequinned butterflies—probably the most attractive hair ornament ever designed.

Looking at Hollywood

By John Chapman

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 24.—The dream of any showman is an all-star cast. Broadway gets an occasional all-star cast in the players' too-infrequent spring revivals. Hollywood, where actors cost more per ounce than prevention itself, almost never gets one. But it is rejoicing at the moment in two. One all-star cast has been working in a picture for charity; the other is engaged upon a purely commercial venture.

The commercial job is an interesting one; for one thing, it took 14 months of palaver to put it together, and for another, if every star got his regular per-picture pay the production cost might even exceed that of "Gone With the Wind."

The commercial job is "Tales of Manhattan," which is being produced by Boris Morros and Samuel Spiegel at 20th-Fox. Fourteen months ago it started when a dinner group including Spiegel, Charles Bracket, Billy Wilder, Walter Reisch, and others began gabbing about whether or not it would be possible to write an episodic scenario—a scenario in which six or eight stories would be set in motion. They wondered if this kind of job could be done so that it would hold an audience. Then somebody said, "let's try it."

A few weeks later this idly-started project had progressed to the point where a peg was found upon which six stories could be hung. The peg was a full dress suit. [The movie really should be called "Tails of Manhattan."] The career of this suit, from New York high society to a scarecrow's post down south, would tie all the tales together.

Ensuing months were devoted to finding and developing the stories. The first episode, very fancy, was found in a one-act play by Ferenc Molnar, whose dramaturgical cake-frostings are Gilbert Miller's favorite reading matter. The second episode is high comedy in rich but raffish surroundings, like "The Philadelphia Story." Rich, raffish Donald Ogden Stewart, and Samuel Hoffenstein worked this one out of the first act of a play by Ladislas Fodor, another mittel European pastry cook.

Number three is musical comedy stuff, involving a boogie woogie bar pianist who is an artist at heart and who sells a great orchestral work to Toscanini. He conducts his own work in Carnegie Hall, wearing the third hand set of tails; the tails split down the back and the audience splits laughing, but Toscanini, up in a box, quells them by taking off his own tailcoat and sitting in his shirt-sleeves. Number four is gangster melodrama. Number five is a comedy notion evolved by W. C. Fields, and will be played by him. Number six finds the tailcoat falling out of an airplane among impoverished colored sharecroppers, with $50,000 of stickup money in the pocket. The dough is straight from heaven to these poor folk, and one man is found who has been praying for a scarecrow.

Many writers have labored on this job, with Sam Hoffenstein and Ben Hecht giving it the final scrub-up.

The all-star charity film, "Forever and a Day," is also in six episodes. In this one the actors are working for free. RKO will distribute it for free, and has advanced the money for labor and material at bank rates. The picture was conceived as a Hollywood-British venture by Sir Cedric Hardwicke, and is being made by both British and American stars. Writers and directors without number have worked on it.

The film is a sort of "Cavalcade," starting in 1804 and ending this year. Four episodes have already been shot, under the direction of Herbert Wilcox, James Stephenson, Victor Saville, Rene Clair, and Peter Godfrey.

A reception will follow the ceremony. After their return from a wedding trip Mr. Felton and his bride will make their home in Lake Shore drive.

Percussion Experimentalist.

A newcomer to Chicago this season is John Cage, 29 year old, California-born composer and conductor of experimental music and new member of the staff of L. Moholy-Nagy's School of Design. Cage, pupil of Adolph Weiss, Henry Cowell, and Arnold Schoenberg, and formerly on the staff of Mills college, has collected some one hundred and fifty percussion instruments, and conducts a class in experiments in sound at the School of Design. He also is associated with Kay Manning at the University of Chicago in connection with music for the modern dance. Some of the percussion instruments in his collection: claves, cowbells, quijadas, maracas, bongos, drums, marimbula, rattles, tincans, string pianos, tamourines, cymbals, gongs.

The purpose of Cage's experiments is the exploration of sounds and rhythms heretofore not considered musical. A newspaper clipping of a review of one of his percussion concerts at Mills college calls it "endlessly fascinating." "There was something epical," wrote the San Francisco critic, "in seeing William Russell pound on a suitcase in his Chicago Sketches, for the delicious thud that only a suitcase can provide."

In the Fog.

The other day when fog was holding up airplane landings and take-offs a plane came into the municipal airport from Minneapolis but could not land because of the poor visibility. It flew back to Minneapolis. As it set down at the Minneapolis airport a passenger who had slept thru the return trip inquired, "Can I get a taxicab to the Stevens?" "You can if you want to drive 400 miles," he was told.

MY TEARS.

I can not weep for those who lie
Beneath a quiet evening sky . . .
A green sky with the night falling,
The snow down and the lambs calling.

Such golden peace they know at last,
Far from the strivings of the past;
No grief to them will I be giving,
Ah, no . . . my tears are for the living.

All-Black Coat Still Favored in Fashion Parade

BY REA SEEGER.

Important winter coats without fur and with fur, together with some stunning new models that feature the fur trim reduced to the narrowest of bands, and similar restrained outlines and accents are timely finds. Many of the most unusual models are those cut with plenty of fabric in the skirts, sometimes almost excessive fullness at the sides, sometimes gathers at the sides and back. The tops are all smoothly snug and fitted, the sleeves easy to slide into no matter how full and complicated the sleeves of the dress or suit under the coat.

High colored coats, especially the brilliant shades of red wool, are cooled down with bands of inky black fur, such as caracul, Persian lamb and sealskin. Other colored coats such as bottle green, the many shades of beige ranging from pale beige to deep caramel, are tremendously popular this season because of the lavish use of deep brown fur for contrast. But the sleek distinguished all-black coats still lead the parade of fashion. The unfurred models are perfect finds as they are the ideal coats to wear with fur scarfs and fur muffs or to dramatize with cuff-muffs of fur. Most of these all-black classics are fitted in at the waistline and can be changed with belts of fur, gold or silver, kidskin or colored leather or combinations of metal and leather.

Coats of wool and velvet are grand buys, especially the models without fur. These coats are dress parade and simply designed so they also can be worn for any daytime occasion. The velvet is usually used along the waist and hiplines or for deep yokes, as well as collars and cuffs. The velvet is appliqued in bands so the entire effect is one of extreme simplicity. When fur is used for bands it, too, is narrow.

Mothers' Club "Frolics."

The De Paul academy Mothers' club will hold its annual Autumn Frolics this evening at the De Paul auditorium.

On the House

Uses of aluminum paint around a house include: A bright finish indoors for pipes and water tanks and gas plates. . . . Also as a priming coat for newly plastered walls. . . . You can even stipple on this aluminum paint with a sponge as an attractive temporary finish. . . . Aluminum paint can be brushed on or used in a spray gun, if properly thinned so that it will atomize easily. . . . It is effective over woods that do not hold paint well [an example—yellow pine] and woods that "bleed" can be sealed with an aluminum primer.

Good Morning!

You'll search a long time before you discover a picture with a more alluring assortment of dissa and datta than has "Hold Back the Dawn."

A glance at the cast assures you that what every woman wants is there—namely Charles Boyer. . . . Then, look, lads—Olivia de Havilland! And Paulette Goddard for those who prefer sass to sweetness. . . . These are the main characters but never did you find a finer group of supporting players that lend sheen to this production.

My opening remarks may seem a bit frivolous, but the picture is not. . . . It is rich, honest human drama, presented with originality and force, directed with cunning and much intuitive understanding of men and women—their weaknesses—and their greatnesses.

It tells the story of a fascinating scroundel; a dancer who has made his living off the infatuation of wealthy women. . . . The war causes him to drift from the once glittering and profitable haunts of Europe to a little Mexican border town where, at the Hotel Esperanza, he waits with other refugees to get into the United States. . . . He is like to despair, for according to his "quota" he must hang around for eight long years ere he can gain entrance, when a former dancing partner, Anita, blows in and says he can cut the period to four weeks by marrying an American. . . . Anita—she admits it—is "dirt" just like Iscovescu, over whom she has always been mad.

And now, on the Fourth of July, when many Americans cross the border to celebrate in the Mexican town, comes Miss Brown, a little Azusa school teacher in a station wagon with a handful of school children to be shown the sights. . . . George looks upon her, questions her adroitly, finds she is naive and unmarried—and, by cleverly putting her car out of service succeeds in having her remain long enough to—become Mrs. Iscovescu. . . . BUT—

He had not counted on the perspicacity of Inspector Hammock of the United States immigration service, who wastes no time in telling Anita that he is wise to the marriage racket.

Miss Brown returns home with her school children. She comes back the following week to honeymoon with her new husband. . . . From here on I shall leave developments for the picture to reveal.

The beautifully acted story develops naturally and fascinatingly. The main theme is enriched by glowing bits snatched from the lives of the many who wistfully wait to become citizens of our great country. . . . I think you will never forget the vignette contributed by Rosemary DeCamp. What an actress she is!

Miss De Havilland gives a moving and distinguished performance. She can be so beautiful—and so plain! Miss Goddard is the little tramp she knows so well how to portray—gay, unmoral and unpredictable. . . . Charles Boyer—Ah-hhh-hhhh! And how that Walter Abel does make himself felt!

The action is backgrounded by memorable scenery. . . . Gay flashes of humor soften the edges of tragedy, and lighten moments of almost unbearable suspense.

You will LOVE the finale.

See you tomorrow.

Oct. 25, 1941.

Universal day—The best laid plans are likely to go awry today. Make plans flexible.

November—The coming month will be a five month for those in a three year. This means some changes are due. If you don't make the changes yourself, they may be thrust upon you at a time when you aren't ready to take advantage of them. If you have been thinking that you would shift a few things around, do it now. You may find this an exciting month and those who have made new friendships this year may find a romantic tinge to the picture now. Do something different next month. Sharpen your wits. This would be a splendid month to promote yourself and your business, advertise, sell, push sales, take a trip, and inject new ideas into your business.

Control Your Child Always by Affection

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.
[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"I wish I knew what to do about a bleating woman and a man who is unreasonably strict with his children."

I looked up at my friend, amazed at such vehemence in so mild a person.

"Perhaps you know I paid a long delayed visit to my brother's home this fall, but I assure you my next visit will be after all the youngsters are grown up and married," she continued.

"Ellen, their mother, bleats, no other word expresses it, about them to John, and he metes out punishment right and left. The children don't know which way to turn, and their lives are being spent in placating their mother and keeping out of their father's way as much as is humanely possible, since they all live under the same roof.

"Mealtimes are, of course, impossible. Just a continuous procession of dos and don'ts. But the thing that worries me most is the deceit practiced by the children in order to have a little peace and, at the same time, save themselves from punishment. 'Let's do this,' or 'let's go here or there, but don't let dad or mother know about it.'

"I knew that anything I attempted to do about the situation would, perhaps, make matters worse, so I made my visit as short as possible. I can't get the matter out of my mind, however," she sighed.

It is really pitiful when parents and children find themselves poles apart, simply because complaints and discipline crowd out understanding and affection. Obedience can be gained in dozens of different ways if we differentiate between that word and the word domination.

Sinai Temple to Mark Eighty Years' Service

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Chicago and Illinois will pay formal tribute tomorrow to 80 years of spiritual and cultural service of the Chicago Sinai congregation, 4600 South Park way. Gov. Green and Mayor Kelly, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Thomas V. Shannon of St. Thomas the Apostle Catholic church, and Dean Charles W. Gilkey of the Rockefeller Memorial chapel, University of Chicago, will speak at the birthday dinner tomorrow night at the Palmer House.

Dr. Louis L. Mann, spiritual leader of the congregation, announced that Dr. James G. Heller of Cincinnati, president of the Central conference of American Rabbis, will be the anniversary preacher at a special religious service of commemoration tomorrow morning.

Dr. Mann said yesterday that Sinai was the first in the United States to be organized as a Reform congregation. It was a direct outgrowth, he said, of the Reform verein, and was established in June, 1857, to meet the spiritual needs of younger and progressive groups among Chicago Jews. Bernard Felsenthal was the secretary of the verein, and the first rabbi of the congregation.

"From this beginning, Sinai congregation has grown thru four score years to become one of the foremost Reform congregations in the world," said Dr. Mann. "Thru its temple and auxiliary organizations, Sinai furnishes spiritual guidance to a community of 5,000 persons."

Sinai's first hours of worship was a frame building on Monroe street between Clark and La Salle streets. In 1874, the congregation began holding its services in Martin's hall, 22d street and Indiana avenue. Two years later, a temple was built at 21st street and Indiana avenue and in 1892, that structure was greatly enlarged.

The present temple was erected in 1912 and seats 2,200 persons. It adjoins the famous Emil G. Hirsch center. The latter edifice was erected in honor of the congregation's spiritual leader, who served from 1879 to 1923. Dr. Hirsch was one of the most widely known religious and social leaders of his time.

Dr. Hirsch succeeded Dr. Kaufman Kohler, who assumed the leadership of the temple in 1869. Dr. Mann succeeded Dr. Hirsch in 1923, following the latter's death.

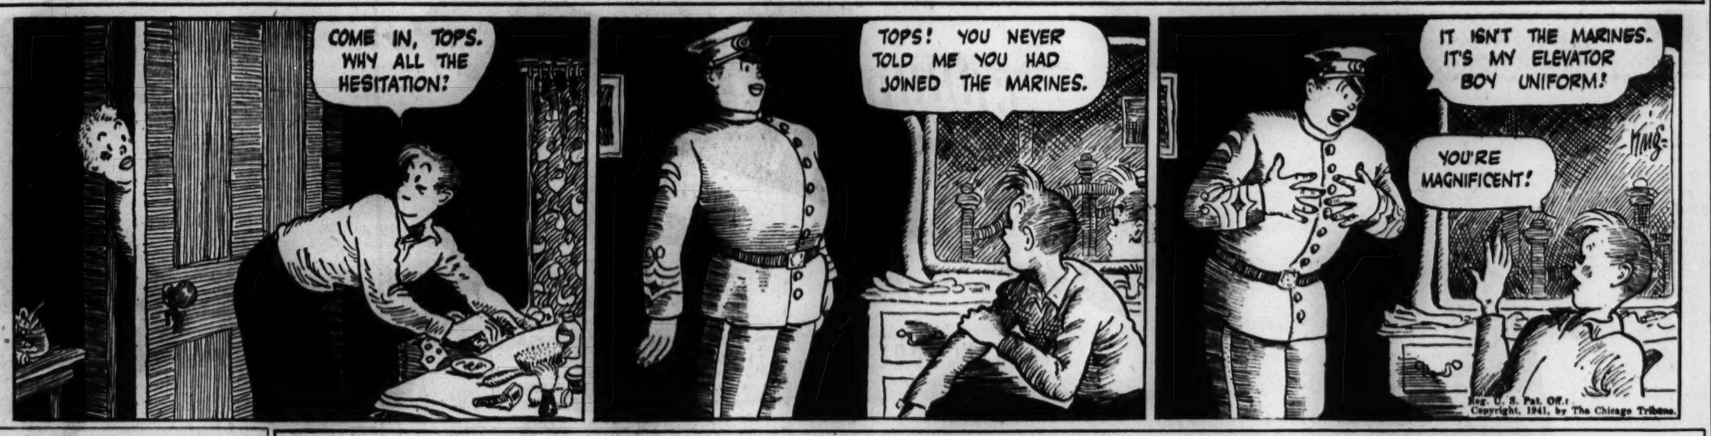

Dr. Mann is widely known in fields of religion, education, and social problems. The religious school he founded is described as unique because of its employment of a psychiatrist on its faculty. Several national journals, secular and religious, have noted the work of the Sinai religious school.

The Sinai forum, established 28 years ago, is regarded among the foremost of the country. Holding 15 weekly meetings during the winter, the forum has such speakers for this season as Jan Valtin, Dr. A. L. Sachar, Dr. Robert M. Hutchins, and Dr. Abba Hillel Silver.

Service Men's Dance.

The Daughters of Isabella will give a dance for service men this evening at 1122 South Wabash avenue. Mrs. Sarah Ann Peterson is in charge.

Crowded House Cheers Ballet 'Les Presages'

BY EDWARD BARRY.

"Les Presages," the first of Leonide Massine's "symphonic" ballets, was revised at the Civic Opera house last night by Col. Wasily de Basil's Ballet Russe. A capacity audience responded with electrifying enthusiasm to everything that went on on the stage.

I had not seen "Les Presages" for more than seven years, and remembered it vaguely as a ballet in which a lot of people ran in the same direction, as to a fire. It turns out that there is a great deal more to it than that. It is a powerful work notable for its vital, pointed choreography, its broad and easy flow thru an infinite variety of groupings, and its bold handling of large masses of people [that must have been where the original impression came in].

Alas, it has an allegory, too, for Massine did not venture to deal with symphonic music directly until his second big ballet, "Choreartium." In "Les Presages" he interposes between the music [Tschaikowsky's Fifth symphony] and the choreography, a story about destiny, temptation, frivolity, passion, etc. Good old fate is always running in at strategic moments, but for this one must admit that Tchaikowsky's music and the opinion of generations of commentators offer some justification.

There were great zest and numberless brilliant displays of virtuosity in last night's performance. Among the principals were such sterling artists as Tamara Grigorieva, Nana Gollner, Paul Petroff, H. Algeranoff, and Tatiana Riabouchinska.

The remainder of the bill consisted of "Swan Lake" and "Graduation Ball." Eugene Feurst conducted. The orchestra has improved 1.000 per cent, at a conservative estimate, since last Monday.

The ballet's engagement ends today with afternoon and evening performances.

Cooking Editor Writes News in Food Realm

BY MARY MEADE.

[Copyright: 1941: By The Chicago Tribune.]

The Escoffier Cookbook has just been published in English by Crown publishers, New York, and is available for $2.50, the lowest price at which this famous French book ever has sold.

It's not a book for the average housewife. Only chefs, epicures and collectors of cookbooks are likely to find much use for it. A random example of its recipes indicates the reason:

EPIGRAMMES OF PARTRIDGE.

"Lift out the young partridge's breasts, leaving the wing bone attached to the bird, and put them aside. From the smaller breasts, and the meat of the legs, prepare a mousseline forcemeat; mould the latter in very small buttered outlet moulds, and set to poach.

"Roll the breasts in melted butter and bread crumbs, and grill them gently. Dip the cutlets in beaten egg; roll them in finely chopped truffles; press upon the latter with the flat of a knife, that they may combine with the egg; shape the cutlets, and toss them in butter.

"Arrange in the form of a circle, alternating the breasts and cutlets; pour in their midst a cullis prepared from the partridge's remains, and serve a chestnut puree separately."

We may not be able to prepare Escoffier dishes in our own kitchens, but we can sample, for a price, the epicurean delights of genuine French cooking. Chef Henri Charpentier, once a pupil of the renowned Escoffier, and famous in his own right as chef to kings and European nobility, operates his own Café de Paris on Chicago's near north side.

Monsieur Henri will prepare crêpe Suzette for you as he prepared them for Edward VII when he was prince of Wales. You may eat chicken as the great chef cooked it for the gourmand, "Diamond Jim" Brady; onion soup as Theodore Roosevelt liked it; filet of sole, Sarah Bernhardt. A dinner at Henri's is not inexpensive, but every dish you eat there bears the fine touch of a master cook. And it is a meal to linger over and remember for a long time.

While we were making some food photographs in the TRIBUNE color photo studio the other day, one of the photographers took time out to complain bitterly about the way most women cook potatoes. Cooking editors, he thinks, spend too much time talking about salad making, and too little emphasizing the proper way to cook potatoes. Mashed potatoes usually are watery or lumpy, he says. Fried potatoes are greasy and sliced too thin, baked potatoes are soggy.

Probably he's right. We cooks may be inclined to let the potatoes more or less take care of themselves, while we give most of our attention to other parts of the meal. It is easy to let potatoes boil too long and become soft and waterlogged. If mashed potatoes aren't thoroly beaten, well seasoned with salt, pepper and butter, and served promptly, they can't be all that mashed potatoes should be. I like to put hot boiled potatoes thru a food mill before whipping them until light with milk and seasonings. Then there's no chance of a single lump. Some cooks like the electric mixer for mashing potatoes, others stick to the good old-fashioned potato masher, which must be wielded with lots of vigor if there are to be no lumps. "Watery" mashed potatoes probably are the result of overcooking or failure to drain the hot potatoes well. Our photographer friend likes the flavor of cheese in mashed potatoes.

Greasy fried potatoes are the result of using too much fat at too low a temperature, usually. In the case of French fries, too low a deep fat temperature is the trouble. A deep fat cooking thermometer will remedy the fault. It will indicate exactly the right heat, which is 390 degrees.

Soggy baked potatoes are the result of overbaking, or not gashing and pressing the "spuds," to allow for escape of steam, as soon as they have baked.

Knitted Shawl Bed Jacket

BY JEAN MACDONALD.

This angora floss shawl-bed jacket is one of those delightful bits of fluff dear to every feminine heart. For reading or breakfasting in bed, a protection against drafts when moving about, or just a throw over the shoulders it is a necessary item in the wardrobe. It is a simple knitting job, and saxony or vicuna may be substituted for angora.

For instructions in knitting the shawl-bed jacket, No. X-358, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Contemporary Is Best Friend for Teen Age

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Patricia is 13, with a 13 year old's problem of boy friendships. As 13 should, she volunteers that there is no lovesick angle to the question whatever. But this is her problem.

She goes around with a school crowd of boys and girls all about her own age, with a couple of exceptions, one boy being 15. Patricia finds the group quite to her liking, but some of the girls in the crowd are pressing her to get away from them on the grounds that the boys act too young. "Like kids," is the way they put it. Patricia doesn't think they do, but the other girls want to find a different crowd with older boys in it.

"If I stay with the present group, it will mean that I sacrifice the friendship and association of the girls. My mother knows the boys in our present crowd, knows their parents, and likes them all, too. And so does my dad.

"Now, what should I do? Keep on associating with this younger crowd, or go with the girls?"

By all means, Patricia, stay with the crowd in which you find such congenial relationships. Stay with the crowd your mother and father know, and approve. It's a valuable asset to you, Patricia, to have companionships that meet with parental approval. Furthermore, you want to keep your boy friendships just on that basis, and none other, at your age. It means more fun for you than getting involved with an older group.

DORIS BLAKE'S LETTER BOX

Have you a perplexing problem on which you need friendly counsel? Write to Doris Blake in care of the Chicago Tribune, Tribune Tower, Chicago, Ill. If you wish a personal reply, inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Probably Bashful.

"Dear Miss Blake: I met a fellow while I was on my vacation. He seemed to show interest. However, he never has asked me out. Whenever I see him he stops and talks, so he must be interested.—THE KID."

He may be bashful. Give him encouragement by inviting him to call on you some evening.

A Lonely Widow.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a lonely widow. I miss my husband so much that I am heartsick. I don't know what to do, as I am not well. I hope you can advise me.—MRS. R. L."

Weekly Home Care of Feet Is Beneficial

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Why is it that, when we give our feet one home treatment, we don't adhere to our sworn resolution to repeat the performance once a week, at least? On general principles, a weekly foot treatment should become a habit. It keeps away the aches and pains, and is a good beauty "tonic."

If you don't know the technique involved in foot grooming, here's how you go about it.

Soak your feet for about 10 minutes in warm water, to which has been added enough foot soap to make swishy suds. Using a soft, yet sturdy, little foot brush, scrub your feet well. Rinse the extremities in clean, warm water, then dip them repeatedly in cold, clear water. Dry with a Turkish towel, being sure to dry between the toes.

Next, massage a good foot cream into your feet. Grasp one foot with both hands beneath it and draw hands firmly up toward the ankle. Do this with each foot until the cream has been absorbed into the skin. [Note: Painful calluses may be rubbed off more easily, after the soaking and scrubbing, with pumice stone. The foot cream will soothe the tender skin after callus removal.]

To give yourself a pedicure, here's how: File, or clip, your nails straight across. Work back cuticle with tip of orangewood stick wrapped in cotton and soaked in cuticle oil. Rinse toes and wipe away loosened cuticle with bath towel. Separate toes with pieces of cotton and apply polish on dry nails.

Dainty Nightgown Pattern

WOMAN'S AND MISS' NIGHTGOWNS.

The diagram shows how simple it is to use this pattern in making handsome, comfortable nighties. Trim them with lace or leave them plain, and have either a square or a V neckline, as you choose.

Style No. 3243 is designed for sizes 12, 14, and 16, and 36, 38, 40, 42, and 44 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material, with 2½ yards of lace.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired and write your name and address plainly. The fall and winter pattern book costs 15 cents, 10 cents if ordered with a pattern.

This is your last chance to enter the 1941 National Bridge Examination. If you missed the first nine questions, consult back copies of this paper for the last week.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question 10: Neither side vulnerable. The bidding proceeds:

East	South	West	North
1 heart	Double	1 spade	Double
Pass	Pass	2 hearts	Pass
Pass	?

You are South and hold:

♠K 7 6 3 2 ♥ 3 ♦ A K J ♣ K J 9 4

What call do you make?

TODAY'S HAND.

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH
♠ 6 2
♥ 7 3
♦ A K Q J 9 7

WEST
♠ 9 7 5 3
♥ 8 6 4 2
♦ 8
♣ J 7 6 5

EAST
♠ J 10
♥ J 10 9
♦ 10 6 5 4 3 2
♣ A 2

SOUTH
♦ None
♣ K Q 4 3

North-South were using an opening two club bid as a convention for a huge hand. The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 clubs	Pass	2 diamonds	Pass
2 hearts	Pass	3 diamonds	Pass
3 spades	Pass	4 diamonds	Pass
4 no trump	Pass	Pass	Pass

Presumably, North felt that he had given his all by bidding and twice rebidding diamonds, but that he should have passed to four no trump is simply incredible. A cursory study of the North-South hand reveals that six diamonds was obviously the correct contract, and it is not until we peek at the diamond distribution that we can alter this view.

West opened his fourth best club. East played the ace and returned the deuce. Declarer won and cleared his spade suit. West, on lead with the nine, laid down the club jack to cover dummy's ten and protect his own seven. Declarer won, but could take only his fifth spade and three top tricks, then had to concede two tricks and defeat.

It is doubtful that readers will ever find themselves in such a peculiar contract, but if they do they had better look to their play. When East wins the first club lead with the ace, declarer's obviously correct play is to unblock the queen, thus retaining two low clubs. Now, regardless of the defense, dummy is certain to have a club entry, and the four top diamonds come in very handy.

UNBEATEN MICHIGAN, MINNESOTA MEET TODAY

LINK RINGER RAPID BONE WITH 1938 TURF SCANDAL

HEARING BARES OPERATIONS OF BARRED CLIQUE

Recall Expose of Laddie Boy Ring.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Evidence indicating that the recent Rapid Bone ringer coup at Hawthorne was put over by the same old gang which engineered the Laddie Boy Ring affair at Washington Park in 1938 was brought out yesterday in the first of a series of hearings before the Illinois racing board.

This probability was raised when Albert J. Meserow, attorney for the board, established the fact that a John Sperry of Los Angeles had come to Chicago to join a group of easterners linked with the case. All of them checked out of their Chicago hotel either immediately before or immediately after Rapid Bone was put over in the third race at Hawthorne on Sept. 24.

It May Be Same Sperry.

The inference was that this was the John M. Sperry who was ruled off the turf for life after being involved in the Laddie Boy Ring case. It was brought out that Sperry had occupied a room in the Sherman hotel on the same floor with William Rafferty of Philadelphia, who was identified by witnesses as the purchaser of Hasty Notion, the horse which ran as a Hawthorne ringer under the name of Rapid Bone.

Sperry checked in on Sept. 18 and checked out on the night of Sept. 24. Rafferty arrived on Sept. 18 together with a Thomas Rafferty, also of Philadelphia. William checked out on Sept. 23 and Thomas on Sept. 24, a few hours after the race.

Owner Brodsky Appears.

Yesterday's testimony was presented before Chairman Ednyfed Williams and the board members, William Fay and Frank Mandel. In the course of the hearing Brad Brodsky of Philadelphia told how he sold Hasty Notion to William Rafferty for $9,500 soon after he had claimed the horse from Joseph E. Widener for $5,500. Brodsky's name is the last which appears on the official record of Hasty Notion's ownership filed with the Jockey Club of New York.

Brodsky testified that the sale was made in the office of his woolen company in Philadelphia on Sept. 16. He said that he instructed his trainer, Harry Baker, to turn the horse over to Rafferty and to notify racing officials of the sale.

Trace Horse's Movements.

Baker, who also was present at the hearing, said that he had neglected to make any formal notification of change of ownership either to the Jockey club or to the officials of the Havre de Grace race track, where Hasty Notion was stabled at the time of the sale. He said that he had told reporters and clockers about it and that a report of the sale was published in the racing newspapers.

With the aid of testimony by truckers and railway express men, Attorney Meserow traced the movements of Hasty Notion from the time Baker turned him over to Rafferty until the horse was placed under the guard of Pinkerton men at the Laurel race track about three weeks later.

Evidence was brought out to follow every step of the horse's journey from Havre de Grace to Baltimore, to Chicago, back to Philadelphia, thence to a farm on the outskirts of that city, and finally to the Laurel track. It was established that he was unloaded in Chicago from Baltimore on Sept. 18 and was shipped out again, bound for Philadelphia on Sept. 30, after having raced at Hawthorne under the name of Rapid Bone on Sept. 24 and 26.

Victory Arouses Suspicion.

BY ARCH WARD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 24.—University of Michigan's ticket officials have been doing what they can to keep it quiet, but somehow word has leaked out that the Wolverines tomorrow will play Minnesota in a game which may prove the decisive battle of the Big Nine conference football campaign. A sellout crowd of 87,000 is guaranteed, come wind, snow or high water.

According to the printed word, which from time to time is reliable, undefeated Minnesota is priced at 11 to 5 over all-victorious Michigan. Sometimes there's a wide schism between the quotation and the actual wager, and that's probably true in this case. At any rate, there are plenty of Maize and Blue supporters who tonight would consider it a better deal than a blind bet laid on some racing nag because your best girl chances to like its pretty feet or the way its cunning jockey wears his hair.

The Jug Is a Stranger.

Aside from the conference and national prestige at stake, Michigan has another incentive for victory tomorrow. The Wolverines want a look at the little brown jug, which since 1903 has been one of the most prized symbols in intercollegiate football. Michigan hasn't had a peek at it since 1933, the year after Harry Newman's field goal gave the Ann Arbor boys their last triumph over Minnesota.

The 1933 game was a scoreless tie, but the Gophers have whipped their old rivals seven straight times since then. No other university in the land has been able to do that to Michigan. It is a coincidence that Fritz Crisler in his three years as director of the Wolverine eleven never has defeated Minnesota and in his two years as head coach of the Gophers he couldn't beat Michigan.

Gophers Fear Captain Bob.

Bernie Bierman and his 36 Gophers are encamped tonight at Jackson, within shelling distance of tomorrow's battle site.

In their final workout the Gophers devoted some little time to perfecting a defense for the plunges of Capt. Bob Westfall, who last year repeatedly busted the Minnesota line wide open with his bull-like rushes. Radio listeners and newspaper readers didn't hear so much about Westfall's performance, because Tommy Harmon was headline news, but any Gopher who played thru that contest will tell you Westfall was the man they feared most.

Mr. Smith Can Go to Town.

Similarly, Coach Crisler was reminding his charges about an opponent named Bruce Smith, whose 80 yard dash for a touchdown provided the opportunity for his team's 7 to 6 victory.

Both back fields are studded with names that have glittered in early season competition but, in all probability, the game will be won or lost along the forward wall. That's the reason hope leaps wildly in Michigan hearts tonight, because there probably is no better line in the conference than the combination headed by Al Wistert and Reuben Keito, the Wolverines' outstanding tackles. The press box will be crowded with so-called gridiron experts in search of All-American material, and it's certain they will devote considerable attention to the comparative worth of Wistert and Minnesota's Urban Odson, both of whom are ranked among the nation's leading tackles.

Gophers Have Been Coasting.

Minnesota comes up to its climactic battle with successive victories over Washington, Illinois, and Pittsburgh. Only Washington furnished any kind of a test. Michigan meanwhile whipped Michigan State, Iowa, Pittsburgh, and Northwestern. No one can say whether the Wolverines will be better or worse for their great victory over the Wildcats last Saturday. Some say Crisler and his staff cannot key their lads to the Northwestern pitch again in a week. Minnesota, they predict, with nobody to point for since its opening game, will be in better mental fettle.

Don't pay too much attention to the psychological angles in this contest. This is Minnesota vs. Michigan, the big game for every player involved.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 24.—Notre Dame's football boys are in tiptop shape for tomorrow's engagement here with Illinois.

Myron Pfeifer.

Talk about an inspirational plot by Bob Zuppke to upset the undefeated protéges of Coach Frank Leahy has subsided somewhat, perhaps because the fans assembled here were denied the chance to look at the sprightly Illini on the hoof. The Illini are staying away until noon tomorrow.

Even the 185 piece Illinois band will not be here to awe the South Bend and Notre Dame citizenry until an hour or so before the 2:30 starting hour [central daylight saving time]. However, if you are coming from afar, it won't do any harm to get an early start. The lads in the counting room, encouraged by excellent weather, are standing by their forecast that a crowd of 40,000 will see the Irish in their second game of the season against Big Nine competition. [The Irish beat Indiana, 19 to 6, and have another Big Nine foe after Illinois, Northwestern.]

Technique Is Mixed.

Those charged with thumping tomtoms for the game have a mixed technique. Emphasis is placed on the fact Illinois beat Drake, 40 to 0, last Saturday, but not too much bragging is done about the fact the Irish were able to run up no better than a 16 to 0 tabulation against weak Carnegie Tech. The rain furnished a good alibi. There also is a certain reluctance about featuring Illinois' 34 to 6 jolting at the hands of Minnesota two weeks ago.

In reciting why he has been worrying himself sick about Illinois' vaunted trickery, Coach Leahy points out that Illinois tomorrow will have the services of Liz Astroth at quarter and Myron Pfeifer at full. These able performers have been handicapped by injuries but now are enjoying a high degree of friskiness, Irish scouts aver. Revisions by Zuppke in the line, necessitated by injuries to Elmer Engel, are not expected to weaken the Illini.

They Admire Griffin and Smith.

Don Griffin and Jimmy Smith, who will start in the back field with Astroth and Pfeifer, have been thoroly blueprinted by the Irish scouts, who have expressed great admiration for their skill.

Little has been revealed about the plan of attack Leahy and his assistants have cooked up for the wily Zup and his crew, but the prevailing hunch is that Angelo Bertelli is ready to do his part if the trend of the game seems to be in the air. As set down in our piece yesterday, Sophomore Angelo in four games has completed 26 passes on 41 tries for a total of 393 yards.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 24.—University of Michigan fans were elated with their team's victory over Northwestern last Saturday and they are looking forward optimistically to a repetition of last year's one sided triumph over their arch rival, Ohio State, but there is no game the Wolverines want to win so badly as tomorrow's engagement with Minnesota. . . . The reason is obvious. . . . Two generations of Michigan students have come and gone without experiencing the thrill of a victory over the Gophers. . . . It was back in 1932 that Michigan last whipped its rival from Minneapolis. . . . The margin was a field goal by Harry Newman. . . . Two of the three games the Gophers have won since Fritz Crisler took charge at Ann Arbor were by one point. . . . Despite worries incident to his first year as general manager of the Cubs, James T. Gallagher has gained so many pounds—25—that he recently was forced to invest in a new wardrobe. . . . Add famous last words: "But Coach George Halas said the Bears were only 28 per cent efficient." . . . Bob Reagan, Harry Stuhldreher's assistant at Wisconsin, whose frown and forehead wrinkles last from late summer to the end of the football season, has been named Smiley by members of the squad. . . . Brigham Young university of Provo, Utah, has asked the coöperation of the Wake in locating a live cougar to serve as the school's mascot. . . . In case you have a spare cougar around the premises, please contact Les Henrikson, the university's social chairman.

Homecoming.

"Hello, Larry," he said.
"Boy, it's great to se you!
Meet the wife. I told you
She'd be a blonde. Remember?"
And I replied, "Gee, old man,
It's swell to see you, too."
And to his wife, "Keep your eye
On this clown.
There are a few old flames of his
Still smoldering about the town.
See you later after the game."

His face is so familiar—
What is that fellow's name?

"Dear old Larry," she cried.
"This is a thrill." Lovely she was.
Young and eager face,
And thru her dark brown hair
Attractive glints of grey;
School-color beribboned.
Chrysanthemumed and gay.
Then softly, "Do you remember
After the homecoming ball in '22?"
"How could I ever forget," I said.
"I want to dance tonight with you."

Who is that girl? It's queer I can't recall.
Did she say the '22 homecoming ball?

On the way home it suddenly dawned on me.
How dumb I was to forget!
Why that was my sophomore roommate,
Good old Jimmy Brett!
And the girl—
Dear little Bess,
Who wore my frat pin our junior year
Upon her dress.

Columbus, O., Oct. 24.—Seventy-three thousand five hundred persons, a crowd limited by the seating capacity of Memorial stadium, will watch the Ohio State wonder team defend its undefeated record tomorrow afternoon against the assault of Northwestern's Wildcats. Not since 1935 when Notre Dame whipped the Buckeyes before 81,018—standing room was sold that November afternoon—has Ohio State drawn so large a throng.

Paul Brown, 33 year old coach, who came to Ohio State after nine successful years at Massillon, O., High school, his home town, is the key to tomorrow's attendance. From the remnants of last year's football squad, a group that won three and lost three conference games, Brown has welded an eleven that has beaten Missouri, Southern California, and Purdue. This early success has been unexpected to Ohio State alumni, whose slogan in September was, "We're waiting for '42."

All Tickets Sold.

Defeat may be no crushing blow such as the Buckeyes received last year from Minnesota, Northwestern, and Michigan, but even the doubting Thomases from High and Broad streets want to see the action. All tickets have been sold since Tuesday.

The gray tinge to Ohio State's hopes is loss of Full Back Jack Graf, whose kicking, passing, and deceptive ball handling sparked the Buckeye attack. Graf is out with an injured knee. Harold Hecklinger, sophomore from Toledo, will start at full back.

Paul Sarringhaus, sophomore left half back, who has not been used since the Southern California game, also may replace Dick Fisher occasionally if the course of the game permits. Either Tom Kinkade, senior, or Les Horvath, a junior, will be at right half. Kinkade's 190 pounds is necessary for Buckeye blocking, but his lack of speed—he is Ohio State's slowest back—handicaps the offense.

Graham to Carry Attack.

Northwestern's squad of 35 players, including Bill De Correvont, senior left half back, who was released from Evanston hospital this morning, arrived at 3 o'clock and went immediately to the stadium for an hour's workout.

De Correvont was hospitalized with a severe cold. He may play briefly tomorrow, but the burden of the running and passing will fall to Sophomore Otto Graham.

The other members of the Wildcat squad are in condition for the game with the exception of Leon Cook, senior right tackle. Cook was injured in practice 10 days ago and probably will not appear tomorrow. Tony Samarzia, sophomore, will start at right tackle.

Northwestern figures to beat Ohio State unless the Wildcats permit their rivals to get away to an early lead which will inspire a team whose early victories have been founded on inspiration. Ineffective pass defense and indifferent generalship are Northwestern's weaknesses.

87,000 Will Watch Them Today

Minnesota's hopes will center largely in Capt. Bruce Smith (right) in today's game with Michigan in Ann Arbor. Both the Wolverines and the Gophers have perfect records.

Tom Kuzma (above), brilliant Michigan sophomore, also is expected to be one of the headliners. He threw two touchdown passes to beat Northwestern last week. A sell-out throng of more than 87,000 will see the battle for the Big Nine lead.

Montgomery Hammers Kogon for Twelfth Straight Victory

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Bob Montgomery last night gave a convincing demonstration of why he is recognized as No. 1 lightweight contender by fighting his way to a 10 round decision over Julie Kogon, clever boxer from New Haven, Conn., in the Coliseum.

Altho his first round knockout of Davey Day in the Stadium recently indicated the Philadelphia Negro slugger is a devastating puncher, he was unable to score a knockdown last night. Nevertheless, when his hand was raised in victory Montgomery was cheered by the crowd. Attendance was 4,558 and gross receipts were $8,960.

The fans realized that in Kogon Bob was not meeting a setup. Julie had extended the 22 year old Pennsylvanian in New York 10 months ago and he made him fight all the way again last evening before losing on the unanimous decision of Referee Bernard Weisman and Judges William O'Connell and Ed Klein.

It was Montgomery's 12th straight success.

Kogon won the first round, using a series of left hooks to the head and several solid rights to the ear to accomplish the trick. Montgomery, who forced the battle thruout, found the range with a right to the cheek in the second, but Julie didn't drop then and wasn't close to a knockdown until the eighth, when his lanky rival pounded his head and ribs with a sledge hammer right. The bell came to Kogon's rescue and Montgomery lost his opportunity.

IT'S HOMECOMING DAY AT MADISON FOR HUNDREDS

"On Wisconsin" to Ring Anew at Rally.

BY FRED GRAFF.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Oct. 24.—Hundreds of alumni, from as far back as 1891, were returning tonight to the University of Wisconsin campus to sing and cheer again to "On Wisconsin" during the 31st annual homecoming week end.

Joined by students now on the campus they'll sing it tomorrow as a prelude to the Wisconsin-Indiana football game at Camp Randall, but few of them will know the story behind this famous college song and none will know the story better than Carl Beck of New York, an alumnus whose loyalty inspired him more than 30 years ago to write the familiar words, "On Wisconsin, on Wisconsin, plunge right thru that line."

Tries Out Song in 1909.

To unfold the story behind this college marching song it is necessary to go back to 1909 when William Purdy, also a Wisconsin graduate, was a struggling young composer and the director of a dance orchestra in Chicago.

Purdy had written the music to what now is the pride of every Wisconsin student and alumnus in trying to win a $1,000 prize the University of Minnesota was offering for an appropriate school song. He felt he had something good and tried it out one night as a "filler" on his program.

Beck was there and heard it. "Say, Purdy," he suggested that evening, "we ought to give that song to our alma mater, Wisconsin. If you're willing, I'll write the words for it."

Purdy needed the $1,000 pretty badly, but he yielded to the idea, the four syllable title "Minnesota" was changed to "On Wisconsin," and young Beck went to work.

Three Lines Written.

Beck wrote three different lines at one place in the song—"run the ball clear round Chicago," "run the ball round Minnesota," and "run the ball clear down the field." The first of these was used for many years, but then Chicago quit intercollegiate football and now Badger fans sing "run the ball clear down the field."

Purdy and Beck brought to the campus the next year for its formal introduction the college song now famous thruout the nation. Purdy no longer is living, but Beck is back for this year's homecoming and will be among the thousands at historic Camp Randall field tomorrow to sing again the song that fades away into "we'll win this game."

SMILIN' JACK—NO BOWL OF CHERRIES

The Story of the Big, Bad Bears

Boss Halas Is Adamant in the Matter of Fines for Infraction of Training Rules

[This is the fifth of a series on the Chicago Bears' rocky road to the professional football heights from the early 1920s to the present.]

BY EDWARD PRELL.

EVERYONE has a favorite expression and George Halas is no exception. Ask him a question about anything from football to grand opera and the chances are he will reply: "It's terrific!"

His players thought Halas was pretty terrific last September when they returned to Delafield, Wis., after their triumphal tour of the east in which they won four exhibition games in eight days. One day he called them together and announced he thought they deserved a $300 bonus for this extra-curricular playing, which was not covered in their contracts. Gary Famiglietti was so elated he bounded to his feet and let out a resounding whoop.

"For this display of enthusiasm," said Halas, "I'll make it $350." As there were close to 40 men still on the squad, the spontaneous cheer cost Mr. Halas a cool $2,000.

These Bears of 1941 are a frugal lot, too, and some of the oldtimers marvel at their contrast to some of the boisterous, free living characters of professional football a decade or two ago. Most of the lads draw only $50 weekly and allow the remainder to accumulate, giving them a neat nest egg at the end of the season. In contrast to the method of paying players by the game in earlier years, most of the Bears now are on annual salaries.

Watch Your Step, Bears, or You May Lose Money!

A rigid adherence to rules and orders is one of the top items on Halas' must list. There are stipulated fines for more than a dozen infractions. When Halas once decrees a fine, it is final. A Supreme court lawyer couldn't do the victim a bit of good. Even Paddy Driscoll, back field coach, has felt the mailed fist. Paddy made the mistake of driving his wife into the loop on a shopping expedition early this season. It was no fault of his that the traffic piled up, thus making him late for practice. The result: a $25 fine. Coaches have to live up to the rules. It is entirely probable that if Halas ever were late, he would convict and punish himself in the same unyielding fashion.

A few years ago, Joe Zeller, coming in to practice from Indiana Harbor, was 15 minutes late. It was $25 off his check. Joe declared he was tardy because a bridge was up. He produced affidavits from the bridge tenders and policemen. Halas forgave Joe, but the fine stuck.

There was that night in New York when George Trafton tried to persuade Luke Johnsos to join him for a few hours of relaxation. "I got a piece of the club, Luke," said George, "and George won't dare to fine me." Luke knew better, tho. Trafton checked in late at the hotel and discovered he was no exception to the rule. The old Notre Dame center still can get worked up when he recalls this incident.

The Race Tracks Are Out of Bounds During Season.

Missing a train means $50 to $100 off the check. A visit to the race track, if the word gets back to headquarters, is in the $100 bracket. Par for breaking training is $200, but the assessment can go much higher, depending upon the circumstances and the importance of the player.

Some one once asked Halas for his philosophy of life. He thought for a minute, scratched his head, then said:

"Gee, I'll have to get one!"

There have been many ludicrous moments on this long football trail for Halas. Bear fans will remember John Doehring, the Milwaukee boy with no college experience whom the Bears signed a few years ago. John could throw a football perhaps farther than any player who ever lived.

Halas proceeded to fashion a play which took advantage of John's long range bombing. Gene Ronzani would go back into punt formation, then toss the ball back to Doehring. The latter would wind up and throw a pass down the field to Johnsos, a sure 90 yard gainer. They worked a full week to perfect it, then invaded Boston.

Play and Become a Pro? Never, Says Mr. Doehring!

Late in the game the score was 7 to 7 and Halas figured the psychological moment had arrived to try this new touchdown play. He informed Doehring that he was about to make his professional debut.

"Who, me?" asked Doehring, "and become a pro? No sir. My mother wouldn't want me to lose my amateur standing."

It takes little imagination to appreciate the worries which pop up in the life of a coach.

Each of the present Bears must turn in a written report each Tuesday detailing the activities of his man on the other team. Failure to do so costs $10, which will be confirmed by Joe Maniaci. He turned up one Tuesday without a report on what the other full back did, and his defense was that he didn't get into the game. "You saw the game, didn't you?" asked Halas, which ended the discussion.

[Tomorrow: Red Grange Joins the Bears.]

BLACKHAWKS WIN EXHIBITION FROM ILLINOIS, 11 TO 2

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 24 [Special].—The Chicago Blackhawks of the National Hockey league defeated the University of Illinois tonight in an exhibition game, 11 to 2. Seven Blackhawks joined in the scoring fun, with Bill Thoms, Alex Kaleta, Doug Bentley, and John Mariucci each scoring twice.

Gil Priestley scored for the Illini in the second period when the Blackhawks were leading, 5 to 0. Norbert Steele then scored another Illini goal while two Blackhawks sat in the penalty box. Then came half a dozen more Chicago tallies.

Halas Shivers for His Bears; Face Steelers

It's beginning to be a question whether the Bears' ticket department or the players themselves are working the harder as this season nears the half way mark for the champions. It has been a terrific week in the Bears' office and the voices of the young ladies are growing weary answering queries for tickets over the telephone.

Tho the game with the Packers a week from tomorrow in Wrigley field has caused most of the commotion, it was reported last night that the champions and Pittsburgh Steelers will play to a crowd approximating 30,000 tomorrow afternoon. The Green Bay game will draw a capacity 45,000.

The Chicago Cardinals, who won their first game of the season last Sunday in Brooklyn, will move into Philadelphia today for tomorrow's game with the Eagles. By playing up to their 20 to 6 rate over the Dodgers, the Cardinals should be slight favorites to beat the Eagles and will have an excellent chance of whipping the Giants.

Green Bay moves into Detroit today to meet the Lions tomorrow in Briggs stadium.

Draft Officials Check Status of 5 O. S. U. Players

Columbus, O., Oct. 24 (AP).—National selective service officials today asked state draft headquarters for full information on five Ohio State university football players eligible for the draft.

Three of the five, End Charles Anderson of Massillon; Full Back Jack Graf of Columbus, and Half Back Tom Kinkade of Toronto, O., have been regular starters. A fourth, Guard Ed Bruckner of Sandusky, has seen plenty of varsity action, while the fifth, Center Jack Roe of Steubenville, hasn't been in a regular game.

Bruckner and Kinkade received formal deferments during the summer. Graf's number was not in line to be called before Jan. 1. There was no information available immediately on the status of Anderson or Roe.

WASHINGTON EXPLAINS.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24 (AP).—Lieut. Col. Carlton S. Dargusch, chief of operations, today said the selective service inquiry at Ohio State was similar to scores of others undertaken after complaints came from responsible sources.

The purpose, officials said, was to ascertain if the classifications were proper.

Navy Heavily Favored Over Harvard Today

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 24 (AP).—Harvard's veteran football forces were without their most potent operator, Loren MacKinney, the left footed punting end, as they completed preparations today for tomorrow's game here with undefeated Navy before an unexpected crowd of 40,000. Even with MacKinney, few would give the Crimson the slightest chance against the Midshipmen, who rank as one of the east's strongest teams. Navy has won four in a row.

YALE VS. DARTMOUTH.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 24 (AP).—Yale will go after its second victory in four starts tomorrow against Dartmouth, the only eleven it was able to beat during the 1940 season. That was an upset last year, and it will be a mild shock tomorrow if Yale comes thru again because Dartmouth is supposed to be on the rebound from the Harvard game which the Indians were slated to win, but didn't.

There was talk that Yale might do some rebounding too, but most of the reports from the Bulldog camp stressed the squad's injured list. On it appeared the names of Full Back Chuck Willoughby and Tackle Jack Magee, as well as some first line subs.

Tomorrow's game will be the 25th between these Ivy league rivals since 1884. Yale has won 16, Dartmouth four and four have been ties. A crowd of 40,000 is expected.

PITT TRIES AGAIN.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 24 (AP).—The University of Pittsburgh was rated little chance of stopping unbeaten Duke university here tomorrow before an expected crowd of 25,000. Duke's regular ends, Alex Piasecky, 188 pounder from Jeannette, Pa., and Luther Dempsey suffered leg injuries and will be unable to play. They will be replaced by Bob Gantt, 210 pound Durham, N. C., boy, and 182 pound Jim Smith from Hamilton, O. Pitt will be at full strength.

FIRST TEST FOR ARMY.

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 24 (AP).—Army, undefeated in its first three games, will get its first major test tomorrow against Columbia's once-beaten Lions in the renewal of a gridiron series dating back to 1899. Columbia ruled a slight betting choice. A sell out crowd of about 27,000 is expected in Michie stadium.

FORDHAM MEETS T. C. U.

New York, Oct. 24 (AP).—Fordham, rolling along on its three-game winning run, tomorrow will meet its second Southwest conference opponent of the season—Texas Christian—before an expected crowd of 35,000 in the Polo grounds. Sparked by one of the finest collections of backs in the country, the Rams are top-heavy favorites to remain on the unbeaten list at the expense of the Texans, who were shut out 14 to 0 by the Texas Aggies last Saturday for their first loss of the year.

20 DODGERS GET $4,829 EACH FOR LOSING SERIES

Part Time Players Ignored by Their Mates.

Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis' office yesterday approved the Brooklyn Dodgers' division of their world series shares in which only 20 players received full cuts of $4,829.40.

Thirteen players who served with the club for a part of the season, but were not around for the series, were not awarded anything. This group included Pitchers Mace Brown and Bill Swift, each of whom won three games for the Dodgers; Alex Kampouris, who opened the season as Brooklyn's regular second baseman, and Babe Phelps, the Dodgers' errant catcher.

Cubs Get Third Shares.

The entire Brooklyn players' pool amounted to $132,771.67, and $6,000 was taken off the top for cash gifts to park employés and clubhouse men. Full shares went to Playing Manager Leo Durocher, 19 others players, Coaches Charles Dressen and John Corriden, and Traveling Secretary John McDonald. Half shares were voted Johnny Allen and Bullpen Catcher Roy Spencer, one-third shares to Larry French, Augie Galan, and Tom Drake, and a quarter share to Ed Albosta.

Previously Landis had announced approval of the New York Yankees' split of their $199,157.91 winner's share of the series, which was divided into full shares for 25 players, Manager Joe McCarthy, three coaches, a batting practice pitcher, the trainer, and liberal awards to other associates of the champions.

Runners-Up Cut In.

Landis' office also announced yesterday the slicing up of $35,563.84 among the Boston Red Sox and an equal sum among the St. Louis Cardinals, runners-up in the two major leagues, and $11,854.61 to the Pittsburgh Pirates, who finished fourth in the National league.

VANDERBILT IS HEAVY FAVORITE OVER PRINCETON

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 24 (AP).—Vanderbilt, as top heavy favorite to remain undefeated and untied, will play Princeton here tomorrow. The weatherman promised clear skies for the anticipated 15,000 spectators.

RITES FOR HAMMER.

Funeral services for Clarence [Red] Hammer, a concessionaire representative at Wrigley field and Comiskey park for 25 years will be held at 2 o'clock today in the chapel at 63d street and Harvard avenue. Burial will be at Oakwoods.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Oct. 24.—Two teams which hit the jackpot a week ago—Wisconsin and Indiana—will stake their winnings against each other tomorrow on Randall field. Altho still riding high as the result of the decisive triumph against Iowa, the Badgers profess to see danger immediately ahead.

The Hoosiers, equally aroused because of what they did to Nebraska after three straight setbacks, also are viewing with alarm a meeting with a team, which, for extra incentive, will have the whoopings of 30,000 homecomers.

It's a Duel of Sophomores.

It is going to be a battle of sophomores, probably the best two sets developed thus far in the Big Nine football campaign. Five will be sprinkled thru Indiana's 11 starters. There'll be four of them in the Badgers' kickoff combination, one of them the flashy, rugged Pat Harder and two of them the handy Billy Hillenbrand and Charles Jacoby of the Hoosiers' back field department.

Such hopeful attitude as was running loose on the Madison sidewalks this afternoon was based on the possibilities of the Badger line. What the Cardinal forwards did to the Iowa wall last Saturday is football history in some places but not here.

Badger Line Is Iron.

The Badger line that afternoon was so powerful that the Iowans spent most of their time backing up. At the finish they had an 87 yard loss to show for their attempts to run forward.

Harry Stuhldreher, the Badger coach, who was blue a week ago today because he didn't think Iowa could be beaten, was the same way today, notwithstanding the lift provided by the 23 to 0 triumph over the Hawkeyes. Stuhldreher isn't certain his boys are as good as they looked in that tussle.

Remember Hoosier Triumph.

He finds it easy to build up a nightmare for himself because Indiana went into Nebraska's house and rifled the place. Stuhldreher, as one of Notre Dame's four horsemen, tried to humble the Huskers three times and was twice repulsed. Hence, it is simple for him to fear the Hoosiers.

The Badgers still have the passing game up their sleeves. They had it primed for last week. They figured they'd need it to beat back an Iowa team that had lost by only 6 to 0 to Michigan. Wisconsin had three points over the Hawkeyes in the first couple minutes of play, and soon thereafter discovered that touchdowns were easily attained simply by running and plunging.

Claim Jacoby May Start.

The Hoosiers parked in nearby Janesville for the night and were still broadcasting their regrets that the fleet Jacoby might not be able to assume his right half back duties because of an ankle injury suffered at Nebraska. The gloom was looked upon here as manmade fog.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 24.—The moonlight is fair tonight along the Wabash, and 20,000 Purdue fans, the majority of them homecoming alumni, are hoping it will be as fair, if not more so, tomorrow evening, following their Boilermakers' battle against Iowa's Hawkeyes in Ross-Ade stadium.

'Tis a strange game, this, but it may well turn out to be one of the best of tomorrow afternoon for all those tiffs in Ann Arbor, Columbus, and Madison. Here are two elevens that have managed to win just one game out of the three played thus far. The Hawkeyes trimmed Drake, then lost their conference arguments with Michigan and Wisconsin. The Boilermakers sandwiched a triumph over hapless Pittsburgh between losses to Vanderbilt and Ohio State.

A Game in the Making.

Yet, if you take the first quarter of Iowa's work against Michigan and add the last three quarters of Purdue's performance last week against Ohio State, you have assembled yourself quite a football game. Dr. Eddie Anderson's lads practically pushed Michigan out of the latter's own yard in the first 15 minutes of that contest and still were pursuing that tack at the half. Last Saturday the Buckeyes made nine first downs in the first half against the Boilermakers. After that spurt, in which they scored all their 16 points, they could produce only a paltry three first downs. Only an early safety, off a blocked Purdue kick, enabled them to win out, 16 to 14.

Iowa, which will arrive shortly before game time, following a Chicago bivouac, naturally will be spoiling for a winning fight. This mood equals the desire of the Boilermakers to bring victory to their homecomers, for while it isn't homecoming for the Hawkeyes, they will be all afire in their efforts to redeem the 23 to 0 thumping Wisconsin handed them last Saturday. Two years ago, the Iowans wrecked homecoming here with an unusual 4 to 0 decision, born of two safeties.

They'll Miss Melton, Galvin.

Coach Mal Elward of Purdue, who took his boys to nearby Mudlavia this afternoon to spend the night, will be minus the valued services of Co-Capt. Tom Melton, Cedar Lake guard, who injured an ankle in the Ohio State game and will not be available for duty tomorrow.

Also absent will be Johnny Galvin, speedy left half back from Chicago's Leo High school, who suffered a fractured right cheek bone in a punt return scrimmage on the open Saturday following the Pittsburgh game. It is dubious if the one time high school rival of Bill De Correvont will play at all the remainder of the season.

POINTER-SETTER TRIALS SET FOR WHEATON TODAY

Bird dog owners will see some of the leading pointers and setters of the middle west in the field trials to be held today and tomorrow on the Arthur MacIntosh property near President street and Geneva road in Wheaton.

Roy Blackwell, Lombard, secretary of the Chicagoland Field Trial club, which is sponsoring the event, said yesterday that most of the action will be visible from a hill in the center of the course. The dogs will be worked on ringneck pheasants. Three stakes are on today's program and three more, including the open all-age event, will be run tomorrow.

Bench show exhibitors have only one more day in which to enter their dogs in the Shore Land Kennel club show to be held Nov. 2 in Lake Forest. Entries close tomorrow. Entries should be mailed to A. Wilson Bow, 6807 Sheridan road, Chicago.

Lindblom Harriers Win Cross-Country Meet

Lindblom High school won a Public School league cross-country run yesterday in Washington park by scoring 38 points. Thad Pierzynski of Lindblom was the individual winner. His time for the two mile course was 10:45. Other team scores were: Harrison, 41; Du Sable, 77; Englewood, 109, and Calumet, 110.

Sifting Evidence in Ringer Quiz

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

Brad Brodsky of Philadelphia, former owner of the horse Hasty Notion, which ran as Rapid Bone at Hawthorne in September, testifies at the ringer inquiry conducted yesterday in the offices of the Illinois racing board.

Jockey Ralph Bohn, who rode the ringer in two races at the Chicago track, testifies. Bohn was absolved of knowledge of the plot shortly after it became public.

William Hamilton. William Cunningham.

Others who testified were Hamilton, a steward representing the racing board at all Chicago tracks, and Cunningham, whose specialty is identifying race horses.

Link Ringer Expose with 1938 Scandal

sion, described the manner in which he and William Cunningham, whose job is the identification of horses racing in the Chicago area, had tracked down Rapid Bone until they established the fact that he and Hasty Notion were the same horse.

Both Hamilton and Cunningham said that their suspicions were aroused by the way in which Rapid Bone ran when he won the third race at Hawthorne on Sept. 24. He was supposed to be making the first start of his career as a 3 year old against experienced horses. Both agreed that the way in which he broke out of the starting gate and the bold manner in which he disposed of his rivals indicated that he wasn't at all green.

They went to the saliva test box immediately after the race and questioned R. V. C. Van Cleve, who was the reputed owner of Rapid Bone. Van Cleve said that he had been training the horse in Texas, had given him a thoro schooling at breaking out of the gate, and had run him in nondescript match races in the southwest. Van Cleve said that this accounted for his seasoned way of running.

They're Not Satisfied.

Hamilton and Cunningham, who had checked the horse's identification papers before permitting him to start, began a correspondence with the Jockey Club of New York. In the course of this correspondence, it was learned that Rapid Bone's markings were the same as those of Hasty Notion. Meanwhile it was learned thru Maryland officials that Hasty Notion had left Havre de Grace on Sept. 17, ostensibly for Narragansett, but he had never arrived there and wasn't heard of anywhere since until he turned up again at Laurel.

The Laurel authorities were holding the horse under the guard of Pinkerton men. Hamilton and Cunningham, thereupon, went to Laurel accompanied by Clement Nance, secretary of the Illinois board and J. T. Lovell, Cunningham's assistant. They made the identification of Hasty Notion as Rapid Bone.

It All Ties In.

Further indication that the Rapid Bone gang may be the same as the Laddie Boy Ring crew was brought out by the fact that subpoenas had been issued for a C. F. Sperry and a Dr. Reith. In the Laddie Boy Ring case, life suspensions were meted out to C. F. Sperry and Dr. H. C. Reith. None of these showed up for yesterday's hearing. Neither did Rafferty nor Mrs. George Evanger, for whom Rafferty said he was acting when he purchased Hasty Notion from Brodsky. He told Brodsky the woman was his aunt. Another conspicuous absentee was T. V. C. Van Cleve.

A Pete Walls, who acted for Rafferty in attending to the details of the shipment of Hasty Notion, according to the testimony, also was among those who failed to show up for the hearing.

Maj. Williams continued the hearing until next Tuesday and directed that new subpoenas be sent to these parties. Attorney Meserow stated that the board plans to seek indictments under the horse racing act of 1941, which provides a prison sentence for running a ringer. If indictments are returned, state authorities will institute extradition proceedings.

The state's attorney's office was represented at yesterday's hearing by Richard B. Austin and the United States District Attorney by Harry Connaughton.

Bohn Explains It.

Ralph Bohn, the jockey who rode Rapid Bone in both of his Hawthorne appearances, said that he never had seen either the horse or Van Cleve until he went to the paddock just before the Sept. 24 race. He said that his regular agent had accepted the mount for him after many other riders had refused to handle the horse, fearing that an unknown first time starter as a 3 year old might be dangerous to handle. Bohn said that he didn't know what to expect, but was surprised at how well the horse broke and ran. He said that Rapid Bone "seemed to know what it was all about."

Bohn testified that Van Cleve had told him that the horse should run well and that he'd give him a good stake if he won with him. Bohn stated that he received $200 for his ride. The customary fee for a winning performance is $25.

The Laddie Boy Ring case occurred in the summer of 1938. On Aug. 2 a horse ran under this name at Washington Park, but a coup failed when he was beaten by a 66 to 1 shot, The Boxer. Subsequently, Laddie Boy Ring was identified as Smoke Signal, a horse which also had run under the alias of George C. In addition to the two Sperrys and Dr. Reith, five others were ruled off the turf for life in conection with the case. These were E. C. Fischer, Jimmy Fischer, Chester Bild, Lou Thompson, and Alvin Moore.

Prep Leaders Swing Into Action Today

BY JAMES SEGRETI.

Four of the five teams which have notions of representing the Public School league in Mayor Kelly's All-City prep football game on Nov. 29—Crane Tech, Tilden Tech, Phillips, and Fenger—will turn loose their touchdown specialists in another effort to reach their goal this afternoon.

Crane Tech, of the west division, whose supporters believe has the strongest team at the west side school in several years, hopes to become the first sectional champion to reach the semi-playoffs by scoring its fifth victory against Foreman in Hanson park, Central and Fullerton avenues.

Tilden Tech and Phillips, unbeaten in the central zone, also will seek their fifth triumphs of the season, but their argument for the title is not expected to be settled until they come together on Nov. 7. Tilden opposes Farragut in Key Branch stadium, Roosevelt road and Central avenue, and Phillips engages Du Sable in Soldiers' field. Fenger meets South Shore in Pullman Tech field, but the defending champions must wait before claiming their sixth straight south zone championship as Bowen and Hirsch, Fenger's closest rivals, each has lost only one game.

Chick Harley, nephew of the Ohio State All-American and son of Bill Harley, former director of Mills stadium, is a freshman half back at Fenwick. . . . Tickets for the All-City game between the Catholic and Public School league winners were placed on sale yesterday in all Chicago High schools. . . . John Porcelli, Crane Tech senior end, also is a wrestler, winning the 1940 heavyweight title in the city playground division. . . . Physicians yesterday reported that an appendicitis operation will not be immediately necessary for Harry Harris, Fenwick half back. . . . However, Harris will be on the sidelines tomorrow afternoon when Fenwick meets De Paul.

Fred Fassnacht, Henry Vandenbergh, Harry Althamar and Ray Zjawinski are among Taft's leading candidates for the Public School league Noble E. Kizer Memorial award. . . . Fred Brown, Tilden Tech substitute full back, will be in the lineup against Farragut today. . . . Ray Schumacher, regular line smasher, is suffering from a bad cold. . . . Three downstate teams have clinched championships. . . . They are Milford in the Wauseca conference, Salem in the North Egypt, and Normal in the Cornbelt. . . . Kane has more prep football teams than any other county in the state except Cook.

Henry [Babe] Baranowski, Leo's brilliant ball carrier, did not participate in two of the squad's drills this week because of a slight injury. . . . He will be in the lineup, however, tomorrow afternoon for the game with unbeaten St. George in Shewbridge field, 74th and Aberdeen streets.

Joliet Defeats La Salle-Peru Eleven, 8 to 0

Bill McAllister, Joliet High school's star quarter back, last night led the Steelmen to their fifth consecutive Big Eight conference victory, defeating La Salle-Peru, defending champion, 8 to 0, on the Joliet field. McAllister scored a touchdown in the second period on a short plunge to increase his individual scoring lead to 40 points.

Joliet's winning touchdown drive started on the La Salle-Peru 35 yard line. McAllister shot a ten yard pass to Left Half Back Claude Adams, who ran an additional five yards before he was dropped. Three running plays sent the ball to the 1 foot line and McAllister then crashed over. The Steelmen picked up two points on an automatic safety when Quarter Back Frank McInerney's punt was blocked in the fourth quarter. Lineup:

MARQUETTE TO MEET DUQUESNE IN NIGHT GAME

Expect 20,000 to Watch Clash in Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 24 [Special]. —Duquesne university's nine game winning streak, as well as a record of one defeat and one tie in 21 games, will go on the block tomorrow night when the Pittsburgh team faces Marquette university here.

The largest crowd in the history of Marquette's 17 year old stadium, a good deal of it drawn by an industrial night sponsorship on the part of Milwaukee manufacturers, may see the game. If the weather is not threatening tomorrow, close to 20,000 will be in the stadium.

Rely on Passing, Speed.

Coach Tom Stidham of Marquette will be relying on the passing of his left half backs, Jimmy Richardson and Bob McCahill, and the speed and deception of his back field to pull his Hilltoppers thru to victory.

Richardson has attempted 27 passes and completed 21 for four touchdowns. McCahill has tossed 17 times for nine completions and two tallies. That Duquesne also can be dangerous by air is evident from its record in three games of nine completions in 16 attempts.

Donelli to See Game.

Duquesne, which worked out here tonight, is coached by Steve Sinko, who succeeded Aldo [Buff] Donelli. Donelli will see the game here. His Pittsburgh Steelers are playing the Chicago Bears in Wrigley field on Sunday.

Tomorrow night's game will be the fifth between the two schools. Marquette defeated the Night Riders here in 1937, but lost games in Pittsburgh in 1936, 1939, and 1940.

Probable lineup:

MARQUETTE.		DUQUESNE.

WARNS OPA WILL BE HARSH WITH PRICE VIOLATORS

O'Leary Tells Tanners It Demands Obedience.

The Office of Price Administration is reluctant to use harsh measures to keep prices stabilized, but it will not hesitate to crack down if blocked by evasion of its regulations. This warning was sounded yesterday by Paul M. O'Leary, OPA price executive of the textiles, leather, and apparel section, before the annual convention of the Tanners' Council of America in the Stevens hotel.

Evasion can be dealt with by punishing the violators, allocating rigidly the material affected, and by clamping a tight price control over finished products, which would force the users of the raw materials to buy at the lowest available price, he said.

Not Afraid to Use Force.

"We do not like the thought of punishing people," O'Leary added, "but it would be a mistake for any one to suppose that because a particular course is difficult and awe-inspiring we in the OPA will never take it. We have our faults but cowardice and timidity are not conspicuous among them."

Maj. Joseph W. Byron, chief of OPM hides, skins and leather section, said that the leather industry has been able to supply the rapidly expanding requirements of the army and navy. He said a complete inventory will be made of hide, skins, and leather supply and needs.

Says More Must Be Processed.

Because only selected parts of the tanned hides are used in military shoes and other leather equipment, more hides will have to be processed than the theoretical number required, he said.

The expansion in leather output will be limited by the availability of chemicals, waxes, and metal trimmings required in making shoes and other products, he added.

ADVOCATE USING WATER PRESSURE TO LIFT OIL FLOW

Robinson, Ill., Oct. 24 (AP).—Robert M. Medill, director of mines and minerals, and G. C. Curtis, superintendent of the newly formed oil and gas division, heard testimony today that water pressuring would be a "life saver" for oil wells in the old field of Crawford, Clark, and Lawrence counties.

They conducted a hearing on the proposal of the Niagara Oil company to water flood its leases in the field near Casey as a means of stepping up production from wells now yielding only a few barrels of oil a day from a shallow sand.

Witnesses for the company agreed that repressuring was in line with conservation practices because it would bring about ultimate recovery of all the oil in the field. A. U. McCandless, president of the Mahutska Oil company, said several thousand barrels of oil per acre would never be obtained unless the wells were repressured.

Medill said he and Curtis would confer with the attorney general's office to see what could be done to coöperate with the company.

Champion Paper Company Plans Bond and Stock Sale

New York, Oct. 24 (AP).—Champion Paper and Fibre company today notified the New York Stock exchange that it would ask stockholders Nov. 17 to authorize a new issue of $8,500,000 first mortgage bonds and $4,000,000 of cumulative convertible preferred stock. It was understood that proceeds of the bond issue would be used to retire the two issues of 4¾ per cent sinking fund debentures.

Auto Output for Week Boosted to 91,855 Units

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 24 (AP).—Ward's Reports, Inc., today estimated passenger car and truck production this week at 91,855 units. The total compares with 85,600 last week when several plants were said to have been beset with labor and materials troubles. A year ago at this time production totaled 117,080 units.

'Acute Shortage' Puts More Paper Under Export Rule

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24 (AP).—The Economic Defense board today broadened its list of paper articles whose export is restricted "because of the acute shortage of paper," to include paper towels, adding machine rolls, blotting paper, toilet paper, napkins, writing paper, envelops, and crêpe paper.

TEXAS CORP. CHANGES NAME; MERGES WITH LARGEST SUBSIDIARY

New York, Oct. 24 (AP).—The board of directors of the Texas corporation today changed the name of the big oil firm to the Texas company, merging into the parent corporation its principal operating subsidiary, the former Texas company.

At the same time the board voted an extra dividend of 50 cents a share and a regular quarterly payment of the same amount.

W. S. S. Rogers, president, estimated the company's earnings for the first nine months of this year at $40,063,433, or $3.68 a share, compared with $33,692,712, or $3.10 a share, in the like 1940 period.

Rogers said the purpose of the merger was to simplify the corporate structure, promote efficiency, and effect economies. He said there would be no change in management or policies.

OPM ORDERS ALL HOLDINGS OF RAW SILK REPORTED

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24 (AP).—The Office of Production Management acted today to expedite the acquisition by the government of all available raw silk. Donald Nelson, OPM director of priorities ordered that effective Oct. 28 all persons owning title to remaining raw silk in unbroken bales inform the textile section of the OPM's purchase division by Oct. 30 of the amount, description, and location of the silk they possess.

When the information is available, holders of contracts for parachutes will be able to acquire silk they need and the Defense Supplies corporation will take over the remainder for additions to the government's stock pile.

Tire Shipments Exceed Production in September

New York, Oct. 24 (AP).—The Rubber Manufacturers' association reported today that September shipments of automotive pneumatic casings totaled 5,264,357 units, 18 per cent above last year's September shipments but 2.5 per cent under the August total of 5,399,702. Production for the month was 4,583,324 units, 3.9 per cent above the 1940 month but 8.4 per cent under the 5,004,912 turned out in August.

BRITISH REMOVE ALL INEFFICIENT FOOD GROWERS

Official Reveals Effort to Boost Output.

The British government removed more than 2,000 farmers from their land after the war started because they were inefficient and would not coöperate in their country's food production program, L. F. Easterbrook, public relations officer with the British ministry of agriculture, told members of the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday.

England always will be dependent on the rest of the world for a large part of its food supplies, he asserted, but when every inch of shipping space needs to be conserved for war supplies, the country must produce as much wheat, potatoes, barley, and sugar beets as possible.

Increase Farm Acreage.

More than four million acres of grass lands have been plowed up in the British Isles since the war began, he said. The farmers will plow up two million more this winter. It had nine million acres of farm land under cultivation when the war began. [In Illinois more than 7½ million acres were planted to corn alone this year.]

To get every possible foot of land into production, the British ministry of agriculture appointed county committees, which in turn named subcommittees to determine what land in their area could be used. Last year, Easterbrook said, almost every farmer was provided with a map of his farm telling him exactly how to farm every plot of ground.

Dairy Herds Get Preference.

Easterbrook said that dairy herds were given first preference on the use of grazing lands. Last year was unfavorable for milk production, he said, but thru an improvement in dairying practices, England's milk output was only 10 per cent below its record production.

"I haven't the smallest part of a suggestion to make concerning what help the United States should give us now," he said, "but when the peace is made, England and the rest of the world will not be able to get along without the United States. We will need food and all the supplies necessary for reconstruction."

Day by Day on the Farm by BOB BECKER

Summer in October.

Oct. 24, 1941.

THE calendar tells us that November soon will be here, but some of the crops on the Du-Page county farm evidently haven't heard of it.

The celery in the vegetable garden is a summery green and will continue to grow until the ground freezes. The decorative gourd plants are plentifully supplied with miniature "melons" and a few have bright orange blossoms. Usually these vines quit flowering in September or early October, but the warm weather has kept them in blossom.

The most significant indication that the farm plants don't look at the calendar is that the red raspberry bushes in the vineyard still are producing delicious fruit. The gardener picked five pints of raspberries early this week and the other morning there still were enough left to get a sample of their late-season flower.

Bob White Still Feasts.

The vegetable garden near one of the farm homes is almost a thing of the past, but the Bob White quail haven't quit harvesting some of their meals there. The gardener said that when he went to pick the last of the tomatoes a covey of about 20 Bob Whites put on a special 100-yard dash event. The way they exploded into the air with a noisy takeoff proved that they still know how to scare an unsuspecting farm resident.

Red, the riding horse with an over-developed sense of wanderlust, went on another unscheduled cross-country hike the other morning. The men don't want to keep Red too closely confined, because they know that he is soon going to have to go into a stall to spend most of the winter. But when they give him an inch he takes about three miles.

Vagabond Steeplechaser.

The other day, for example, Red was among the missing and the men had to hunt for him. The horse had left the yard, jumped a three-bar fence into a field of winter wheat and then jumped a rail fence into the alfalfa. After a full breakfast, this retired steeplechaser galloped across the alfalfa and into a cornfield, thru the mucky rows of corn to a farm lane, out an open gate into the road, and finally into the yard of one of the other farm cottages.

The resident of the cottage telephoned to Red's caretakers, and one of the men hiked down the road to return the vagabond.

CALL OFF COAL STRIKE, IS PLEA OF ROOSEVELT

Asks Lewis to Avert Big Tieup.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

President Roosevelt intervened personally in the captive coal mine dispute yesterday in an effort to avert a threatened strike by 53,000 miners which may tie up steel production and hamstring the armament program. So-called captive mines are those owned by the steel companies.

William H. Davis, head of mediation board, disclosed President's action.

First, the Chief Executive asked John L. Lewis, president of the CIO United Mine Workers, to call off the strike set for midnight tonight. Then, he proposed that Lewis and Myron C. Taylor, former chairman of the board of United States Steel corporation, assume the leading positions in direct negotiations preliminary to possible arbitration if the disputants were not willing to agree in advance to accept any decision made by the defense mediation board.

Lewis' Attitude Not Disclosed.

Lewis' attitude toward the President's request was not made known immediately. Chairman William H. Davis of the mediation board disclosed that the President had appealed personally to Lewis.

The proposals were advanced in connection with recommendations made by the mediation board which said it had been unable to bring about "a meeting of minds" on the one issue in the dispute: whether the UMW should receive a union shop contract covering the mines. The board's recommendations did not cover the point of issue but proposed that the disputing parties agree on one of two methods of settling it.

The methods were:

1. That the question be submitted to the full mediation board with agreement in advance that any decision would be accepted.

2. That the disputing parties each appoint representatives to conduct direct negotiations and agree that in event these negotiations were unproductive the representatives should jointly select an arbitrator whose decision would be final.

Union Shop Clause Asked.

The union shop clause asked by the UMW would require any miner working in captive mines to join the UMW after a probationary period. About 95 per cent of these miners are now UMW members and opposition of the steel company owners to a union shop is based in part, it is understood, on the contention that this might open the way to a union shop in steel mills.

All the output of captive mines goes into steel production, and major steel plants are reported to have only two to six weeks reserve supply of coal. The captive mines are in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Kentucky, and Alabama.

About 8,000 captive mine workers already are on strike in Alabama, having gone out with 15,000 from commercial mines. The latter group agreed yesterday to end their strike which involved wage adjustments. An agreement, based on mediation board recommendations, raised the basic daily pay from $5.50 to $5.75 and provided for an additional 15 cents, contigent on financial condition of the operators or an advance in the price of coal.

END PLANE PLANT TIEUP

Settlement of the United Automobile Workers [CIO] strike at the plant of Air Associates, Inc., at Bendix, N. J., was announced last night by Robert Patterson, undersecretary of war, and William S. Knudsen, director of the Office of Production Management. They said the management had agreed to return striking employés to the pay roll next Monday. Air Associates manufactures aviation parts and has about 5 million dollars of government orders.

The UAW strike was called in protest against what the union said were unfair labor practices, and to seek wage adjustments.

Power Strike Threatens.

At St. Louis, for the second time in two months, the metropolitan district and many other cities in Missouri, Illinois, and Iowa—an area with millions in armament contracts—faced the threat of a power strike. The Tri-State Utility Workers' union, asking a flat 10 per cent wage increase and other concessions for its 3,000 members, served an ultimatum on the Union Electric company to grant the "final" demands or submit them to arbitration. A deadline of 10 a. m. Wednesday was set for the strike.

At Detroit, operations of the Great Lakes Steel corporation were resumed with the return of striking CIO members who engaged in what union leaders called a "wildcat" walkout. The strike was settled with reinstatement of 16 leaders.

Ship Owners, CIO Sign Pact; 40,000 Affected

New York, Oct. 24 (AP).—A new two year agreement affecting 40,000 seamen and providing basic wage increases of $10 monthly for all unlicensed personnel has been reached by the National Maritime union (CIO) and the American Merchant Marine institute, it was announced today. The agreement, covering 18 steamship companies, provides a 5 cents an hour increase in the emergency overtime rate.

Many Gasoline Stations in East Dark Despite End of Rationing

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24 (AP).—Many of the east's gasoline filling stations remained dark tonight, their owners reluctant to give up operating economies and other advantages gained under the 7 p. m. to 7 a. m. curfew, now lifted. Still others were shut because of local shortages of labor needed for night operation.

Officials of the Eastern States Gasoline Dealers' conference, claiming to represent 100,000 retailers in 17 states, called a meeting at New York Oct. 30 to discuss continuing the curfew. With several other eastern gasoline retailer organizations, it urged operators to keep filling stations closed nights until all members' views could be ascertained.

Ickes Turns to Aviation Fuel.

The curfew and restrictions on deliveries of gasoline to filling stations were formally lifted by the Office of Production Management in accordance with admission by Petroleum Coördinator Harold L. Ickes that there is now no shortage of oil or gasoline in the east.

Meantime, Ickes turned today to a program to treble the nation's production of aviation gasoline.

He called upon the petroleum industry for "extreme effort" to meet the needs of the American, British, and Russian flying forces for high octane gasoline, and he announced that the government "stands ready with definite plans to assist in the financing" of new refining plants for aviation fuel.

Even the objective of raising the capacity to 120,000 barrels daily by 1943, Ickes said, "may not prove sufficient to meet the heavy, growing demand for 100 octane fuel on the part of the American flying forces and those of the nations being supplied from the United States." The present aviation gasoline refining capacity is 43,278 barrels daily, he reported.

Many service station operators declared they would never return to all night service, but others expressed the opinion that competition gradually would force large numbers of stations to resume night operation.

Curfew Strike Threat

New York, Oct. 24 [Special].—The muddled gasoline situation ran into a new snag here today as filling station employés threatened to strike if station operators retained the 7 p. m. to 7 a. m. curfew despite the lifting of rationing restrictions.

Spokesmen for local 917, Gasoline Station and Parking Attendants' union [AFL], said any attempt to retain the curfew would be considered a "lockout" and bring an immediate walkout. They claimed the curfew had cost the jobs of 1,250 men who couldn't get back to work unless 18 to 24 hour service were resumed.

The union and operators were in the midst of negotiations for a new wage and hour scale, based on work curtailment resulting from the curfew, when it was rescinded.

Du Pont Profit Rises Despite Soaring Taxes

Net earnings of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. were nearly 3½ million dollars larger in the September quarter than during the corresponding 1940 period, altho approximately 11½ million dollars more had to be set aside for federal taxes, the company reported yesterday.

Du Pont net income for the period was $24,491,867, or $2.09 a share, compared with $21,074,802, or $1.74 a share, in the 1940 quarter. The federal tax provision totaled $27,500,000, compared with $16,030,000 a year ago.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30 the company earned a profit of $68,253,664, or $5.84 a share, compared with $67,928,497, or $5.80 a share, in the corresponding period last year. Set aside for federal taxes was $74,420,000, compared with $30,400,000 in the first nine months of 1940.

International Business Has Gain.

International Business Machines corporation reported a net profit of $7,116,217, or $7.54 a share, for the nine months ended Sept. 30, after deducting $3,716,700 for federal and Canadian income taxes. In the corresponding 1940 period the company earned $6,413,779, or $7.14 a share.

National Cylinder Gas company, Chicago, reported for the September quarter a profit of $340,941, or 26 cents a share, compared with $326,617, or 25 cents a share, in the third quarter last year. The 1940 figure does not include earnings of Compressed Industrial Gases, Inc., prior to the merger of the two companies Aug. 31, 1940.

National Cash Register company reported a net profit of $1,224,043, or 75 cents a share, for the September quarter. This compares with $392,554, or 24 cents a share, in the corresponding 1940 quarter.

Sales Nearly Doubled.

Provision for domestic and foreign income taxes totaled $737,559, about six times the $126,548 set aside in the September quarter last year. Sales amounted to $15,323,830 compared with $8,597,246 in the 1940 September quarter.

Barnsdall Oil company reported for the nine months ended Sept. 30 a profit of $4,453,985, or $1.97 a share, compared with $1,650,737, or 73 cents a share, in the corresponding 1940 quarter. The 1941 figure included $2,514,158 profit from sale of leases.

Lone Star Cement corporation reported it earned $974,346 or $1.03 a share, in the September quarter, compared with $916,473, or 95 cents a share, in the corresponding 1940 period.

STEEL OUTPUT THIS YEAR TOPS RECORD TOTAL FOR ALL 1940

New York, Oct. 24 (AP).—All previous annual records for the production of steel in the United States were smashed today, the American Iron and Steel institute announced.

Statisticians of the institute estimated that at 12:30 p. m., eastern standard time, the industry had equaled the previous one year record of 66,981,662 net tons attained in 1940.

In more than two months remaining of 1941, they said, steel output would run to 82 million tons, about equal the production of all the rest of the world combined.

In 1939, when other nations were arming at top speed, their total output of steel was 94,400,000 tons. Aerial bombing and sabotage, however, were believed to have reduced present capacities below that record level.

SECURITIES FIRM UNDER INQUIRY BY SEC AND STATE

State Securities Commissioner John T. Jarecki and the Securities and Exchange commission yesterday filed separate charges of illegal practices against Haskell, Scott & Jennings, Inc., La Salle street securities underwriting and distributing firm for 13 years.

Ordered before a state hearing Nov. 3 at Springfield, the concern was accused of being insolvent, of having misrepresented its condition to the secretary of state, of having failed to keep proper accounts, and having engaged in fraudulent transactions. The state threatens to revoke the company's license to deal in securities.

The SEC hearing will be held in Chicago Nov. 7 and the company will be asked to answer charges of being insolvent, having borrowed on customers' securities without their consent, and having committed other irregularities.

David H. Jennings, president and treasurer, said he had not been served with the show cause orders and does not know what charges have been made. He said SEC investigators had probed his firm's records for several months.

Burlington Considers Buying Interurban Line

The Burlington railroad is making a survey looking to the possible purchase of the Illinois Terminal railway, an electric interurban system in downstate Illinois, Edward Flynn, executive vice president, disclosed yesterday. The road runs between St. Louis and Peoria and includes on its line Springfield, Decatur, Champaign, and Danville.

PROFIT LIMIT PLAN EXPECTED TO BE SHELVED

Congressmen 'Shy' on Tax Action.

BY JOHN FISHER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24.—So little enthusiasm has been expressed for the "6 per cent profits" plan of Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau that it probably won't see the light of day in congress. Congressmen are exceedingly unwilling to consider any form of tax legislation in the near future and even administrative changes in the tax laws to iron out "rough spots" are not expected until after Jan. 1.

Bills introduced to impose strict limitation on profits of rearmament contractors have also been placed on the shelf. The consensus is that the profit motive is necessary to achieve speedy production in the rearmament program.

Objections to Limitations.

The objections to a flat limitation of profits are that many companies are sacrificing normal business to take on the rearmament contracts—a nonsustaining type of operation—and what can be salted away now will come in handy for the postarmament collapse of which even administration leaders warn. A limitation would also penalize new companies and make it difficult for them to get a good start.

The Morgenthau plan would call for a flat limit of 6 per cent return on "invested capital," generally understood as money and property paid into a business, and accumulated earnings, altho the treasury chief has not officially defined the term. Morgenthau dropped word of the plan recently as a trial balloon and said his experts were preparing a bill which could not be ready before Jan. 1.

Two Bills Are Pending.

Two bills on profit limitations are pending in congress and not much enthusiasm is shown for either. These are the bill introduced by Rep. Carl Vinson [D., Ga.] which would limit profits on all arms contracts to 7 per cent of cost, and a similar bill by Rep. Albert Gore [D., Tenn.], which calls for a profit limit of 8 per cent on arms contracts. Of the two bills, Vinson's is considered the broader. However, there is no apparent White House backing behind either.

Morgenthau's plan would not stop at rearmament profits, but limit all profits to 6 per cent. This sweeping proposal brought thunderous protests even from the chairmen of both congressional tax committees, Rep. Robert L. Doughton [D., N. C.] of the house ways and means committee, and Sen. Walter F. George [D., Ga.] of the senate finance committee.

Substitute Plan Reported.

There are current reports that even the treasury is considering a substitute plan, which probably wouldn't be any more palatable than the first. Some of the talk centers around revival of the old thoroly despised undistributed profits tax. This tax had been enacted in 1936 at the request of President Roosevelt as part of his "share the wealth" program. It provided a tax of 7 to 27 per cent on undistributed earnings of corporations above $25,000 a year. In 1938 in response to public demands the tax was slashed to 2½ per cent of undistributed earnings. Finally, in 1939, it was killed entirely.

Some officials favor revival of such a tax in a form under which stockholders would report as their taxable income a proportionate share of a corporation's earnings whether distributed or not. Such a plan would be substituted for the present excess profits and most of the normal corporation taxes. Another proposal under consideration would retain the present alternative systems of determining "excess profits" but raise the maximum tax rate on such profits from 60 to 100 per cent.

May Consider Social Tax Hike.

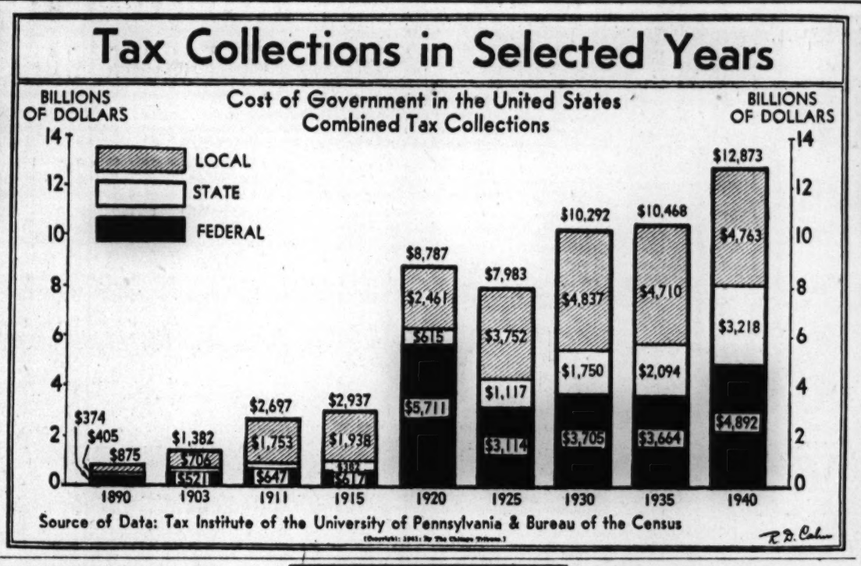

If any tax plan is to receive early consideration it will more likely be on social security taxes which the treasury wishes to increase as an arms financing step and an "anti-inflation" measure. According to current reports this would provide for a 10 per cent tax on pay rolls, of which the employé would contribute 5 per cent against 1 per cent at present and the employer would contribute 5 per cent, against 4 per cent at present.

The employer's present share is distributed between 1 per cent for old age insurance and 3 per cent for unemployment compensation under state plans. Under the new plan the old age contribution would be raised to 2 per cent. The new plan would tax employés 4 per cent for old age insurance and 1 per cent for unemployment compensation.

In this way the treasury hopes to raise its "take" thru social security taxes from less than 1 billion to about 5 billions a year. The taxes are spent for general expenditures by the treasury and I.O.U.'s placed in the social security trust accounts.

SPAB Plans Allocations to Farm Machine Makers

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24 (AP).—Rearmament officials told representatives of the farm equipment industry today that a plan for allocating scarce materials to farm machinery manufacturers was being considered by the Supply Priorities and Allocations board. OPM spokesmen outlined to about 150 industry representatives a tentative proposal that 80 per cent of the tonnage of materials used by the industry in 1940 be guaranteed for the 1941-'42 crop year which began July 1.

Capital Stock Boost Planned by Illinois Bell

The Illinois Bell Telephone company plans to raise $12,500,000 of new capital thru the sale of common stock for the purpose of financing improvements and retiring loans, A. H. Mellinger, president, disclosed yesterday.

A. H. Mellinger.

The company shortly will apply to the secretary of state and the Illinois Commerce commission for permission to increase its authorized common shares from 1,500,000 to 2,000,000.

Illinois Bell proposes to sell 125,000 of the new shares to its stockholders at par of $100. This means that practically all will go to the American Telephone and Telegraph company—the parent organization—which owns more than 99 per cent of the Chicago unit's stock. However, about 215 individuals, mostly residents of Illinois, own a few shares of the stock.

Arming Increases Needs.

Increased facilities and improvements are being made necessary by the national rearmament program which is creating heavy demands for telephone service within the state, officials said. A tight situation already exists in the supplying of service, they said. Large armament plants, such as those of Buick and Studebaker, require extensive telephone installations. Housing for arms workers is adding to the load.

The expenditures, which will be started as soon as authorized, will be made in all parts of the state served by the company. There will be some construction items, including the finishing of a Peoria exchange and the enlargement of a Rockford exchange provided materials are available.

Needs Cable in Chicago.

The company so far has had little difficulty in getting materials downstate but it has not been so fortunate in Chicago. The Chicago area needs cable especially.

The last time Illinois Bell raised capital thru the sale of stock was in 1928 when the number of authorized shares was increased from 1,100,000 to 1,500,000. Proceeds were used at that time to finance the improvements made necessary by the business whirl of the late 1920s.

ILLINOIS UTILITY WILL SELL LARGE LOAN ON MONDAY

New York, Oct. 24 [Special].—After the dullest period in more than two years in offerings of new securities, interest in investment circles will center Monday on the scheduled sale at competitive bidding of 38 million dollars' worth of Central Illinois Public Service company bonds.

At least two underwriting groups are prepared to submit bids, one headed by Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., and another jointly by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and the First Boston corporation. There is said to be a possibility that a third bid may appear as an "agency tender" on behalf of a group of smaller insurance companies.

NEW HIGH SPEED TRAIN WILL REDUCE RUNNING TIME TO WATERLOO, IA.

A new high speed two car streamlined train, named the Land o' Corn, will be placed in service tomorrow by the Illinois Central between Chicago and Waterloo, Ia. It will make the 275 mile run in approximately 5½ hours, or 1¾ hours below the present fastest schedule. The train has a capacity of 109 passengers and will carry no freight or express.

Each of the two cars will be powered by Diesel engines of 225 horse power, two engines in one car and one in the other. Power will be delivered by the engines thru hydraulic transmissions up to certain speeds and thru direct power as the train picks up speed. The train, which will make one round trip daily, was built by the American Car and Foundry company.

Departure from Waterloo will be at 7 a. m. with arrival in Chicago at 12:25 p. m. Departure from Chicago will be at 5:15 p. m., with arrival at Waterloo at 10:45 p. m. Stops will be made at Rockford, Freeport, Dubuque, Manchester, and Independence.

A group of citizens from the cities on the line was brought to Chicago yesterday on a special run.

COURT TO DECIDE STATUS OF CRANE PENSION SYSTEM

Executors of the estate of Charles R. Crane, diplomat and one time head of the Crane company, who died in 1939, filed suit in Circuit court yesterday to determine whether the pension plan for Crane company employés has been supplanted by the federal social security act.

The suit, naming John B. Berryman, a director of the company, as chief defendant, stated that the fund was established in 1914 by Charles R. Crane and Richard T. Crane Jr., who died in 1931, with the proviso that it be discontinued if any law was enacted requiring the company to maintain a pension system.

The executors asked the court to rule whether the social security act is such a law, and if so, to whom the pension fund should be paid. The founders of the fund directed that, if it were discontinued within 21 years after the death of the survivor of the two founders, the fund be paid to the Crane company which would continue paying pensions already on the lists until the deaths of the recipients. If the fund was not paid to the company, they provided it should revert equally to the heirs of Charles and Richard Crane.

TRADE DISTURBED BY LONG LULL IN SEASONAL GOODS

New York, Oct. 24 (AP).—The unevenness in trade became more pronounced this week as the persistent lull in seasonal goods affected sentiment in primary markets, Dun & Bradstreet said today.

"A decline in anticipatory purchasing is evident all along the line," the agency said. "Retailers noted a letdown in demand which is not alone attributable to unseasonally mild weather. Trade turnover, altho under the peak of a few weeks ago, exceeded that of a year ago by 12 to 16 per cent.

"Manufacturers and distributors are evidently still more concerned about getting supplies than getting new business. Almost no cancellations of orders are reported in wholesale merchandise markets and few instances of price weakness."

People and Events

J. Herschel Campbell, of the federal committee on apprenticeship, United States department of labor, will be one of the principal speakers at a banquet of the Pattern Makers association of Chicago tonight in the Hotel Knickerbocker. The banquet will celebrate a new apprenticeship program adopted by the association.

Lewis C. Mahoney, general freight traffic manager for the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad, will retire Nov. 1 after 47 years of railroading. He is a native of Rock Island, Ill.

Harry W. Bohnett, Chicago, was elected to the board of directors of the National Association of Independent Tire Dealers at the group's recent convention at Louisville, Ky.

William B. Walrath Jr. has been appointed to the western advertising sales staff for Macfadden Publications, Inc.

Priority Plan Failing, Says OPM Official

The priorities system is beginning to collapse under the weight of its own ineffectiveness, Lawrence Brown, in charge of civilian allocation of chemicals for the Office of Production Management, said last night before the Chicago section of the American Chemical society in the Stevens hotel.

He predicted that a system of complete allocation of materials will emerge. He said priorities were futile because low preference ratings are constantly shoved back until they lose their meaning.

Low Priorities Useless.

"It works out in many commodities that low priorities are no priority at all since they will never insure delivery and the only reason for issuing them seems to be to give the poor fellow a piece of paper and get him out of the office," Brown asserted.

Allocation is more effective, he explained, because the entire output of a material is alloted in specific quantities to users according to a prearranged schedule of quotas.

"Allocation is not widely in use now—tho it is growing—and it is obviously a difficult system to use when there are many producers and consumers of a commodity," he said.

Program Produces Bankruptcy.

The war effort is producing bankruptcy and unemployment and the future is dark as the armament production increases, he said. Supplies will have to be denied for less essential civilian uses and those enterprises which are deprived of materials will be the economic casualties of the war.

Confusion as to what supply of materials is available for civilian needs cannot be avoided, he explained, because of the complexity of the problem of determining supply and demand in advance. Allocation programs for plastics have already been disrupted.

NELSON ORDERS EAST TO CUT USE OF WASTE PAPER

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24 (AP).—Donald M. Nelson, priorities director, today ordered a 10 per cent reduction in consumption of waste paper by eastern paperboard and roofing mills between Oct. 25 and Nov. 22.

The order, which Nelson said was necessary because current supplies of waste paper are inadequate to meet the needs of eastern mills, affects plants in the area east of a line from the Canadian border thru and including Buffalo, N. Y., Pittsburgh, Pa., and Tallahassee, Fla.

SMALLER FIRMS GET INKLING OF WHAT IS AHEAD

Many Find Outlook Bleak at Clinic.

BY LLOYD NORMAN.

Owners of more than 3,500 small plants in the middle west obtained a more realistic understanding of their fate under the 66 billion dollar armament program as the result of the three day arms production clinic in the Stevens hotel, which ended yesterday.

This was the consensus of the small business men who had opportunity, at the meeting, to examine the thousands of parts and products required in the manufacture of armaments. They agreed they had obtained some idea as to whether the government's concentration on one aim—rearmament—means economic death, slow starvation, depression level operations, or a flush boom for them.

It All Begins with "If."

The "little fellows" made these observations:

If they had metal working machinery which could do precision work, they had a chance for survival.

If they could make army clothing, process foods, sew heavy canvas, make instruments—there was a place for them.

But if their machinery was not adaptable to arms work, if they could do only a commercial operation, they were going to have to take places at the end of the line waiting for materials.

The conference, conducted by the Chicago regional office of the OPM's contract distribution division, brought representatives of the small plants into direct communication with more than 170 large corporations engaged in armament production. The clinic was described by Thomas S. McEwan, its director, as the most productive of the nine held thus far in the country.

Big Contractors Pleased.

Prime contractors said the industrial market place had furnished them with hundreds of prospective machine facilities which they could use as a pool for expansion without building or adding new equipment.

Typical observations from representatives of contractors follow:

DUNCAN DOWNIE, purchasing agent, Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company, Hammond, Ind.—We found six shops with heavy machines which can be used in making parts for the 28 ton tanks we are producing. We signed them up. What surprised me most was the availability of heavy machines in the Grand Rapids, Mich., area and in the northwest. In fact, the last place in the world we would have looked—in a flour mill—is where we discovered the machinery we wanted."

Makes 75 Contacts.

J. M. SEAGLE, engineer, Pressed Steel Car company, Chicago: "We made contact with 75 companies which have equipment which we could use. There is a surplus of sheet metal facilities but we need the heavy machines for the 28 ton tanks also."

J. C. WILLIAMSON, supervisor of allied equipment, Caterpillar Tractor company, Peoria, Ill.: "Our engineers obtained a list of 125 plants which we are classifying into a directory of available facilities. We cannot know whether they will fit in until we inspect their plants."

ROBERT A. SIEWERT, district manager, Service Steel company, Chicago: "This clinic has been helpful to us. I have taken several orders for steel tubes and I have uncovered many new potential customers."

PHONE COMPANY REGISTERS BOND, STOCK ISSUES

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24 (AP).—Illinois Commercial Telephone company, Madison, Wis., filed with the securities commission today a registration statement covering $5,750,000 of 3¾ per cent first mortgage bonds, due Oct. 1, 1971, and 24,000 shares of $5 cumulative preferred stock, no par value. The bonds are to be offered to the public thru underwriters at 106.50 per cent.

Proceeds, together with $105,000 from the sale of 7,000 additional shares of common stock to the company's parent, General Telephone corporation, will be used principally for refunding purposes.

RAYON EARNINGS.

What has been the trend of Industrial Rayon corporation earnings since the decline in 1937? What stock is outstanding and where is it traded? What about dividends?—B. M. A.

Answer: The slump in 1937 net income was followed by another decline in 1938. Earnings made a good recovery in 1939 and 1940, but soaring federal taxes left profit slightly lower in the nine months ended Sept. 30 this year. Results for years ended Dec. 31 follow:

	Net sales.	Net income.	Per share.
1940	$14,663,206	$2,392,477	$3.15
1939	12,264,980	1,348,923	1.78
1938	6,727,943	184,410	0.24
1937	4,824,161	262,210	0.35
1936	10,136,777	1,396,146	2.30

Net income for the nine months was $1,706,250, equal to $2.25 a share, compared with $1,720,230, or $2.27, in the corresponding 1940 period.

There are 759,325 shares of no par capital stock outstanding. The stock is listed on the New York Stock exchange and also is traded on the Philadelphia, Boston, and Cleveland exchanges. Dividends have been paid regularly in recent years.

Dividends in 1940 amounted to $2 a share, the same as in 1937, compared with respective distributions of 25 and 75 cents in 1938 and 1939. Three 50 cent quarterly payments have been made this year.

Industrial Rayon ranks third among domestic producers of viscose rayon. New manufacturing facilities scheduled for operation this spring were expected to increase plant capacity to about 36,000,000 pounds a year. Plants are at Cleveland and Painesville, O., and Covington, Va.

VALVES AND TRUCKS.

Have you a brief review of the Fairbanks company?—J. J. K.

Answer: This company manufactures valves, hand trucks, truck casters, and wheelbarrows in its plants at Binghamton, N. Y., and Rome, Ga. The company was incorporated in 1891. Total assets at the end of 1940 were more than $1,600,000.

Fairbanks operated at a loss from 1931 thru 1935, returned to a profit basis the next two years, then had a loss of $51,117 in 1938. In 1939, there was a profit of $50,427, and last year profit was $101,245. For the first six months this year, net income was $208,393, compared with $14,745 in the corresponding period the preceding year.

Heavy dividend arrears on the old first preferred and preferred stocks, which had accumulated since 1921, were cleared thru recapitalization last May. There are now 154,537 shares of $1 par common and 8,348 shares of 6 per cent preferred, $100 par. Initial payments of $1.50 on the preferred and 15 cents on the common were made in August and similar distributions are payable Nov. 1.

STOCKS RUN UP, BUT SOON LOSE PART OF SPEED

Specialties, Steels, Oils Are Strongest.

New York, Oct. 24 (AP).—Stocks got a good start on another rallying excursion in today's market but most of them lost momentum at the close. Steels, oils, and specialties were among the favorites in the forenoon with gains of fractions to more than 2 points, but final prices were well under the best in the majority of cases.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks ended with a net advance of .2 of a point, at 41.4. Transfers totaled 699,310 shares against 541,020 the day before.

Revived hopes of stronger Russian resistance to the Nazi drive, brokers said, inspired some reinstatement of commitments in the morning. In addition sentiment was aided by a number of good earnings statements.

Buying Weakens Later.

Buying began to wane after midday when Secretary Frank Knox warned that the situation in the far east was more critical than most supposed and the suggestion cropped up here and there that the claims of the Reds that they were stemming the German thrust might well be taken with at least a grain or two of salt.

Steels were aided by announcement that ingot output so far this year had exceeded the record total for all of 1940. Cancellation of restrictions on the use of gasoline in the east, plus an extra dividend by Texas corporation, propped the oils. An upturn in this week's automotive production kept the motors a bit higher.

New 1941 tops were registered for International Mercantile Marine and Electric Power and Light preferred.

CHICAGO LIST ADVANCES.

Prices advanced on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday. Fifty-five issues ended higher, 21 declined, and 15 closed unchanged. Transactions totaled 23,000 shares and 10,600 rights.

Volume leaders were Commonwealth Edison, 1,850 shares, off ½ to 24½; Chicago corporation, 1,750 shares, unchanged at ⅝; Westinghouse Electric, 850 shares, up 1 to 72¾; Swift & Co., 700 shares, up ⅜ to 23⅝, and Consolidated Oil, 600 shares, up ⅛ to 6½.

ONLY RETAILER CAN DEDUCT THIS NEW EXCISE TAX

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24 (AP).—The treasury ruled today that retailers, and not their customers, can deduct the new federal retail excise taxes on furs, jewelry, and toilet preparations from their income tax returns.

Most other federal excises can be deducted only by manufacturers. In the case of the new retail levies, the treasury followed its old rule that only the person who actually pays the tax to the treasury can claim it as an income tax reduction, even tho the consumer may eventually pay the tax thru increased prices.

The decision on the retail taxes was complicated by a section of the new law effective Oct. 1 which made it a criminal offense for a retailer to advertise that he absorbs the new taxes and does not figure them into the prices he charges. This provision led some people to believe that congress was making it plain that the consumer actually paid the tax, but the treasury said it did not work that way.

Northern Pacific Reports Profit; Had a Loss in 1940

The Northern Pacific railroad yesterday reported net income for the first nine months of this year of $4,784,884, compared with a loss of $1,296,264 in the same period last year. September net income was $1,557,795 against $886,556 in 1940. Earnings reports follow:

GENERAL STEEL CASTINGS TO PAY ON PREFERRED

$1.50 Declaration First Since July, 1931.

Directors of the General Steel Castings corporation, Eddystone, Pa., yesterday declared a dividend of $1.50 on the $6 preferred shares, the first payment on the issue since one of the same amount was made in July, 1931. The company was reported to have received more than 6 million dollars in orders from the government this year for gun carriage and machinery parts.

Harnischfeger corporation, Milwaukee, authorized a 25 cent dividend on the common shares, the first dividend since a payment of 45 cents was made in October, 1930. The company, maker of power machinery, received a government order of $163,000 in September for Diesel powered shovels.

Declares 35 Cents.

General Electric company, Schenectady, N. Y., declared a quarterly dividend of 35 cents and announced that directors would consider reëstablishment of the company's old custom of paying dividends, when declared, in January, April, July, and October. A change was made in 1936 because of the undistributed earnings tax, no longer in effect.

Quaker State Oil Refining corporation declared a dividend of 45 cents. Payments this year total $1 against 80 cents in 1940. Argo Oil corporation authorized an extra dividend of 15 cents in addition to a payment of the same amount.

Tide Water Associated Oil company declared an extra dividend of 10 cents in addition to the regular quarterly payment of 15 cents. Payments this year total 80 cents against 70 cents in 1940.

GRAINS CONTINUE RISE INSPIRED BY LOAN HIKE MOVE

Wheat Advances About 3c in Early Trading.

Wheat futures advanced about 3 cents to the best levels in almost two weeks early yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade, but gains were reduced at the close. Grain for delivery in December finished at $1.16⅝ a bushel, up 1⅜ cents from Thursday's close. Other deliveries were from ⅞ to 1⅞ cents a bushel higher.

Corn advanced 1⅝ to 1⅞ cents a bushel; oats, ⅜ to ⅞ cent, and rye ⅝ to a cent. Soy beans closed ¼ cent lower to ⅝ cent higher. Lard futures climbed 12 to 15 cents per 100 pounds.

Loan Stand Induces Buying.

Strength in the grain markets came principally from the stand of the congressional farm bloc demanding larger loans to farmers on 1942 and 1943 crops in return for support of the administration's price control bill. Shipping sales of corn were the largest in some time, estimated by grain dealers at between 250,000 and 300,000 bushels.

Buyers who represent export interests continued active. Local shippers told of barley sales to foreign purchasers while Switzerland was named as the buyer of 187,000 bushels of Canadian wheat and about 177,000 bushels of American barley. It also took a small quantity of No. 2 yellow corn.

RECORD WHEAT STOCK.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24 (AP).—The department of agriculture reported today that stocks of wheat stored in interior mills, elevators, warehouses, and on farms on Oct. 1 amounted to the record quantity of 716,299,000 bushels, compared with 544,935,000 bushels a year earlier. The 1934-'39 average was 434,507,000 bushels.

The stocks in interior mills, elevators, and warehouses were reported at 223,975,000 bushels. Stocks were said to be especially heavy in the hard red spring wheat states and above average in practically all states.

President Signs Increase in RFC's Lending Powers

Washington, D. C., Oct. 24 (AP).—President Roosevelt signed today a bill increasing the borrowing power of the Reconstruction Finance corporation by 1 billion 500 million dollars. It is understood a large portion of this will be used to finance steel plants.

Plan to Ask That Chicago Get Export Office Branch

The Chicago Association of Commerce announced yesterday it would ask the administration in Washington, D. C., to open a branch office of the Export Control Office in Chicago. It said export firms in the branch office cities of New York, San Francisco, Los Angeles, and New Orleans have an advantage over firms in the middle west. The Export Club of Chicago will join in the petition.
